Protect School Kids Safety Chief Urges

VIRGINIA BEACH—The City's Safety Bureau Chief, Reeves E. Johnson, reminded Virginia Beach citizens today that the Governor's Highway Safety Committee figures show that 105 children under 15 years of age were killed in motor vehicle accidents last year and urged drivers to prevent this tragedy from recurring in 1963.

"Complete mobilization of all our safety forces is the only thing that will assure our children's safety on the streets," he said. "This means action by parents, teachers, motorists, older children and the youngsters themselves."

A large percentage of child pedestrian traffic deaths and injuries are avoidable, Chief Johnson said. The key to the situation lies in traffic safety education of the young and constant vigilance on the part of all adults, he added.

"Naturally, a child's best safeguard in traffic is his own recognition of danger and his thorough knowledge of safety rules," he said. "But children are not naturally cautious, they must be taught caution both at home and at school."

Chief Johnson outlined these simple rules for parents to follow in educating their children in traffic safety:

1. Teach your children habits of safe walking.
2. See that they always play in safe places away from the street.
3. Set them an example of safe behavior by your own conduct in traffic.

He also reminded teachers and school officials:

1. Make traffic safety a regular part of your instruction.
2. Cooperate with parents and police authorities. "And, of course," the Chief said, "the responsibility of the motorists for child pedestrian safety is obvious. No matter how well a child has been trained, there are times when he forgets. At such times, only quick thinking by the driver can avert disaster. Constant alertness is a must!"

Chief Johnson urged everyone to help cut down the alarming toll of traffic deaths and injuries among our young people by supporting the Child Safety Program which the City of Virginia Beach and the Governor's Highway Safety Committee are conducting during September.

Catnapping Brings Sorrow To Little Girl

PLAZA—A little girl is heartbroken today because of a "catnapping" case in Princess Anne Plaza.

Two kittens were taken from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hodge, 472 Applin Ave., about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The furry "victims" have been the constant companion of the Hodge's 5-year-old daughter all summer and she is heartbroken.

"We heard a car stop in front of our house about 10:30 Tuesday night and feel sure the kittens were taken then," the mother said.

The family has had many requests for the kittens because of their unusual markings, Mrs. Hodge said, but they have never been able to part with the pair because the little girl was so attached to them.

One kitten has a fluffy tail with a white tip "that looks like an artist's brush," and a white streak on its nose. The other has what appears to be a mixture of squirrel and rabbit fur.

"If the people who took our daughter's pets will please return them," Mrs. Hodge said, "we will be glad to offer a small reward."

LOCAL SWIMMERS CAPTURE STATE AAU DIVING HONORS

VIRGINIA BEACH—Two young swimmers from Princess Anne Country Club captured first and third places in the state AAU women's one-meter diving championships in Richmond Saturday.

Pam Fuller, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Fuller, 313 46th St., scored 108.57 points to dethrone Mary Ellen Hoppe of James River, who was seeking her seventh straight women's crown. Miss Hoppe had 108.22 points.

Third place went to Georgia

McQuilkin, 12, daughter of Cmdr. and Mrs. W. R. McQuilkin of 305 40th St., Virginia Beach.

Both girls have trained under the guidance of coach Herman Butt of Norfolk, a wholesale florist who devotes a great deal of his time to the Princess Anne Club for diving instruction.

In addition, he instructs divers at swim clubs in Norfolk and at the Norfolk Naval Base.

Neither girl has been defeated in the past four years in her age group. Miss Fuller placed 3rd in state three-meter competition recently, a feat made especially notable by the fact that her practice was confined to the one-meter board at the Princess Anne Club.

Saturday's meet was open to divers 12 years of age or older. Competition was based on the same five compulsory dives as required in national competition, plus six alternate dives.

The pair have rolled up an impressive record in the age-group and open meets in which they have participated. Miss Fuller has scored four firsts, two thirds and two second place awards.

Miss McQuilkin has a record of five first place awards, two seconds and two thirds.

Banks Have Biggest Day

VIRGINIA BEACH—When the two banks in the resort section of Virginia Beach opened their doors Tuesday after a 3-day Labor Day week-end they were met with an onslaught of depositors—and the pace kept up until the doors closed at 1 p.m.

The traffic between 31st Street and Pacific Avenue became so marshaled with cars that a police officer was needed to keep the lines moving.

The Bank of Virginia Beach is located at 31st Street and Pacific Avenue and the Virginia National Bank is one block over on 32nd Street and Atlantic Avenue.

Both banks reported an all-time high in transactions for one day.

"It would be nice if every day could be as busy as Tuesday," Bank of Virginia Beach President E. H. Church said, "but we would certainly have to enlarge our staff and enlarge our facilities to keep up with it."

Clairbourne Bryant, senior vice president of the beach branch of Virginia National Bank, said he also felt that the local branch probably set records in Tuesday's transactions.

Several reasons were given for the unusual bank business: an outstanding tourist season, Navy payday, the arrival of dependents' allotment checks and, of course, the 3-day holiday.

Fort Story Man Drowns

FORT STORY—The body of a 19-year-old soldier was discovered floating in the surf off Fort Story late Monday afternoon by two teenage boys an Army spokesman said today.

The soldier was identified as Pfc. Leonardo Rondon, Jr., of Baltimore, Md., stationed at Fort Story with the 155th Transportation Company.

Neal O'Donnell and Bruce Randolph, military dependents living on the post, discovered the body floating near the beach in the vicinity of Fort Story's 16th Street.

The body was found about 5:30 p.m. The boys notified the Military Police.

Rondon was pronounced dead on arrival at the post dispensary at 6 p.m. by Capt. Herbert A. Friedman, medical officer.

The Public Information Office spokesman said Rondon was last seen about 4 p.m. Tuesday behind the Non-Commissioned Officers Beachhouse. He was reported wearing a swim suit and walking toward the ocean.

He apparently was the victim of an accidental drowning, the spokesman said.

The Sun-News congratulates these two young athletes for this national recognition.

Summer Gone But Not All Vacationers

VIRGINIA BEACH—A lull fell over the resort area of the city this week as a first-rate summer season ground to a halt. But many here felt it was simply the lull before a magnificent storm of autumn tourism.

Roy LeMere, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce who just returned from two weeks of campaigning for Autumn visitors at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, seems convinced of this.

"If the reports I've gotten are any indication, we should have the best September and October we've ever had," LeMere said.

He said the chamber has made plans for additional promotional material "to get us through the fall months." According to LeMere, the chamber has received 29,000 direct mail inquiries from prospective tourists so far this year.

"That's already 4,000 more than all of last year together," he added.

At the Canadian National Exhibition, LeMere said, the Virginia Travel Council passed out about 25,000 pieces of literature, including vacation kits emphasizing the advantages of Autumn vacations at Virginia Beach.

Canadians form a large segment of the visitors to the beach during the fall season.

"They seem to be sold on Virginia as a vacation spot," LeMere said. "Our public image up there is tremendous and the two places they really want to visit are Virginia Beach and Williamsburg."

"We're promoting the idea of visiting the beach and making side trips to the nearby points of interest."

"Any Virginian would have been proud to be up in Toronto and hear all the comments the Canadians made about our state," he said.

William J. Dekker, president of the Hotel, Motel, Cottage and Apartment Association and operator of the Bel Harbour Motel, also predicted a banner season this fall.

"If the weather holds we will have had not only a fantastic summer but a fantastic year," he forecast.

Highly Successful Summer

The summer season was one of the best on record, according to Dekker, who said he hadn't heard a single complaint about its success.

"Everything was in our favor," he said.

Several factors have probably contributed to this year's tourist boom:

● An increase in the city's advertising budget—double that of last year.

● Nearly perfect beach weather throughout the months of July and August.

● The $2.56-million spent for construction of new buildings including the Americana, the Diplomat and the Princess Anne Inn. Two hundred and eighty new hotel and motel rooms were added to the 3,000 or so already built.

● The city-sponsored entertainment program at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center featuring top name entertainers, primarily in the jazz and folk music fields.

Laura Lambie, whose advertising agency handles the work of the Virginia Beach Advertising Board, said that advertising was placed on 10 radio stations throughout Virginia, including Virginia Beach, about the time schools recessed for the summer.

Mrs. Lambie, who also handles accounts for 16 resort operators, said that some had experienced a 20 per cent business increase over last year.

Rather puzzling to some people is the ability of stomach acids to digest a variety of heavy foods without damaging the stomach walls which are living tissue.

Actually, there are many self-regulating factors which prevent irritation of hydrochloric acid in amounts damaging to the stomach. Food itself acts as a buffer to reduce the effects of the acid, as do saliva, enzymes, peristalsis of the stomach and stomach mucus.

There is nothing puzzling, however, about when you should go for your medical needs. BARR'S REGAL PHARMACY has a complete prescription department as well as a full line of drug and medical supplies. BEFORE SCHOOL STARTS-DO THIS!

Vacation days are fast coming to an end, and now — before school starts — is the time for parents to take their children for a pre-school check-up of their eyes.

This is a matter of tremendous importance because the mental development of the school child is far more dependent upon sight than any of the other senses. So don't "guess" about your child's eyesight—don't just take it for granted that your child's vision is normal. Statistics show that one school child out of every five is retarded by poor vision. And defective sight not only forces the child to work harder in order to keep up with his classes, but also tends to warp his personality. He envies his school mates who get ahead with little or no apparent effort. He becomes stubborn, rebellious, indifferent—and he doesn't like school.

Educational authorities are well aware of the detriment of poor eyesight to satisfactory progress in school work. They know that thousands of children enter school every year handicapped by defective vision. But it is the duty of parents to make sure that the vision of their children is unimpaired.

Thanks to the professional skill, care, and counsel of Dr. Salasky, dull school days can be made brighter for the child with defective sight. Then, with vision restored to normal, he will take a new interest in his studies and his school days will be happy days.

Well, Ho, Hum, where'd they go? to school! Feed 'em breakfast. Mom! Include fruit or juice, a protein food as egg or cereal with milk or cheese, bread, and milk to drink.

Fruit can add vitamin C if you serve citrus fruits or juices as orange or grapefruit. The egg may be in pancakes, waffles, muffin, french toast—this is important if they aren't going to have the mid-morning slump. It takes protein not sugar to prevent this low energy period.

Enjoy breakfast—Don't serve such large servings, vary menus. I can't stare down an egg some mornings either. There's nothing wrong with a devilled egg sandwich either.

If you are changing rugs (putting up summer ones, putting down winter ones) here are some tips to make it easy.

You don't have to move everything out of the room to lay your rug again this fall.

Here are 10 simple tips on how to spread even a loose, room size carpet, recommended by the National Institute of Rug Cleaning. By following these suggestions two people can easily lay a pad and rug at the same time.

1. Determine which end of the room the exposed end of the rolled rug will be started. It is usually the end with the fewest pieces of large furniture.

2. Clear starting end of room of furniture, except large items against walls.

3. Remove fragile items from tables and chests that must be lifted or moved.

4. Center cushion roll where it is to lie on floor. Be sure to have correct baseboard margins. Unroll pad several feet.

5. Center rug on top of pad. Rug should overlap end of pad about one inch.

6. Start unrolling pad, then the rug. Keep rug smooth over pad. Keep checking alignment of rug with floor margins and pad. The pad should always be covered on all sides.

7. Unroll to largest piece of furniture. Lift one end of sofa as second person unrolls pad and rug under lifted half. Repeat with opposite end of sofa.

8. Shift chairs and other light furniture from bare floor over a rolls in unrolled rug surface.

9. Large pieces of furniture against wall should be moved out slightly from wall and gently tipped backwards on rear legs. Rug and pad can then be slid under the raised front legs.

10. Pads which extend slightly beyond end of unrolled rug may be cut off with scissors, when stretching of pad or shrinkage of rugs caused some misfitting. Edges will not unravel, and pad is in no way damaged by trimming.

Faded rugs can be dyed even on the floor according to the National Institute of Rug Cleaning. Get a reliable cleaner though. Any questions today?

With School Bells Ringing Traffic Safety Is A Must

Today the public schools in the City of Virginia Beach, as well as many private schools, will open their doors to thousands of youngsters seeking an education. The city schools expect an enrollment to exceed 29,000 pupils. This represents an increase of some 9,000 pupils during the past four years.

What does all this mean? For one thing it demands that we adhere strictly to the rules of traffic safety. It is a time when many youngsters will be on the streets and attending school for the first time. It demands the utmost alertness on the part of the automobile driver.

Each year throughout the nation many school children are killed or injured primarily through carelessness and thoughtlessness on the part of the person behind the wheel of the automobile. With school bells ringing it means that the motorist must be more cautious than ever.

School zones are well marked for the motorist and speed limits are posted in these areas. These speed limits should be strictly obeyed and even more strictly enforced.

In the City of Virginia Beach, alone, there will be literally hundreds of public and private school buses on the streets and roads. These vehicles are filled with precious cargo—our children. All of safety should be obeyed and all traffic must stop when the school bus is flashing its red light.

If all drivers will take stock starting today and refresh their minds with the safety rules of the road Virginia Beach's school children will have a safe and happy school year.

Cancer Crusade Tops Goal For First Time

The American Cancer Society's Annual Crusade has come to an end in Virginia Beach and the results clearly show that local residents are becoming more aware of the untold benefits that stricken patients derive from each dollar donated to this organization. For the first time, the Virginia Beach Unit has exceeded its goal.

Charity solicitors today must often face an "oh-no-not-again" attitude when seeking contributions, yet each and every organization is worthwhile and greatly needed by the ill and unfortunate. It is this belief that drives hundreds of volunteers into the various fund-raising campaigns and allows them to smile in the face of adverse criticism from those less informed. These volunteers know that every dollar they bring in will help someone somewhere. And the tired feet and occasional disappointments are insignificant in comparison.

So has it been with the Cancer Crusade volunteers. They were fully aware that the funds they raised would be used for research in a cure of the dread disease; that a portion of the money would remain in the state and locality; that many thousands of dollars have already gone into research grants at University of Virginia Medical School; that sufficient funds would be used to educate the public on symptoms of cancer and the necessity of early treatment; and that other dollars would be used to unit to be loaned out or given, entirely free of charge, to cancer patients in the Virginia Beach area.

These are facts and reading them will undoubtedly make the average person more cognizant of the American Cancer Society's purpose. But only the cancer patients and their families can fully appreciate this organization and its works. For only those who have suffered—physically, emotionally and financially—from this disease can know the relief and assistance they have received from the dollars donated through this annual Crusade.

YOUNG SINGING TRIO DELIGHT HOTEL GUESTS

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Church Keys recently entertained at a lawn and beach party for the guests of the Marcha Washington Hotel in Virginia Beach, in a combination solo instrumental and guest participation song fest.

Master of Ceremonies Bobby Gibbons introduced the three members of the "Church Keys" who entertained with a series of folk songs and guest participation singing.

This group plays alternately at the Surf Rider, The Shadows, the Officers Club in Oceana and the Ranch House in Newport News.

The boys range in age from seventeen to eighteen years. Two are high school students, one a graduate of Virginia Beach High.

Jim Stanley originally came from Philadelphia, Pa.; Keith Ryan from White Plains, a resident of Virginia Beach for the past ten years; Mike Jenks, originally from San Francisco, Calif., a resident of Virginia Beach for the past three years.

Keith is seventeen years of age, and is a freshman at the University of Florida, majoring in pre-med. He is the son of Mrs. Virginia Ryan of Virginia Beach.

UCF Summer Drive Ahead Of Year Ago

VIRGINIA BEACH—The summer campaign of the United Communities Fund will end this week and results are already "way ahead of last year," Chairman J. R. Haden said today.

The summer campaign involves small businesses, hotels and motels and restaurants. Haden said that the Normandie Cafeteria was the first to report 100 per cent employee participation. Jimmy Kontopoulos, the owner, has long been an active UCF volunteer and the cafeteria has consistently had a 100 per cent participation.

The summer campaign will extend through this week but from the early reports already in it promises to far exceed last year's drive, Haden said.

The general solicitation will get underway here October 7.

Lead Roles Assigned By Theatre Group

VIRGINIA BEACH—Two performers in the Sandpiper Playhouse's final season have landed the lead roles in the Virginia Beach Little Theatre production of "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Jane Garrison, who sang the female lead in "Brigadoon," and Lt. Cmdr. George Snediker, the doctor in "Mr. Roberts," will star in the forthcoming play to be directed by Mrs. Chi Chi Lively.

The comedy will be presented Oct. 10-12 and 18-19 at the Little Theatre's Courtyard Playhouse on 17th Street, the newly decorated facility once known as the old Roland Theatre.

Many Sandpiper veterans also appear in the supporting roles in "Happy Birthday." Ann Pennington, Bud Fuller, Bob Maul, Alice Dubois, Shirley Festress and Foy Shaw.

Other supporting actors include Dee Dee Jessup, Bob Furniss, Billy Atwell, Judy Berna, C. W. Kennedy, Barbara Leitman, J. P. Harrison, Earl Knoche, Leonard Zittman, Tony Hyde and Pete Scoppa.

The 1963-64 season promises to be the most successful for the Virginia Beach Little Theatre in many years. More than 150 persons turned out recently for try-outs and the Courtyard Playhouse's informal open house.

Children's Home Drive Underway

VIRGINIA BEACH—The annual campaign for the Children's Home Society of Virginia got underway here September 3rd.

Mrs. R. Lawson Miles, Jr., and Mrs. M. Ward Cole, co-chairmen of the members of the society's State Board of Sponsors—Mrs. G. Bentley Byrd, Mrs. Richard M. Cooke, Mrs. Floyd H. Dornire, Mrs. Alfred L. Nicholson, Mrs. James P. Sadler and Mrs. L. Crawford Syer and Millard C. Butt and A. Gordon Stephenson.

Members of the Advisory Committee are: Mrs. Willard Aashburn, Mrs. Joel Carlson, Mrs. D. Gray Hodgson, Mrs. Sidney Kellam, Mrs. J. B. Maddrey, Mrs. H. P. McNeal, Mrs. George Newkirk, Mrs. David Shelburne, Mrs. Syer and Miss Dorothy Bratten.

Mrs. Miles asked everyone who can to contribute to the drive this year.

"Last year the society received 159 new babies," she said. "In spite of the greatly increased cost of caring for them, the society is having to turn away babies because of the lack of resources. Imagine how you would feel if you had to refuse help to a child who really needed that help. Your gift will help to give some homeless baby a real chance in life. Give generously from your heart."

BASKIN' IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

I am in favor of a world-wide movement. I do not expect to make a single dollar at it. To the contrary—I expect that I will make enemies of the entire male population. This does not bother me a great deal, since I am not crazy about the male population now, have never been, and have written a few (humorous) words about it. Now comes! That is another matter entirely!

I propose that beginning some day soon—say tomorrow morning—that the males stay home for about two weeks and do "woman's work" for a while. The females can go down to the office, or factory, or where the males work. I will guarantee that 99.999 percent of the males will holler "uncle" before the setting of the sun on the second day, and will from that day forward refrain from making remarks about how tough men have it in this world. In addition, they will not have any comments about the size of the food bill—since the swap will mean they'll have to do the shopping. No more male comments about "getting organized" when they're talking to wives. They will soon learn that you cannot organize a bloody nose or a skinned knee. No more lip from men about what a tough day they had at the office; when they've had to run that house, make those beds, wash those stinkin' dishes three times a day, and stop those fights between brothers and sisters. Compared to the average day of a housewife, the average man's day at the shop is the equivalent of a two week's vacation in the tropics.

I will lay eight to five that the first ones to scream for the paddy wagon will be those brawny, masculine types who stomp around bellowing at the women to get movin' and keep things organized.

After this two weeks is up the men can go on back down to the peace and quiet of the iron foundry—or steel mill—and get on with whatever was causing them such pain before The Day Of The Swap. I will guess that the employers will not hear as many gripes about working conditions, such fringes benefits and coffee breaks.

As a matter of fact, I wouldn't be at all surprised if the women would even want to come back to the household after lounging around for two weeks in the typical man's job. I figure that the employers will be sorry to see the dames go home and have to go back to having men complain about the killing pace of their jobs.

Oh well, it'll never happen. The fiction of the man earning the daily bread by the sweat of his brow must be maintained, I guess. Men have been getting away with this lie for about fifty centuries, and I guess you couldn't hope to change it over a two weeks period.

Interestin', ain't it??

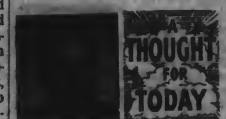

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

On behalf of the American Cancer Society, we wish to express sincere appreciation to the Virginia Beach residents for their support of the 1963 Cancer Crusade.

Our success depended upon the tireless efforts of many willing volunteers, as well as the response of our citizens in generous contributions.

It is a deep and abiding satisfaction to know that this splendid response will enable the American Cancer Society to take another step forward in the conquest of cancer.

"For the maintenance of peace, nations should avoid the pit-falls which forever consume them..."

This is sound, thoughtful advice today and very likely for centuries hence. Unfortunately, ours is a world where selfish efforts can quickly assume cataclysmic proportions. How to avoid these small but deadly pitfalls is something the author didn't touch upon, for the very simple reason perhaps that he himself may have been party to the pit-falls he warned against. The author? Napoleon.

Adm. Dempsey Gets Award

LITTLE ROCK — The annual Whiting Friel Foundation Award, presented to the officer of the year of the United States Air Force, was presented to Adm. Dempsey, the first recipient of the award. Adm. Dempsey, a member of the National Rifle and Pistol Matches, was presented the award by the Whiting Friel Foundation, 1200 North Main Street, Little Rock, Ark. The award is presented to the officer of the year of the United States Air Force, who has distinguished himself in the line of duty.

The letter of appreciation issued to Adm. Dempsey said in part, "as a progressive Naval Officer you have, in every situation, displayed a personal technical competence of exceptional excellence; an outstanding aptitude for transmitting your knowledge and skills to others; a sincere and abiding interest in the comfort, welfare and safety of your sailors; and, an extraordinary ability to arouse those who serve with you to a maximum effort—all of which has earned for you the deepest respect and admiration of subordinates."

The commendation went on to read, "Under your command, in war or peace, afloat or ashore, your officers, petty officers and seamen, have ever gained from you a sense of purpose, confidence and pride in their Service, for which they gratefully join in this token of recognition of your exceptional merit as a Leader of Men."

The unit is currently in the Mediterranean on an extended training cruise where the Marine Corps' most valuable weapon, the individual Marine, is being trained.

Hawks Rank Thinned To Low Point

VIRGINIA BEACH—The ranks of the Seahawk football team at Virginia Beach High School are thin these days, but Coach Carlton Bowyer continues to do the best with what he has although the prospects are dim for a winning season.

Latest count has the number out for football at 18 or 19 and hopes are that with the opening of school a few more candidates will don uniforms.

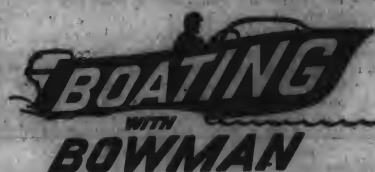

"We started out with 48 boys but too many outside activities have cut the squad to a dangerously low number," Bowyer commented.

Bowyer stated that if things continue along the lines they have so far it will be difficult to field a team for the season opener here against Ferguson on September 13.

The situation is so acute that the successful Bowyer is sincerely doubtful whether the Seahawks will be able to fulfill their schedule commitments this year.

"We have already lost our regular fullback by way of an injury," Bowyer said. He referred to Ship Morgan, who broke a bone in his foot and will be out of action for at least six weeks.

But, Coach Bowyer pointed out that they will keep going and do the best that can be done with the material at hand.

A TACHOMETER CAN BE A SKIPPER'S BEST FRIEND
BY HANK BOWMAN

Of all the instruments available to the power boatman, either inboard or outboard, the tachometer should rate in importance second only to the compass.

The tachometer measures the rate of engine rotation. Its readings are expressed in RPM—revolutions per minute. Reliance upon an accurately calibrated tachometer can contribute much to safe and economical powerboat operations.

Many boat owners rely wholly on water speedometers to determine distances covered for navigational purposes. Most water speedometers are accurate only in the higher speed ranges above 12 mph.

In fog or complete darkness no discreet skipper operates at high speed so the water speedometer is of little use to him during these crucial periods.

A tachometer is an extremely accurate measurement of engine speed and is reliable at every operating range of an engine.

However, to be of value as a navigational aid, the RPM reading must be translated into speed over and through the water. This means that the skipper must prepare two RPM-to-speed charts.

RPM at boat planing speed and at the same speed off plane will be different because the engine has to work harder when the boat is pushing through the water.

If, for example, a boat is known to come onto plane at 15 mph and holds its planing condition at 14 mph through to its peak speed, a chart must be prepared showing RPM at this and other planing speeds.

Since much of any boat's operation is done at non-planing speeds, this same boat helmsman must also provide himself with an RPM-to-speed chart from 1-16 mph.

Most local waterways have an accurately measured course. Several hours spent making runs with a stopwatch and working up RPM speed charts may spell the difference between getting back to port safely some night or floundering around uncomfortably and perhaps winding up on a reef or sand bar.

If a skipper knows the maximum RPM his engine or engines are capable of rotating in good condition, a sudden drop of maximum RPM will provide a warning that his engine no longer is offering full return for fuel dollars spent. Damage may have occurred to a propeller, an accumulation of bottom growth may be exerting an excessive drag on the boat, or the engine may need a tune up.

Every manufacturer rates his engines' horsepower at a specific RPM and specifies safe RPM ranges. An engine operated far in excess of maximum safe rated RPM for sustained periods can be seriously damaged.

The converse of this is also true. An overly large diameter or pitch propeller may prevent an engine from reaching its rated RPM. Though you bought a certain horsepower, your engine may not develop the horsepower you paid for. A tachometer can aid you in obtaining full dollar value.

Auto Group Reminds That Safety Needed

With an estimated 150,000 youngsters returning to Tidewater schools this month, the Tidewater Automobile Association today issued a 10-point check-list designed to prevent traffic accidents involving school-age children.

The AAA club said it is part of a nation-wide "School's Open" campaign conducted by the American Automobile Association. An estimated 100,000 posters, bumper strips and 35,000 table tents for restaurants will be distributed by the AAA and its clubs in promoting the "School's Open" campaign.

In Tidewater, the AAA club said it would distribute a total of 7,000 posters, 4,000 bumper strips.

Throughout the nation, some 4 million children out of a total of 46.8 million will be going to school for the first time. Emphasizing that last year 74 school children were killed in traffic accidents for every 100,000 persons, the motor club issued the following "School's Open" safety tips:

1. Local authorities should make certain that cross walks, particularly those around school areas, are clearly marked well before the opening of school.

2. Parents of youngsters attending school for the first time should familiarize themselves with the "safest route to school" and accompany their children to and from school for the first week or so.

3. Motorists are urged to observe closely the reduced speed limits in school zones. In many states, school zone speed limits are removed during the summer, and motorists sometimes forget to observe the lower limits when they are restored in the fall.

4. Parents should urge their youngsters to cooperate with the School Safety Patrols, who perform an indispensable service in accident prevention. Since the Patrols were organized in the early '20's, the traffic death rate for school-age children has been reduced by 50 per cent.

5. Advise your children to cross the street only at corners where they will be protected by traffic signals and the Safety Patrols.

6. Drive your youngsters to and from school only if absolutely necessary. Making the trip on their own can teach your children self-reliance.

7. Whenever possible, pool rides with neighbors to reduce traffic congestion around schools.

8. Do not double park in the school zone. This creates an accident hazard and prevents the orderly movement of traffic.

9. Advise your children to avoid playing in the street. Most schools provide safe playground areas with adult supervision.

10. Carefully observe the laws governing school buses.

The Tidewater Automobile Association emphasized that the major responsibility for child safety in traffic rests with the motorist.

"A playing child possesses an uncanny ability to concentrate on the task at hand. He has little time to watch for approaching cars. It is the job of the adult motorist to remain alert. The child's life you save could be your own," the club said.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1963

View Of Virginia Beach

By Doris Padrick

Lonesome? You don't have to be in Virginia Beach! There are friendly folks all about you. They may find you, but you can find them quicker, if you join in, join with, or join together.

The easiest and best place to start is with your church. Churches of every denomination have special study groups for adults, social groups for fellowship, and charitable groups for good deeds. You may not be sure of what you can or want to do, but here is where you are needed. A warm welcome awaits you. See you Sunday!

Your own neighborhood is your special little world which you like to keep friendly, clean, and orderly. Your neighbors want the same thing; that is why Civic Leagues were formed. If you haven't yet attended a meeting, plan to make the next one scheduled. Not only will you meet the people who live near you, you will also find stimulating ideas for improving the area, hear mutual problems discussed, get answers to some of your questions, and help plan parties to give you a social outlet. It's your neighborhood—don't leave the burden of caring about it up to only a few.

Garden Clubs are for the ladies. Garden just means taking everything to be beautiful in their yards, in their gardens, in their neighborhoods. There is a Garden Club in every neighborhood—there is bound to be one near you.

If politics fascinate you and you would like a clearer picture of the governing officials and their duties, there are the League of Women Voters, the Republican Women's Club and the Democratic Women's Club. They are always looking for members who are sincere in their desire to acquire knowledge and who will work hard for candidates of their choice, and to bring about legislation that is of benefit to all. Next time you go to the polls to cast a vote you will know why and what and who you are approving or disapproving.

Dependents of service personnel often arrive bewildered and scared. Help is as close as your telephone; the Officers Wives Clubs, the Navy Wives Clubs, the IAFRA stand ready to "take care of their own." When you become a member of any of these fine clubs, you can return the favors which were extended to you in your time of need...

Perhaps you are creative and need a chance to express yourself; the Little Theatre wants your support. Writers, painters, actors, workers and patrons are all eagerly sought after and gladly accepted. You don't have to be professional... just willing!

Sometimes all you desire is a chance to get away from it all... All right, how about bowling? Leagues are forming right now for every imaginable group. Can't get a babysitter? Take the little ones with you—free nursery care is provided. Not knowing how is no excuse; lessons are given free, too. Mornings, afternoons, and nighttime groups get together; young, old, middleage, girls, boys, men, women, couples—everybody bowls! Thunderbird, Plaza, and Bayshore all cater to your fancy. It's fun... and good exercise, too!

These are just a few. You can get a complete list at the Chamber of Commerce. (They have moved to the professional building at 25th and Pacific). You may know of a group that isn't listed, or you may want to form one, or perhaps you wonder if there is one—you may ask about it or tell about it through this column.

After all, you are among friends!

FIVE SCHOOLS WILL BE ON SPLIT SCHEDULE

VIRGINIA BEACH—Only five Virginia Beach schools will operate split shift classes as schools open today despite the largest enrollment ever experienced by the city's public schools.

And even the split shifts will be limited to first and second grade students.

The five schools operating on this split schedule are Bayside, Kempsville Elementary, Kempsville Meadows, Shelton Park and Woodstock. About 1,500 youngsters will be involved.

The total number of Virginia Beach public schools has been brought to 29 with the opening of two new elementary schools—Trantwood and Lynnhaven—this term.

More than 20,000 youngsters are expected to enroll today and this number may swell to 30,000 within the next few weeks. This is an increase of nearly 3,000 over last year's enrollment.

Even though schools will be involved in their busy routines, the Virginia Beach School Board will continue construction throughout the city in an effort to keep classroom space abreast with the rapidly increasing population.

A 19-classroom 3-wing addition to Virginia Beach High School and expansion of the cafeteria there is now underway and school officials hope it will be completed by mid-term.

An addition to Thalia Elementary is nearing completion and will probably be ready for students within the week.

Additions to Bettie F. Williams and Woodstock Schools are also well underway and should be completed by mid-term.

350 Expected At Baylake Pines School

BAYSIDE—About 350 students attended classes at the Baylake Pines Kindergarten and Grande School on opening day, Tuesday, September 3.

The school is operated by Rev. Elmer Boserman and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Boserman. It is located at 160 Treasure Island Dr., Bayside.

The attendance is slightly higher this year. The usual attendance is 325. The rise is attributed to an increase in kindergarten class which will be taught this year.

It was instituted because of an increased demand for schooling for the 5 and 6 year group. The school has classes through the 6th grade and next year it will have the 7th grade.

The school has a staff of 28 teachers.

Country Day Opens Monday

VIRGINIA BEACH—Country Day School for Girls will hold an orientation for new students Friday and classes will open to the entire student body Monday.

About 165 girls are enrolled this year. The normal attendance in past years has been about 120. The school is located at 36th Street and Atlantic Avenue and has classes from the 6th through 12th grades. Mrs. Charles M. Lovitt is headmistress.

Country Day and Norfolk Academy are planning a new campus and facilities near the site of proposed Virginia Wesleyan College on the Norfolk - Virginia Beach city lines. A fund-raising campaign will get underway this fall.

FRIENDS SCHOOL OPENING MONDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Friends School will open Monday with a near-capacity enrollment, the only vacancies being in the 6th and 7th grades.

Enrollment is expected to be between 180-190 students, a sizeable increase over last year's enrollment.

The school, located on Larkin Road near Linkhorn Park School, has classes from kindergarten through the seventh grade. Mrs. Robert Wilson is principal.

SUNNYBROOK DAY SCHOOL RE-OPENING

LYNNHAVEN—Sunnybrook Day School will open its doors today to about 200 youngsters enrolled for the nursery school through the second grade.

The school, located across Virginia Beach Boulevard from Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center, held open house Tuesday and Wednesday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. so that parents and students could meet the teachers.

CLUB COMPLETES SUMMER PROGRAM

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Cape Henry Club in the Americana Motor Lodge has concluded its summer schedule except for a few special events during September.

Dancing to the Newton Thomas Trio will be held this Saturday and Sept. 14 from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The bar will be open daily, except Mondays, at 8 p.m.

Small Talk

By Joe Small

Virginia Beach High School

Quite recently the executive council of Virginia Beach High School met to discuss both tentative and definite plans for the forthcoming school year. After a three hour session it was decided that an honor code should be created and presented to the student body directly after the opening of school. The chairmen of the standing committees for the homecoming were appointed, and it was decided that the current school rules should be reviewed and if necessary, revised. Several posters are being created by a talented young artist, Richard Bequist, which are aimed at inspiring cleanliness in the newly expanded school cafeteria. It was also proposed that an alternating seat should be adopted on the S.C.A. council for the most outstanding club of each semester. This seat will be first given to the Junior Civitan. A most important function of the S.C.A. has in past years been somewhat stagnated; however, the Inter-Club Council under the leadership of Barthelme is planned to become coordinated during the forthcoming year. The S.C.A. of Virginia Beach High School plans an active agenda for both itself and its student body in its 1963-64 session.

Currently Maury High School has been giving Oceanology courses for a very elite group of students—this group of 30 being chosen from applicants all over the state of Virginia. Professor Humma, director of this course, is during the regular school year, a student of Duke University. He recently visited East Thelberg, a student of Virginia Beach High School, to return with him to Duke's laboratory. East roomed there for one week while studying oceanology techniques which he one day plans to use himself.

A new club has recently been formed at Virginia Beach High School under the sponsorship of Virginia Beach Wheel Club. The Inter-Club Council consists of about 40 charter members—the temporary president being Paul de Witt. A meeting will be held early in September to elect new members and officers for the forthcoming year.

Cpl. Henson's citation read: While an instructor at the Battalion Field Training School, Camp Pendleton, Virginia Beach, Virginia, Cpl. Henson assisted the Virginia Beach Police in attempting to track three unidentified felons who had beaten and robbed a taxicab driver during the early morning hours of July 18, 1963.

For several hours, Cpl. Henson assisted the police but to no avail. However, he personally recovered very pertinent evidence pertaining to the case; evidence that will be used in prosecuting these individuals who have since been arrested and are now awaiting trial. During this period of duress, Cpl. Henson risked ambush and possibly his life.

Henson, a field training instructor, became involved in the incident when the taxicab driver entered the camp seeking assistance following the robbery.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Henson, he has served in the Marine Corps for three years.

Enrollment was expected to reach 170 in classes that start with kindergarten and run through the sixth grade.

Mrs. Arthur Jordan is headmistress of the private school located on Cavalier Drive in Linkhorn Park.

Merit Award Given Marine

NORFOLK—Marine Corporal Charles W. Henson, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, who risked ambush and possibly his life in assisting police in tracking down three robbery suspects on July 18, has been commended by the Virginia Beach Police Department and by his battalion commander.

Cpl. Henson was awarded a "Meritorious Medal" for his part in the search and eventual arrest of the suspects by the Acting Battalion Commander, Lieutenant Colonel J. M. Van Meter, August 23.

Knotts Island

FERRYBOAT SERVES AS SCHOOL BUS

BY BOB BALDWIN

KNOTT'S ISLAND—The world's most unusual schoolbus began ferrying students from this island community to their classes on the opposite side of Currituck Sound this week.

The 71-foot ferryboat, "Knotts Island", in its second year of service, provides a transportation link between the island and Currituck. Without the ferry service, 32 school-children, the sons and daughters of the island's North Carolina residents would have to travel about an hour by schoolbus to their classes in Currituck.

Linked to the North Carolina mainland by a causeway and straddling the Virginia - Carolina state line, Knotts Island is somewhat geographically isolated from its neighboring communities in both states.

About 10 per cent of its area lies within the city limits of Virginia Beach. The remainder is below the North Carolina line.

Only the North Carolinian children have the enviable opportunity of going to school by boat. The Virginia residents send their children to school at Onslow, in Virginia Beach.

Built in 1962 by the Wilson Shipyard in Wilmington, Delaware, the ferry serves primarily as a schoolbus. Nevertheless it is the most convenient means of traveling from Knotts Island to the county seat at Currituck.

Tourists and Tidewater residents out for a pleasure drive, especially during the summer months, find the boat trip a refreshing escape from the miseries of highway travel.

The "Knotts Island" is one of four such ferries operated free of charge by the North Carolina State Highway Commission to span some of the numerous inlets and bays that penetrate the coastal region.

According to her captain, Ralph Sears of Grandy, N. C., the "Knotts Island" has a four-foot draft, enabling her to navigate the shoal waters of Currituck Sound without much difficulty.

However, during the winter months he says it is not uncommon for a northern wind to shift water to the south, leaving less water in Currituck Sound than the boat needs in order to operate.

These low "wind tides" can be expected to stop ferry operations for about a month during the winter, Sears said.

Crossing time for the ferry is approximately 45 minutes. During the winter the ferry will operate five round trips a day.

The boat was designed by Naval Architect Harry W. Keeling, Jr. and will carry seven automobiles. She is 71 feet in length with a 28-foot beam and is powered by twin diesel engines with a combined 450 horsepower.

Winter schedule for the trip is as follows:

Leave Currituck at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. and at 12:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Leave Knotts Island at 7:30, 9:30, 11:30 a.m. and at 1:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Jaycees Take Over Local Radio For Day

VIRGINIA BEACH—Radio Station WBOF sounded different Sunday as members of the Virginia Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce took over the station's facilities for a day that included some witty ad-libbing, only a few goofs and a well-planned public presentation of the Jaycee program.

It was all part of the Jaycee Radio Day project. From early morning until dark the Jaycees manned the microphones and turn-table, prepared and read advertising copy and told listeners about their organization.

In live interviews between chapter president J. Fletcher Bryant and Jaycee members, many of the organizations projects were explained.

Throughout the day, members and their wives dropped by to say hello and stayed to read a commercial or two.

WBOF's general manager, Bill Gaspar, a Jaycee himself, complimented his fellow Jaycees on a job "well done" while nervously keeping an eye out for a visit from the FCC.

Revival Services To Start Sept. 9

HILLTOP—A series of evangelistic services will begin at First Colonial Baptist Church, 229 First Colonial Road, Virginia Beach, on September 9th. The services will begin at 7:30 each evening. They will continue through Sunday, September 15th.

Dr. C. Spurgeon Paschall, pastor of Belmont Baptist Church, Charlottesville, Virginia, will be the guest evangelist. Dr. Paschall was born in Kentucky, he received his education at the University of Tennessee, and at Southern Baptist Seminary. Pastor at Belmont since 1949, he is widely known in Virginia, and is in great demand for evangelistic work. His many friends in the area will welcome the opportunity to hear him again.

Special music each evening has been planned by Mrs. Mildred Bowman, church choir director. Congregational singing will be under the direction of Ray Morrison, of Kenneville Baptist Church. Ray Morrison, well-known to the Baptist Brotherhood organization for his ability at the piano, will play for the services. He is from Trinkle Baptist Church, Norfolk.

These services are the first such in the new building recently occupied by the congregation of First Colonial. Rev. George T. Stallings is the pastor.

Of Interest To Veterans

The President has just authorized the Veterans Administration to begin operation of facilities and beds to care for 200 nursing home type patients. This is a start in a direction leaders of veteran organizations have been advocating for a number of years.

The President said that older patients account for one third of VA hospital admissions and that they make up the bulk of the long-term patient load. He said that many have reached maximum medical benefit but cannot be placed in their communities because of lack of facilities, financial family ties, and other reasons. Keeping nursing care cases in VA hospitals is costly and places strain on the 125,000 beds now presently authorized by Congress.

No new construction was authorized. The VA is to convert existing facilities to gain experience in the operation of beds for patients requiring aid and attendance but little medical attention. If Virginia is allocated about 50 nursing care beds, there will be an average increase in beds for each area with a higher patient turnover.

Please visit my office on any day, or on weekdays, for information on the new program and the hours of operation.

William J. Gorman, Jr., assistant director of the VA Medical Center, Norfolk, will be in the office on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

A HARVEST OF FAITH

Plant a crop in deep, rich soil and you plant a crop that will flourish.

Something gives it life. Sun and rain, yes, and certainly rich, abundant soil... and yet, something more, something that gives it the ability to seek and use strength.

Someone gives US life... nourishing food, warm comfortable shelter, these help certainly. But still... something else. Our souls reach far below the surface of everyday existence to find our deeper faith in God's wisdom and power.

We place ourselves at His mercy. We seek Him often in prayer and worship, and "times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord."

Having found this fountain of faith, like the harvest, we point ever heavenward to share with others our discovery.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor in our lives for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither community nor civilization can survive. There are four small reasons why every person should attend services regularly and read your Bible daily.

Warm Weather—Soft Cookies!

Children expected? Oatmeal cookies are in order. And a party setting of some kind. Glass cups, holding red fruit-flavored gelatin "set on a slant" are the party "surprise." Stack a circus elephant pretzel-stick with these chewy oatmeal cookie rings. Use the stick to store the cookies as well as to serve them, because the recipe bakes up soft and tender, and the flavor seems to improve in the humid air of July. Breakfast cereals are excellent for ingredient use in recipes and make nutritional contributions of protein, important B vitamins, essential minerals, and food energy.

- Lemon Pecan Oatmeal Cookie Rings
- 1 cup sifted flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon soda
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 cup soft shortening
 - 1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
 - 1/2 cup granulated sugar
 - 1 egg
 - 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
 - 3 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1 1/2 cups rolled oats
 - 1/4 cup coarsely chopped pecans

Combine flour, soda, and salt; sift into large bowl of electric mixer. Add shortening, sugars, egg, lemon rind and juice. Beat at medium speed with electric mixer or by hand until smooth, about 2 minutes. Fold in rolled oats and pecans. Mix well. Turn level tablespoons onto well-greased baking sheet 2 inches apart. Make a hole about 1 inch in diameter in center of each cookie, using the back of a small spoon or the handle end of a washed wooden spoon. Shape into ring with fingers. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F) until done and lightly browned, 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from baking sheet at once and cool on wire rack. Yield: About 34 dozen cookies.

There's not many more weeks for outdoor entertaining before the Autumn leaves begin to fall—and I hope the following suggestions prove helpful — if you're planning to have a party.

A new twist can make a cold buffet more exciting to your guests. Set up an attractive arrangement of ingredients for sandwich and salad making and include a variety of two or three unusual salad dressings. For instance, sour cream blended with salad dressing mix provides a zesty accent for meat and a choice of two other distinctive dressings, freshly prepared, allows guests to help themselves according to personal preferences.

Saled and Sandwich Smorgasbord
Seasoned Sour Cream: Blend 1 envelope Italian salad dressing mix into 2 cups sour cream. Chill at least 3 hours to blend flavors. Makes 2 cups.

Onion Chiffonade Dressing:
Prepare 1 envelope onion salad dressing mix with vinegar, water, and oil as directed on envelope or self-measuring crust. Add 1 hard-cooked chopped egg, 3 tablespoons chopped cooked beef, and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Makes about 1 1/2 cups dressing.

Wine and Chive Dressing: Mix 1/4 cup vinegar and 2 tablespoons dry vermouth in self-measuring crust or in a jar with tight-fitting cover. Add 1 envelope Parmesan salad dressing mix. Cover and shake well. Add 1/2 cup salad oil and 1 to 2 teaspoons minced chive; cover, and shake again. Makes 1 cup salad dressing.

Sesame Dressing: Combine 1 envelope old fashioned French salad dressing mix with vinegar, water, and oil as directed on the envelope or self-measuring crust. Then add 2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds. Shake well. Makes 1 cup dressing.

Arrange platter of cold turkey, sliced roast beef (or other cold meats) with sliced artichoke hearts, pickles, carrot slices, tomato slices, alternated with sliced Bermuda onion, sliced cucumbers, and assorted salad greens. Slice fresh fry bread, pumpernickel, and Italian or French bread and arrange in bread tray.

This Tabasco health salad cup

As a luncheon salad, or as the first course for a company dinner, this is a dish aesthetically and gastronomically satisfying.

THE FIZZLE FAMILY

State Fair Will Offer New Events

RICHMOND — Midway attractions for the 1963 State Fair of Virginia have outgrown their own 40 double-length railway cars, so many units will have to travel overland by truck to appear here for the State Fair, September 20-24, in Richmond, J. A. Mitchell, General Manager, said today.

The Cetlin & Wilson "World on Parade" outfit has added many new attractions and will have every ride now being used in North America.

A big portion of the midway will be made up of attractions and riding devices just for children. The newest is the "Pink Elephant". It was designed and manufactured by Barney Corey, co-owner of Cetlin & Wilson Shows. There is only one in existence. Youngsters ride in safe bucket seats on the back of giant pink elephants, complete with big ears and long curling trunk.

Greatly enlarged for this year's tour, the midway boasts of more than 75 stellar attractions, including some never before seen locally.

These new attractions, plus the seasonal Sky Wheel, a regular feature of the midway, join with the old standby riding devices such as the Ferris Wheel, Merry-Go-Round, The A-Whirl and others to assure something for everyone. The Alpher ride continues to be quite popular.

For State Fair patrons who might desire a less strenuous form of entertainment than that provided by the rides, there's sure to be some show that will prove pleasing.

Red Marcus' "Club Trinidad" boasts new talent, new costumes and new settings while the "Star Dust Revue" is an all-new feature this year.

Of course, the fun house, circus side show, motordrome and other shows also offer diversified entertainment.

Double-header baseball games and double-header ice cream cones are commonplace anywhere but the double Ferris Wheel at the State Fair of Virginia remains quite a novelty. The Sky Wheel, as the double Ferris Wheel is called, is actually two wheels, one mounted atop the other. Each however, revolve independently of the other. The Sky Wheel towers some 90 feet in the air proving quite a spectacular feature of the Cetlin & Wilson Shows midway. While this novel attraction may be a feature of the "World on Parade" midway, it is far from being the only stand-out attraction. All told, Cetlin & Wilson Shows has more than 60 thrilling rides.

Movie Review

"THE MAIN ATTRACTION"
The many fans of Pat Boone and Nancy Kwan are in for a surprise when they see MGM-Seven Arts' "The Main Attraction," which opens Wednesday at the Beach Theatre.

For in this exciting emotional drama, set against a backdrop of a small traveling Italian circus, both Boone and Miss Kwan make a complete about-face from their previous characterizations.

Boone abandons his scrubbed-face role to play a cynical young American drifter in leather jacket and jeans, while Miss Kwan leaves behind her Oriental roles of "Suzie Wong" and "Flower Drum Song" to portray an Italian girl who rides bareback in a trick horse act.

Also playing leading roles are Swedish star Mai Zetterling, who recently scored opposite Peter Sellers in "Only Two Can Play," Yvonne Mitchell, Kieron Moore and John Le Mesurier. Filmed in Motocolor, the picture was directed by Daniel Petri and was written and produced by the noted Broadway playwright, John Patrick.

While "The Main Attraction" features the famed Boone vocal-

MARINE BEAUTY... Chris Noel will be a "floating regular" in "The Lieutenant," new TV series starting in mid-September. Florida-born Noel will be seen in a different role each week.

SOPHIA TWISTS... Animated by a dancing teacher and a glass of water, sultry film star Sophia Loren makes the twist in dance from TV program "The World of Sophia Loren."

Good behavior gets a lot of credit that really belongs to the lack of nerve.

OUTDOOR LIVING

Summer is the time for outdoor living. Every yard, small or large, has potential space for an attractive outdoor living area. Unfortunately, too many homeowners lack vision in developing useful and attractive outdoor areas. A well-developed outdoor space can provide opportunities for family relaxation, outdoor eating, entertaining guests, and recreation. Utilizing the outdoors adds room to your house.

The outdoor living center may be a patio attached to the house, a screened porch, or a special area developed somewhere in the garden, perhaps in the shade of a large tree. To be effective, the outdoor room should have suitable furniture.

Around the perimeters of this room, partitions are often needed for privacy. These can be hedges, shrub borders, walls, or fences. Outdoor living is not too enjoyable if the neighbors can see everything that is going on. In addition to privacy, the enclosing material provides a structural framework which helps create a pleasing overall design.

Shade is another important consideration. It can be provided by shade trees or wood or metal structures. Extension of the house into the garden by extending the roof is another possibility.

Developing outdoor space that is useful and serves the needs of the family is important, but consideration also should be given in developing an attractive design. From the sitting area, the overall view should be attractive. Development of a focal point gives more meaning to the outdoor living area. The eye may be directed to a distant view, a bird bath, a pool, an attractive flower border, a specimen tree, or a structural element like a seat or arbor.

The living area should be planned so that plant material is varied and interesting during various seasons of the year. This is especially true if the area is visible from rooms of the house. In the winter, select shrubs and trees with colorful bark, evergreen foliage, or colorful fruit. During the rest of the year vary selections of flowers, shrubs and trees so that you can create interest throughout the seasons.

Control of weather in the living area helps to extend the length of time it can be used. Shade trees screen the sitting area from hot sun. Windbreaks often cut off some of the fall wind and extend the length of time the area can be used. Garden pools help give a cooling effect in the summer.

The development of an attractive living area requires careful planning and know-how. A plan or blueprint should be developed. For best results, consult the help of a landscape architect or a nurseryman trained in landscape design. For those who choose to develop their own design, it would be advisable to do some studying first. Good ideas can be found in garden magazines. You may contact me or write the VPI Extension Mailing Room, Blacksburg, Virginia, and ask for Bulletin, 217, "Design of the Home Ground."

SUMMER LANDSCAPE TIPS

During September home gardening often is at a low ebb, because of heat and drought. Nothing seems to grow but weeds. However, there are summer landscape jobs that need to be done and should not be neglected because of this laziness.

Annuals, important for providing color, often begin to look poor during the middle of the summer, so it is important to keep the following in mind:

1. Annuals require a good deal of moisture. They must be watered thoroughly during a dry period by moistening the soil to a depth of 4" to 6". Mulching helps to conserve moisture.

2. Cut off faded flowers to prevent seed production. If the plant is allowed to grow the seed, its flower production period will be shortened.

3. Annuals may be rejuvenated by cutting the plant back drastically. This will encourage new growth which will flower and produce a new display of color.

4. Mildew is often troublesome in late summer. Keeping the plants covered with a fungicide will help to prevent this from becoming a major problem. Fungicides must be applied at the first signs of mildew.

5. Tall-growing annuals should be staked to prevent damage from heavy winds or rains.

Pruning of shrubs needs to be considered. Take time to look over your trees and shrubs to see whether they need to be pruned to restrict their size and improve their appearance. The greatest error in pruning is to delay too long in controlling the form and size of young plants. Light pruning of evergreens and broadleaf evergreens can be done during the summer. The ultimate size desired for each plant in the landscape should be decided. This allows one to start pruning soon enough to prevent plants from getting too large for the space and prevents crowding of plants. Once the shrub becomes too large, it is difficult to reduce it to the desired size and shape without its looking butchered.

Old wood in deciduous spring blooming shrubs like lilac, forsythia, spirea, and weigela can be removed now by thinning out some of the older stems. Make the cuts close to the ground. Delay pruning of summer-blooming shrubs until fall or early spring.

Another important element in summer landscaping work is the lawn. Late summer is the ideal time to start a new lawn or to renovate an old one. Just before cool weather is a good time to fertilize lawn grasses. For complete details on lawn establishment and maintenance, ask for Circular 818, "Turfgrass Guide for Lawns and Other Turf Areas".

AUTO CHASE ENDS
IN DEATH FOR TWO

VIRGINIA BEACH — A high-speed auto chase ended with the death of two young servicemen early Saturday when the car in which they were riding skidded into a field and crashed into a tree.

Killed were Hoyal C. Amos II, 18, a Marine stationed at the Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth, driver of the car, and Frank S. Harris II, 19, Navy radioman second class also attached to the shipyard.

Both were dead when police officer Ronald Sawyer arrived at the scene of the crash about 12:30 a.m.

Police said Amos was being pursued for speeding as he traveled south on Rosemont Road at speeds which exceeded 100 miles per hour. The pursuing police car dropped from the chase momentarily as the cars approached the Holland Road (formerly Holland-Swamp Road) intersection to call for help.

Police said Amos must have slammed on his brakes as he saw the intersection, where Rosemont Road ends.

His car skidded 45 feet across Holland Road and into a field where it travelled 240 feet in a straight line to one of several pine trees in a fence row.

Lt. R. J. Hickey said, "The car was cut nearly in half and wrapped around a tree. They had to cut it off in pieces."

Hickey said Amos apparently saw the stop sign at the end of Rosemont Road at the last minute. Skid marks started there.

The deaths brought to 24 the total of traffic fatalities in Virginia Beach so far this year. There were 28 persons killed here in traffic accidents last year.

The bodies of Amos and Harris were taken to Simile Funeral Home.

PACC Offers
Theft Info

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Princess Anne County Club has offered a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest of vandals who broke into the 10th tee refreshment stand last week and attempted to burn down the building.

Club Manager Roy M. Niel said that the stand was broken into sometime Wednesday night and several cases of beer and boxes of cigars were stolen.

He said the vandals also set fire inside the building by piling paper and pine straw on top of the tea cream cabinet and lighting it. The blaze burned through the ceiling and fell inside the refreshment stand.

"This saved the entire building from burning down," Niel said. The refreshment stand was badly damaged, by smoke and scorching, he said. The exact amount of damages was not known but he said it would probably amount to "several hundred dollars."

The Naval Aviation Information Office of the Norfolk area has announced the assignment of petty officers, Charles Stout, YN1, and Tom Binns, YN2, to the Virginia Beach area for the purpose of explaining the Naval Air Reserve programs now offered to Navy veterans along with college and high school men.

Several of the aviation officer and enlisted programs enable qualified men to remain in school while being affiliated with the Navy, learning a specific trade prior to entering their required active duty period. There are also openings at this time, in the Naval Air six-month program.

For further information or personal visits in the home by these representatives, call MA 2-8211, EXT 4063 OR 2041.

These officers of the local Elks Lodge may appear relaxed, but they are putting forth some powerful "brain power" in planning the Annual Rodeo and Fall Festival this week-end. Art Auction
To Benefit
Palsey Victims

VIRGINIA BEACH — The local affiliate of Parent Council of United General Palsey will sponsor an art auction November 30 to raise money for the organization's scholarship fund.

The auction will be held in the recreation center of Star of the Sea Catholic Church.

Art to be sold will be the original works donated by many Tidewater artists. An exhibit of the art will be held prior to the auction.

The Scholarship Fund sponsors handicapped children for the Development and Day-Care Center in Norfolk and makes it possible for these children to attend the day camp held at Camp Civitan during the summer months.

The auction will be held in conjunction with the annual Scholarship Bazaar for the Handicapped and will be under the direction of Miss Betty Crawford, a Virginia Beach artist.

Further information may be obtained by calling 428-2083 or 428-1905.

BRIDGE-TUNNEL MOTEL TO BE PRIVATELY BUILT

BAYSIDE — The Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel Commission disclosed today that it is considering a proposal to have an outside organization build and operate a restaurant and/or motel on one of the crossing's four man-made islands.

The Commission would enter into a long term agreement to lease space on the island in return for a percentage of the facility's gross receipts. J. Clyde Morris, Commission Executive Secretary, said.

Any such structure probably would be located on the south island of Thimble Shoal channel nearest the mainland, Morris said. It would have to meet design requirements set by the Commission.

Several groups are interested in making proposals, Morris indicated. "Some of these are purely local, some are Virginia organizations, and some are national chains," he said.

The Commission official said one group proposes a 100-room motel and a 150-seat restaurant. He estimated that such a building would entail construction costs of "at least $1,500,000." Space requirements would dictate a six or seven story building built to straddle the inclined roadway ramp leading down from the island into Thimble Shoal tunnel.

The bridge-tunnel's consulting engineers say each of the four man-made islands will provide parking space for approximately 215 cars. The engineers have been asked to determine the best method of controlling traffic movement between the island and the high-speed cross-water highway. Another factor entering into any island use decision is the availability of an adequate water supply.

Morris emphasized that no island installations will be allowed to interfere with the bridge-tunnel's primary function as a transportation facility.

Feature attraction of the festival will be the six Rodeo Events by the stars of the Southeastern Rodeo Association. Performances will be given Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In addition, a parade is scheduled Saturday morning when mounted girl scouts, stage coaches, covered wagons, buckboards, cowboys, Indians, military units, civic clubs and thirty or more Tidewater horsemen will march up Atlantic Ave. between 16th and 31st Streets.

Elks will sell balloons, popcorn, flags and all the other paraphernalia needed to create a festive atmosphere.

W. M. "Colonel" Crim, festival chairman, has announced a buffet and dance will be held Saturday night at the Cavalier featuring a menu of gourmet items and dancing under the stars.

At the Sunday rodeo performance, Mayor Frank A. Dusch will present Bill Dana with a Freedom Seven tie clasp and will welcome him to Virginia Beach.

Survey Cards
Area Farmers

VIRGINIA BEACH — Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr., announced today that several farm-ers-patrons on Rural and Star Routes will receive 1963 Agriculture Survey cards from their carriers sometime during the week of September 16.

Your Post Office assists the Department of Agriculture each year in making this and two other surveys.

Acres cards returned by farmers to their carriers will be mailed directly to the Virginia Crop Reporting Service in Richmond. Information from each card, if properly reported, will then be tabulated and combined with other reports to give indications of changes in acreages of crops harvested. Using these facts estimates for the Old Dominion's principal crops will be made. Other surveys provide the Crop Reporting Service with information on yields. From these estimates the outcome and probable size of each of the 1963 crops will be determined.

So, if next week you find in your mail box a buff colored card having ten closely-punched holes along the top, don't put it aside. Postmaster Crosswhite urges that you fill out the card and return it to your carrier. This is important since only a given number of farmers will receive these cards. And your community will be represented according to the number of cards returned.

Incidentally, the ten holes at the top of the card are used to set the cards up for speedy totaling in the office of the Virginia Crop Reporting Service.

Carriers helping with this survey are:

Ernest M. Seneca, Jr., Rt. One, Princess Anne.

Virginia McManan, Rt. Two, Princess Anne.

Mildred D. Whitehurst, Rt. One, Back Bay.

Marion G. Bright, Route Four, Virginia Beach.

Arthur E. Litchfield, Star Rt. 5, Virginia Beach.

The show will be seen locally on Sunday nights on Channel 10.

The festival will get underway with Friday night's rodeo performance, honoring the military men stationed in and around Tidewater. Military representatives will be greeted by Joan Ewell—Miss Virginia Beach of 1963 and Nettie Saled—Miss Norfolk 1963.

The rodeo events will present the added attraction of Bryant

Pace, one of Tidewater's outstanding horsemen and rope artists in a riding and roping performance with his horse, "Dan".

Baton artist Kathleen Peirce will also perform.

Rodeo performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday night and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Frontier City.

Saturday's parade will begin at 10 a.m. starting at 18th St. and Atlantic Avenue.

The buffet dinner will be held at the Cavalier Hotel from 7:30 to 9 p.m. with dancing from 9:30 at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club.

Rodeo tickets are available at $1.50 per person and for the dinner and dance at $12.00 per couple.

BURGLARS ROB

BAYSIDE — Burglars entered the office of the Shore Drive-In Movie Theatre and escaped with more than $1,000 in late Saturday or early Sunday.

An investigation of the case was made by detectives H. L. Lusk and C. Payne of Virginia Beach Police.

Red Cross To Stress Swim Training Plan

ARAGONA — Alarmed by a rash of child drownings early this summer, the Virginia Beach Chapter of the American Red Cross taught over 2,000 youngsters to swim, or at least to overcome their fears of the water and to obey safety rules.

The chapter was given the use of the Tidewater Swim Club pool where classes were held from 9 a.m. until sundown. "We held classes until it got too dark to see," said Mrs. Joyce Phillips, instructor in charge of the program.

Three paid employees took part in the program but Mrs. Phillips said "we couldn't have done it without the help of volunteer workers." The volunteers included eight from nearby military and 18 Red Cross Volunteers. Three employees of the City Recreation Department also worked with the project.

"We realized with this many children not all of them would learn to swim, but we did stress water safety," Mrs. Phillips said. In addition to personal safety the children received instruction in elementary rescue.

The children were taught never to jump into the water to save another person unless they are qualified for that type of rescue. Instead, Mrs. Phillips said, they learn to reach the victim with a pole or some other object or to seek further help from somebody who is qualified. "Two drownings are worse than one," she observed.

Each child in the program received 10 hours of instruction at the pool. There were no free swim periods, just classes.

In addition, 30 people received senior lifesaving training and 85 received junior lifesaving. The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad visited the pool and provided demonstrations of resuscitation techniques.

"We didn't realize at the start how many children would take part in it," Mrs. Phillips said. "There were more than we could handle and we had to turn a lot of them away."

Mrs. Nancy Batchelder, chairman of the water safety program said that the Red Cross chapter here has received many letters from parents expressing gratitude for the training their children received.

"The number that participated this summer shows the need for more pools where we could carry on our program," she said. "We are practically surrounded by water in this area. With so many places where children could drown, it would be wonderful if there were more places where we could teach them how to stay alive."

They were John B. Smith, Golf Ranch and Mariner Motel; Sidney Kellam, Holiday Sands; and Albert Greenspoon, Ocean Ranch.

TEEN TOPICS . . .

By Lucy Selden

Asst. Home Demonstration Agent

Tired and worn out—How often we hear this phrase in commercials! Well I thought it might be a good headline too since I have a suggestion for improving this undesirable condition!

Are you heavier than you would like to be—do you find yourself irritable?

Next question—do you skip breakfast? If you do, or if you fail to eat what constitutes a good breakfast, this may be the reason for the problems I have just mentioned.

Why don't you eat breakfast? Is it because you don't like it—haven't got the time to eat—aren't hungry. All of these reasons are commonly given. But there are ways to overcome a skittish breakfast.

Be smart and be your best by eating right. Why do people keep talking about eating something as exciting as breakfast? Just think at a few facts and you too will be interested in a better breakfast.

What is important to you—your looks, your personality, your school work, your future. All of these things suffer with the lack of a good breakfast. Here is your proof straight from scientific research:

1. "When you eat an adequate breakfast, you can turn out more work during the late morning hours, you are quicker in your reactions, and you do not tire as easily."
2. "When breakfast is skipped, your work output is less, mental reactions are slower, and muscular fatigue increases."
3. "Eating an adequate breakfast does not mean you will gain weight, nor does skipping breakfast mean you lose weight, provided the day's total calories remain constant."

And most important for you girls to remember is that during your teenage years your body stores up the nutrients that your children will need. So, if your eating habits are bad now you are taking a chance on the good health of your children. It is almost impossible to get the nutrients you need without eating a good breakfast.

If you find breakfast uninteresting try some variety. Eat something you like. Plan with your mother about some of the things you would like to have.

I know, to say "Eat a good breakfast" is easier said than done. There is no reason why your breakfast has to be elaborate or time consuming.

How much you need to eat is determined by you, but, the types of things you need to include are very important. Include fruit or juice, breakfast cereal that is either whole grain or enriched, milk, bread, butter or margarine. Many people also include eggs and breakfast meats, but these can be gotten in other meals throughout the day.

Here are some breakfast ideas you might like to try that are different and good!

PEANUT BUTTER WAFFLES

- | | |
|-----------------------|-------------------------|
| 1/4 cup shortening | 1/4 cup sugar |
| 1/2 cup peanut butter | 2 cups milk |
| 2 cups Pancake Mix | 2 eggs |
| | 1/4 cup chopped peanuts |

Melt shortening and peanut butter together; mix well. Place all ingredients (except peanuts) in bowl; beat with rotary beater until fairly smooth. Stir in peanuts. Pour batter onto hot waffle iron. Bake waffles until steaming stops.

To freeze waffles, cool thoroughly; wrap in foil. Freeze immediately. To serve, unwrap and heat in toaster. Serve hot with butter and honey. Makes 5 servings.

RAISIN SPICE OATMEAL

Stir 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg and 1/2 cup raisins into boiling salted water before adding oats. Cook as usual.

OMELET with CRANBERRY SAUCE

For 4 servings prepare a plain omelet by beating together just until well combined 6 eggs, 1/4 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt and pepper to taste. Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in skillet; pour in egg mixture and cook over low heat. When done, turn onto serving platter folding omelet in half; put cranberry sauce in center and over top. Good, too, with strawberry or cherry preserves or orange marmalade.

BANANA MILK

Mash 1/2 banana, add 1 egg, 1 cup milk and 1 tablespoon sugar. Beat until well blended; pour into a tall glass; sprinkle with cinnamon. Choose from the fruit and bread groups to complete menu.

Do try eating breakfast. Don't kid yourself—it makes a big difference so play it smart.

Debutantes Feted With Luncheon

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Walter L. Stone and Mrs. William E. Stone entertained Thursday at a luncheon in honor of three of Portsmouth's newest debutantes.

The guests of honor were Misses Ernestine Kate Boyce, Kate Hawks Stern and Susan Tucker Hawks.

Nothing is more surprising than the fact that few citizens concern for some facilities in the nation than do those of numerous states.

Most dangerous and the heaviest, the heaviest and worst of these things—yellow jacket, house and toilet.

If treated by a bee or wasp, it is best not to flail at the insect, but rather to walk away slowly, not run. The insect tends to attack moving things and dark clothes, hats, all sorts and perfumes are attractive to them.

This is a good time to mention that in the matter of bee stings or insect bites of any nature you will find relief in the numerous varieties of BARK'S REMEDY PHARMACY. An Open Letter To All Parents:

Dear Parent:

If you have a child in your home this letter is especially important to you.

At the beginning of a new school term, you, as a parent, and we as ophthalmic practitioners should be particularly concerned with the vision of our children. A recent report from the Better Vision Institute points out the need for this concern with statistics that show that one out of every four children today needs eye care or a new prescription.

Periodic eye examinations are important to the well-being of every child. They should be as routine as other aspects of health care. Only through regular professional eye care can a child's visual problem be determined at an early stage and the necessary steps be taken to correct it before it gives rise to other and often greater problems.

If your child has not had professional eye care recently, we urge you to make an appointment now for him to have a complete eye examination. Good vision as he starts the school year can be his most important asset.

We owe this to our children.

DUCK SEASON RUNS 50 DAYS; LIMIT THREE

A 50 day duck season with a daily limit of three was selected by the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries following a public meeting in Richmond August 24, the season to begin at noon (EST) November 16 and end January 4. This is an increase of one duck in the daily bag over last year's season. In addition to the regular bag limit, hunters will be allowed 2 scaup daily.

A 10 day increase in the goose season as granted by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service was accepted by the Commission

The daily duck bag of 3 is further restricted in that it may not include more than 1 hooded merganser, 2 wood ducks, or two mallard and black ducks combined. The possession limit of 6 which applies to birds taken on more than one day may include 2 hooded mergansers, 2 wood ducks and 4 mallard or black ducks combined. Hunters may also possess 4 scaup in addition to the above limit. Hunters cannot legally have more than one day's bag limit with them while in the fields, forests or waters of the State.

The limit on other waterfowl which may be taken during the duck season include 8 coots daily and 16 in possession and 5 American and red breasted mergansers combined daily and 10 in possession. These are in addition to the regular duck limits.

With this coming bag seasons only weeks away, the Game Commission reminds hunters that it is time to dust off last season's trophies and prepare to enter them in the Commission sponsored Big Game Trophy Contest. This year's final competition is slated for 8 p.m., November 2 in the Municipal Armory at Newport News. Entries must be received by 5 p.m. of that day to be eligible.

Before being eligible for statewide competition, trophies must be first entered in the appropriate regional contest. The Western Regional Contest for animals killed West of the Blue Ridge will be held October 17, 18 and 19 at the National Guard Armory in Harrisonburg. Prizes for Western regional winners in all deer classes (no bear) will be provided by the Harrisonburg-Rockingham County Izaak Walton League, sponsors of the Western Contest.

Eastern competition will be held November 2 at the Municipal Armory, 2900 Warwick Boulevard, Newport News. The Virginia Peninsula Sportsman's Association will sponsor the event and provide prizes for winners in all classes. Animals entered must have been killed East of the Blue Ridge.

Classes for state and regional competition include Class I, Nine points or more; Class II, seven to eight points; Class III, six points or less; Class IV, Bow and Arrow; and Class V, open bear Division (Eastern and state contests only). The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries will provide trophies for state winners and certificates of Merit for runners up.

Details on the Western Regional Contest can be obtained from Kermit Dovel, 955 South High Street, Harrisonburg. Entry procedure and further information on the Eastern and State Contests may be obtained from W. R. Harris, 4 Greenland Drive, Tabb. Entries will be judged on a modified version of the Boone and Crockett System.

Travel From East To West

There is plenty of room for differences of opinion over the proposals President Kennedy has made to slow the outward flow of our fast-diminishing gold reserves—proposals which covered a wide territory indeed. The most controversial is the suggestion that a special tax be placed on U. S. investments made abroad. In all likelihood, any resulting short-term benefits would be offset and more by discouraging this form of investing, thus weakening our general fiscal strength and competitive ability in world markets.

The proposal that steps should be taken to increase the number of foreign visitors coming to this country falls into a very different category. There should be no dissension as to that. A start has been made, in the form of U. S. tourist bureaus in the principal foreign countries, which present our attractions to the prospective traveler and provide him with needed information and advice. But much more needs to be done. The amounts spent by Americans going abroad outweigh by a great margin the amounts foreigners spend here, and the gold reserve shows that adverse effect.

This is no small matter, now that the jet age, in which we can travel almost anywhere in a matter of hours in complete comfort and at tremendous speeds, is upon us. In this country foreign travel, once the pleasure of the few, is becoming the province of the many. The hope is that, ultimately, this will become the case abroad, and that lira, pounds, francs, marks, shillings and the other currencies will be exchanged for dollars to be spent here in ever-rising amounts.

Stimulation of travel from East to West should be attempted at once. Certainly, in this the Congress will go along with the President's ideas.

National Bible Week—1963

The Holy Bible continues to be, as it has been for many generations, the best seller of all books published in this world.

In helping to further an interest in a reading and study of the Great Book, the Laymen's National Committee, Inc. asks that we set aside the week of October 21st through 27th and recognize it as National Bible Week. This year marks the 23rd in a long and auspicious line of Bible Week observances. A timely theme has been chosen: "The Bible—Symbol of Unity."

When we speak of unity in conjunction with the Bible it can mean but one thing—the joining together of all faiths in a drive to bring peace and understanding to all men in today's troubled world.

Let the Bible be a symbol of unity, both in family and nation.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, Sun-News:

Dear Sir,

After spending two weeks and coming into the last week of a vacation in St. Petersburg Beach, Florida, I have had a chance to compare this area with Virginia Beach. Both are beach cities and both cater to sun and beach worshipping vacationers.

In St. Petersburg you notice immediately the cleanliness of the streets and buildings, the dramatic tastefulness of the lighting at night, the never-ending improvements and repairs of the streets, the constant mowdown of new structures. Very few buildings look shabby. Even the private lawns are well-kept. It has been told to me that any homeowner who allows his grass to become unkempt is liable to find a crew of city men cutting his grass and subsequently receive a bill for services rendered.

The beauty and grandeur of this ambitious city is a tribute to its citizens, many of whom are senior citizens and retirees. Foresight and aggressiveness is not confined to youth when you see the sprawling, growing magnificence of this city.

In the early spring the major baseball clubs come down for their spring training. Why in St. Petersburg? For one thing it has a good ballfield. The ball clubs are only charged for lights, maintenance, etc. for the use of the ball park. This sum amounts to approximately $7500. Then the City Council pays the club the same amount to bring their teams down for practice. A losing proposition? Not with over a million dollars worth of press releases and advertising that issues from this city to all parts of the world. Why even if a major ball player withdraws a signed article while in training it makes news over the world under a St. Petersburg headline.

We in Virginia Beach would love to emulate our city. We need more improvements. Our buildings need modernization. Many of them should be torn down and replaced by new structures. Our city is being done but it is a slow pace. In the race for better supremacy we need industry, defense, easier capital and new jobs. We have the sand, the lakes, the forests and the sun. Let's give them something to be proud of again.

ALL THURGOOD

(Faith vs. Skepticism)

There probably was never a time in world history when man was subjected to as many unfortunate experiences, capable of weakening his faith and tainting his nature with skepticism. Skepticism is a sort of satanic tool designed to ruin a man's faith. We all know that faith in our fellow man and faith in God is a prerequisite to security and happiness. To lose faith is to lose one's most valued spiritual possession.

We would do well to reevaluate our present-day living philosophy and try to come up with a program of remedial practices, designed to untangle our many frustrations. It is of vital importance that we Americans learn to trust one another. We cannot hope to help our less fortunate neighbors, unless we first gain the faith and confidence of each other.

We have drifted so far apart in our concern for one another's well being, that we must plan in some way to rectify this condition. We still have a shadow of concern left, but it is far from the real thing. We mail cards that are prefabricated and toss coins, in as if it were an accepted practice of the times. The coins we toss to the needy cause, have a clatter that rings of shallowness.

My reaction to such pretense reminds me of a song title—"But Where Is Your Heart?"

I truly believe that if all the presently formed clubs, societies, and organizations, would take up "The Battle Cry," against skepticism, our faith in one another would grow stronger. It's worth a try!

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir: How regretfully we leave Virginia Beach at the end of each annual summer vacation you'll never know. To us, Virginia Beach means more and gives more pleasure and healthful recuperation each year. And each year we note and take pride in the increasing improvements of all kinds.

One thing we would like to suggest, if we are not too bold to do so—

Drought Help To Va. Farmers At $40,000

Drought benefits totaling between $30,000 and $40,000 per month are being provided farmer patrons of Southern States Cooperative in Virginia, hard hit by the summer drought. W. T. Steele, the cooperative's general manager, reported in Richmond this week.

Steele's statement came as he announced that the cooperative would continue price reductions, in effect since early summer, on three important dairy and beef feeds, at least through September and is asking its local retail outlets in Virginia to supply Southern States Abruzzi or Balbo rye seed at their actual delivered cost during the fall season.

In addition to the feed and seed price reductions, Southern States is purchasing hundreds of carloads of hay from other parts of the country for shipment into the state and adjacent drought-stricken areas, rendering this distribution service at out-of-pocket cost. More than 800 carloads have been purchased for shipment to date.

The Southern States distribution system is also cooperating 100 per cent, Steele said, in assisting with and handling the government corn being made available to Virginia farmers at reduced rate under the drought emergency program.

Rye, which gives quick crop growth with a reasonable amount of rainfall, is excellent, Steele said, for providing extra grazing for livestock during the fall season, after growth of regular pastures has stopped.

Earlier in the summer, the cooperative slashed prices on two varieties of sudan grass, recommended as excellent for providing supplementary grazing for dairy cows and other livestock.

The reductions in feed and seed prices, the service on hay and the assistance on other programs, the Southern States general manager pointed out, are in line with the cooperative's philosophy and objective of rendering such special services to farmers during emergency periods such as have prevailed in Virginia and adjacent states since spring. The farmers who own and control Southern States, Steele said, are thus providing extra benefits for themselves at a time when such benefits are most needed.

Heart Group Has Answers To Questions

NORFOLK—Is marriage advisable for those with heart condition?

Can first attacks of rheumatic fever be prevented?

Are there usually warnings before a heart attack occurs?

Your Tidewater Heart Association states that these are some of the questions which are posed—and answered—in a new booklet issued this week by the American Heart Association and its affiliates. Titled "Questions and Answers about Heart and Blood Vessel Disease," it is designed to bring the latest available information about the cardiovascular diseases to the public, and to allay needless fears and anxieties.

The answers to the questions above, taken from the booklet, are:

Most people with heart conditions can marry. However, a physician's advice should be asked before a woman with a heart condition becomes pregnant. With proper medical supervision, most women with heart disease can bear children safely.

Yes—Prompt and thorough treatment of strep infections with penicillin or other antibiotics, over a 10-day period, usually can prevent development of rheumatic fever.

Yes. The majority of people have had earlier attacks of heart pain and other symptoms of heart disease.

In lay language, the booklet describes the major types of heart diseases (atherosclerosis, coronary artery disease, high blood pressure, and what strokes, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease, congenital heart defects, peripheral vascular diseases), their symptoms, treatment and general prognosis.

It also tells what to do in case of heart attack, how to recognize symptoms, what can be done for high blood pressure, and what is known about the relationship between diet and heart disease.

"Questions and Answers About Heart and Blood Vessel Disease" is available from the Tidewater Heart Association, 702 Duke Street, Norfolk, Virginia, at no cost.

Laws Honored With Shower

THOROUGHGOOD — Mrs. H. W. McDermott Jr. held a miscellaneous shower Thursday night at her home in Thoroughgood in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Law, III who were recently married.

The rooms were decorated with pink and white summer flowers. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. W. F. Miller and Mrs. McDermott.

About 30 guests attended. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dixon of Norfolk. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Law, Jr. of North Atlantic, Virginia Beach.

The couple are residing in Norfolk and attending Old Dominion College.

as a result have helped to bring improved cultivation, woodlot and pasture management to about 47% of the agricultural land in Virginia Beach.

Benefits of the improved farm operation methods extend far beyond the individual farm fences and into the distant future, Mr. Dudley believes. Most of the conservation improvements on land in Virginia Beach during the past quarter century have been encouraged by the cost-sharing provided through ACP, or as a result of improvements observed on farms utilizing the program, according to Mr. Dudley.

Principal conservation work through ACP has included: open ditch drainage farm ponds, liming, pastures and summer and winter cover crops.

Practices eligible for ACP cost-sharing have been the result of development of a conservation program by the locally elected ASC Committee cooperating with local groups, individuals interested in conservation, and other agricultural agencies of the City, State and Federal governments.

CHAIRMAN NAMED FOR 10th CREATIVE WRITING CONTEST

VIRGINIA BEACH—Miss Jane Haskagen, arts and culture chairman of the Virginia Beach Branch of the American Association of University Women, will serve as local representative for the Virginia Division of the AAUW's 10th annual Creative Writing Contest.

The contest will open Oct. 1 to all male and female residents of Virginia who are non-professional writers. Entries must be received by Dec. 1, 1963, and will be given a preliminary judging by category chairmen aided by other AAUW members.

Final judges, a group of well-known writers or creative writing teachers, will choose the three winning manuscripts in each category from the six finalists submitted by the category chairmen.

Categories and their chairmen include: POETRY (1 long or 3 short), Mrs. J. S. Maloney, Box 298, Norton, Va.; SHORT STORY (5000 words or less), Mrs. J. Arthur Harris, 471 30th St. South, Arlington, Va.; STORIES FOR CHILDREN (2500 words or less), Mrs. John Dodges, 9 Burwell Circle, Newport News, Va.; NON-FICTION (9000 words or less), Mrs. G. R. C. Stuart, 145 E. Main Street, Abingdon, Va.; and SHORT-SHORT STORY (1500 words or less), Mrs. Robert E. Mason, 8914 Arrian Rd., Richmond, 90, Va.

A fee of $1 entitles each contestant to enter two manuscripts in any prose category. A contestant may enter more than one category but a fee must accompany each entry. Checks should be made payable to the appropriate category chairman.

Manuscripts must be typed, double-spaced, using only one side of standard size paper, with margins of one inch or more. The title page must list the following: title, name and address of author; category, approximate word count for prose and number of lines for poetry, and age if the author is under 30. The writer's name must appear on the title page and on the reverse side in the manuscript. The title should be at the top of each page and the pages should be numbered.

Manuscripts, entry fees and return envelopes must be sent to the contest chairman by Dec. 1.

Further information may be obtained from Miss Haskagen or the state contest chairman, Mrs. John Washington, 708 West Street, Vienna, Va.

STOCK CAR TRACK MAY LOCATE HERE

PRINCESS ANNE—A 250-acre site in Princess Anne Borough may become the location of the only one-and-a-half mile stock car racetrack in the state.

Plans for the $1,200,000 project were revealed Monday night at a meeting of the City Planning Commission by track agent Douglas I. Shelton of Colonial Realty Co.

Included in the plans are the oval asphalt track, a 50,000-capacity concrete grandstand that can be enlarged as needed and over 100 acres of parking space.

The proposed site is located at the northeast corner of Princess Anne and Sandbridge Roads. Estimated cost of the land is $350,000.

Shelton said that the race track would draw an estimated attendance of 45,000 to 75,000 persons to each of two major races a year.

For Sports Events

When the track is not being used for races it could be used for various sports activities which could be planned to coincide with summer tourist season, he said.

Virginia Beach would benefit from this track in many ways, Shelton pointed out.

● A planned beauty contest each year would bring in big name television personalities.

● Taxable revenue to the city would range between $25,000 and $30,000 annually.

● More than $100,000 in prize money would draw the top name stock car drivers in the country.

● Advertising for the track would promote Virginia Beach as "the world's largest resort city" in all race track literature.

Attorney Edwin Kellam represented Shelton at Monday night's meeting.

The request for zoning change from residence suburban and agriculture to limited commercial met some opposition. A resident in the area said the noise from the land would decrease property values.

The Planning Commission's recommendations on the application will be sent to City Council at a future meeting.

The 1 1/2-mile stock car racetrack planned in Princess Anne Borough would resemble this one.

Bystander Who Saved Life Is Identified

VIRGINIA BEACH—An unidentified bystander who saved the life of an injured motorcyclist last July has been identified.

William D. Bell of Route 2, Box 203, London Bridge was at the intersection of Birdneck Road and 22nd St. extended on the morning of July 20 when a motorcycle operated by Raymond W. Heim collided with a truck.

Bell heard the crash and turned around in time to see Heim lying in the road with a severe leg injury. He was losing blood rapidly.

Bell improvised a tourniquet by removing his belt and wrapping it around Heim's leg to stop the flow of blood. He remained with Heim until the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad ambulance arrived.

Rescue Squad members later credited an "unknown bystander" with saving Heim's life.

Bell's identity came to light recently when Heim, a Boatwain Mate Third Class stationed at NAS Oceana, named his rescuer. As a result, Bell received the following letter from the Commanding Officer of Heim's Squadron:

Dear Mr. Bell,

I wish to extend my sincerest thanks for your prompt action which was responsible for saving the life of Boatwain Mate Third Class, Raymond W. Heim.

Heim was involved in a traffic accident while riding a motorcycle at the intersection of Birdneck Road and 22nd St. on the morning of 20 July.

Heim's leg was severely mutilated and he was losing a dangerous amount of blood. You arrived and quickly applied a tourniquet. But for your action he would probably have bled to death.

You are to be commended for your prompt reaction and efficient rendering of life-saving first aid.

Though Heim's leg had to be amputated he is satisfactorily

Coffman Is 4-H Delegate To Uruguay

PRINCESS ANNE—It's a good thing Tom Coffman, assistant agriculture agent here, enjoys warm weather because he's in for a straight 18-month summer season.

He will leave October 8 for Uruguay to take part in the International Farm Youth Exchange program conducted by the National 4-H Club Foundation.

The summer season is just starting in Uruguay and by the time his tour of duty ends in that country the good old summertime will be starting in America.

Coffman's trip as a delegate in this program was sponsored by business firms and 4-H Clubs in his native Roanoke County. One-third of the costs were raised through 4-H members' selling newspaper subscriptions, conducting bake sales and other projects and through contributions from various clubs and business firms.

He has been studying Spanish for the past few months so that he can converse with his new friends in Uruguay. While there he will live in private homes, take pictures and gather information on urban life and problems and share his knowledge with Americans when he return home.

He will also acquaint the people of Uruguay with America through pictures and information on his own home and community, state and country.

This program was launched in 1948 and this year there will be 130 young Americans going to 45 countries on an exchange basis. The foreign delegates visit America from April through September and the Americans visit other countries from October through March.

Coffman will receive a week of orientation in Washington visiting the Uruguay Embassy and being acquainted with the customs of that country before leaving for Miami on October 8.

After he returns to America next April, Coffman will spend some time lecturing on his trip then he hopes to work toward his doctorate in psychology.

Council Defers Action On Pit

VIRGINIA BEACH—More than 150 people crowded City Council chambers Monday in opposition to a proposed borrow pit in the Sajo Farm area of Bayside Borough.

An application by E. V. Williams Co. and Samuel G. Jones for a use permit to operate the borrow pit was presented to council but a vote on its approval was deferred to the next meeting, September 23.

City Planning Director F. Mason Gamage said the Planning Commission recommended denial of the permit as "not the best use of this land."

Many of those present expressed their views both for and against the permit. Opposition to the borrow pit centered around the following points:

● Fear that the excavation would lower the water table in the area and cause wells to go dry.

● A possible hazard to children playing in the vicinity.

● Inconvenience, noise and traffic hazards expected to result from the operation.

● The possible loss of property values.

The borrow pit would cover an estimated 32 to 46 acres on Jones' property and would be used primarily to supply fill for the construction of Interstate Highway 64. It would be excavated to an estimated depth of 24 feet.

The area is bounded on the north and east by Lake Lawson, on the south by property owned by heirs of Cornelia D. Ferrisstrom, and on the west by Old Diamond Springs Road.

Representatives of E. V. Williams Co. said the pit would be operated for not more than three years and then would be turned into an artificial lake with a mile of shoreline. This, they said, would raise, rather than lower, property values in the vicinity.

Attorney Edwin C. Kellam, speaking in favor of the use permit, said that bringing fill from greater distances would endanger lives on the highways.

"The road must be built," he said. "As Virginia Beach grows, some people will have to be inconvenienced."

Attorney Robert Nusbaum, who said he represented 92 families including "virtually every man, woman and child in that area," told council, "These people didn't buy their property in order to be next to a borrow pit."

"They see an advantage for only one person," he said, in an obvious reference to Jones.

Nusbaum drew applause from his supporters when he countered the suggestion that Jones would not "develop a nuisance" at his own front door."

"Mr. Jones is going to be paid a half-million dollars to suffer," Nusbaum said.

To Corn Will Average $1.21

PRINCESS ANNE—Price support loans for the 1963 corn crop will average $1.21 per bushel in Virginia Beach, according to N. T. Beal, Virginia Beach Office Manager for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He said a special price support payment of 18c a bushel brings the total support rate to $1.39 compared with a 1962 rate of $1.34.

Price support on the 1963 corn crop will be available only to farmers taking part in the 1963 feed grain program. The loans will vary with the grade and moisture content of an individual crop.

Beal said all the 1963 production of corn from participating farms can be put under the price support loan this year. Last year, it was limited to not more than the normal production of the planted acreage.

Farmers having any questions or wanting details on placing corn under loan should contact the ASCS County Office, Beal said.

The meeting was the first held since five incumbents began new terms and newcomer Earl M. Tebut became Blackwater's councilman September 1.

BULLETIN

NORFOLK—At a news conference in Norfolk late Wednesday afternoon, J. J. Gara, Tidewater District Manager for Sears, Roebuck and Co., announced that Sears will open a new retail store in Virginia Beach near Pembroke Manor.

Site for the new store will be included in a 60-acre site on the corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Independence Boulevard, just west of Princess Anne High School.

The quarter-million-dollar land purchase was said to be the largest in the state for a retail store.

Sears, which owns 15 acres of the overall site, will have 200,000 square feet under one roof.

Gara said that the Virginia Beach store will be "the best Sears store on the East Coast. He also said its site is the "hottest location on Virginia Beach Boulevard" because Independence Blvd. is planned to connect with Shore Drive.

Angered Hometowners Criticize Builders

This barren yard prompted Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barker of 452 Barcelona Avenue, Princess Anne Plaza, to post a sign on a tree in their front yard calling attention to their "Free Rock Garden." The owners, who have been in their home since April, claim the yard is barren because of concrete and other building material left imbedded in the ground by the builders. Requests for improvement have brought no results, Mrs. Barker said. (Johnson Photos)

Eye Exercise No Help For Eye Damage
To the Question Asked — Can I strengthen my eyes so that my eyeglasses will not be necessary?—The answer, according to an eminent medical authority is no, and the explanation given is—
Nobody wears eyeglasses unless he needs them.
Your eye trouble developed while you were not wearing eyeglasses. There is no reason to think that not wearing eyeglasses now is going to undo what happened then.
Eyeglasses don't affect the shape of the lenses of the eyes. Eyeglasses merely compensate—the eyes blend the light rays a little too much (or perhaps not quite enough) so lenses are ground to bend the light rays just enough in the opposite direction.
Good eyesight cannot be developed by exercise, any more than you can improve hearing by listening to noises.
However, I should add one point to avoid misunderstanding.

"I CAN'T HAVE JUST ANY PERMANENT"
Most women can't! Lucky indeed, the lady whose hair we term "normal." She's in the beauty majority. Most hair has problems. It's too oily, or so dry an ordinary wave might make it look like frizzed hay. Perhaps it's been bleached or colored to such a degree of coarseness that the hair fibers absorb permanent wave lotion too fast. This requires a completely gentle professional permanent. Or your hair might reach the other extreme, so hard to curl that "just any" permanent won't take. Our permanent will... we have one just for your problem.

So it takes study to do well at school that's what the experts say! I agree! (That's a fact.)
Well, now what do you need to provide for this important part of their learning? One necessary item is—A desk or table with a chair that is the right height for table or desk and for the child. He should be able to sit up straight and have feet on the floor. If more than two feet wide, you will need a swing-arm lamp.
Very dark or bright surrounding colors would be a distracting contrast to reading and writing materials. You get the best results if:
Desk tops are light (add a large, light lamp).
Adjacent walls are light, too (blackboard can be used).
Lamp shades are fairly dense; or opaque is a light but not strong color.
Since people have only one pair of eyes to last forever, correct lighting is most important. To provide this use either of the following:
A. TABLE LAMP—15" from bottom of shade to desk. SHADE—should measure 8" across top, 16" across the bottom and be 10" from top to bottom. BULB—50/150 w three-way for 8" glass diffuser or 180 watt for lamp using flat diffusing disk. PLACE—Center of lamp shade 15" left of work center; 12" back from front edge of desk. If left-handed, reverse first measurement, place lamp right.
B. PAIR OF WALL LAMPS—ideal for child's study center. BULB: 100 w each. DIFFUSER: 6" plastic bowl; or flat plastic diffusing disc below bulb. SOCKET POSITION: 2" below shade. SHADE: top 6", depth 7", bottom 10".
WIDE DESK—If desk is more than two feet deep, select types with an extending or swing arm by which you can move the center of the shade forward.
PLACE—Center the shades 30" apart; no more than 17" back from front edge of desk, preferably 6" - 12" from front. Mount bottom edge 15" above desk.
After studying in such an atmosphere without interruption until work is completed or it is time for a break students do accomplish more.
Oh! what for the "break" refreshments. It should be something from the list of needed foods. It can be another glass of milk either plain or as a milk drink. Fruit or fruit juices (be sure to have citrus each day) are another suggestion. If cookies are offered, be sure they contain something besides just sweets. Example oatmeal cookies made with milk. Sandwiches containing meat, peanut butter or spread may be used.
Watch greasy fried foods, chocolate if there is a complexion problem.
Watch amount of needed foods so as to get enough of all. Also watch calories if already overweight.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

Why Do Boys Think Girl Is Conceited?

THE WEEK'S LETTER: Would you please help me? I just graduated (from grade school) from a school I haven't been in long—just long enough to know a few kids there. The girls were very nice. I was friendly with the more popular girls. My problem is that the boys think I am conceited. My girlfriend tried to persuade one boy that I am not conceited, but he wouldn't listen. If I said "Hi" to a group of boys, one out of the group might speak in return. I am not ugly. Many people say that I am "cute." It that my problem? Do you think I am conceited? Will things be any different in high school?

OUR REPLY: What do you think about yourself? Do you think you are better looking than most of your girlfriends? If so, you may show it in your actions without realizing it. Kids in high school are little different from kids in grade school. The thing for you to do is convince yourself that you are not conceited—then it will be easy to convince others.

Often a boy or girl is considered conceited merely because that individual is shy or bashful. They hesitate to speak to other boys and girls because they fear their greeting will not be acknowledged.

It isn't necessary to speak to everyone. Speak to boys and girls that you see often, that you have met, that you have classes with, or know by name. If your greeting is not returned, don't worry about it. Chances are the person you spoke to had something important on his mind at the time.

Sincerity is important to the person who wants to be well liked. When you say, "Hi" to someone, say it like you mean it—and be sure you do.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to JOE AND BOB TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORD, ILL.

Mayor Dusch Gets Vote Of Confidence From City Council

Virginia Beach's Mayor Frank A. Dusch was re-elected to that position by his fellow councilmen this week in a unanimous vote that is proof, itself, of the splendid administration he has given his city.

Mayor Dusch served the old City of Virginia Beach as its mayor for many years and was elected mayor of the new and enlarged city when old Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County consolidated.

His re-election this week was practically a formality which attests to the fine regard he is held by his fellow councilmen and the fine way in which he has performed his duties as Mayor of the City of Virginia Beach.

Along with Mayor Dusch's re-election was the reelection of S. Paul Brown, former chairman of the Princess Anne County Board of Supervisors, to the office of vice-mayor. The Dusch-Brown team has worked well for the new city and members of city council seemed pleased to express their confidence in these men by unanimously reelecting them to the city's two top offices.

We congratulate Mayor Dusch and Vice-Mayor Brown and the City Council for a job well done and wish for them even more success in the future.

Fall Is In The Air Prep Football, Too

It is that season of the year when youngsters all over the nation will be kicking, passing and tackling on the thousands upon thousands football fields around the country.

It is a good feeling to watch high school teams battling each other in good, clean sportsmanship on the gridiron. It teaches youngsters much that will stand them in good stead in later life.

For many years football fans of this area have followed the progress of two schools in particular. These would be Princess Anne High School and Virginia Beach High School.

The same two schools continue to have large followings of faithful pigskin lovers but now Virginia Beach residents can pride themselves in having four high school football teams. Joining Princess Anne and Virginia Beach in newspaper headlines this year are Cox and Kellam High Schools.

The city is growing and football is growing with it. Now the sports pages will carry the successes or failures on the gridiron of four senior high schools in the City of Virginia Beach.

The Sun-News wishes success to all this fall.

Limit Placed On Back SS Pay Allowed

Social security benefits can be paid for no more than 12 months back from the month in which an application is filed, according to Harvey J. Ridinger, Field Representative for Virginia Beach.

This reminder was prompted by a conversation he recently had with a retired 67 year-old worker. The worker believed that he could wait indefinitely to apply and be paid for all months beginning with his sixty-fifth birthday.

This is a mistaken idea. Many people have about the social security law and can result in a loss of benefits to those who do not apply on time.

Stock Market At Peak Level

NEW YORK—The stock market is now approaching its all-time high of 734.91 measured by the Dow-Jones Industrial Average. The recent surge in buying can be attributed to several major factors: The threat of a rail strike is over for at least 100 days, and the two big elements of the private economy—consumer spending and business investment—seems healthy indeed.

Two factors that have been underplayed lately are the quite favorable pictures in corporate earnings and dividends. Corporate earnings should run a minimum of 5% ahead of 1962's gains. These factors should play a dominant role in stock prices over the next six months. It is interesting to note that at last Friday's close the Dow-Jones Industrial Average was selling at 18.8 times estimated earnings for the stocks which comprise that average. This compares quite favorably with the slightly less than 21 times earning multiple which existed when the averages were at the same level last year.

Steel orders are showing improvement currently, while inventories are touching bottom. With another good year forecast for the auto industry, the demand for steel should continue. As additional economic stimulus, a tax reduction at both the corporate and personal income level seems likely. Reports from Detroit continue to be favorable. Many analysts now agree that a 7 million car year is now to be considered normal rather than a freak happening. Prosperity, of course, in this area would spill over into other areas, giving a good deal of stimulus to the economic picture as a whole.

In addition to the favorable business picture, the technical aspect of the stock market is robust. We have observed increased volume of trading on rallies and declining volume when prices are receding. Short interest increased in August over the month of July, which tends to give the stock prices a support factor. The ratio of new highs to new lows has been expanding daily, and advances have dominated the daily list of most active stocks regardless of the general market trend.

It is interesting to note the increased strength of late in the Over-the-Counter market. Needless to say, this area has lagged far behind the recovery exhibited by many listed stocks since the May 1962 break. Values are becoming harder and harder to locate, but the major portion of fundamentally sound stocks are to be found in the OTC market. Signs that the public is now beginning to come into the market indicate higher prices on selected OTC issues.

We are of the opinion that the Dow-Jones Industrial Average could move shortly to the 750 area, reaching as high as 800 by the end of the year. We maintain that a policy of selected buying is in order. We believe a selective selling program should also be maintained since many stocks have risen beyond levels of reasonable value.

Small Talk

By

Joe Small

Virginia Beach High School

The executive council of Virginia Beach High School met August 29th to propose new activities for the Inter-club council which this year will be headed by the school vice-president, Bart Theberg. The meeting was held at the residence of Mrs. K. G. Darsel, the executive sponsor of the Virginia Beach High School S.C.A. Three members of the executive council present were Steven Strickler and myself, Joe Small. Here we decided that the Inter-club council should delegate certain specific tasks to its members. The duties resolved upon were as follows: 1. a school dance schedule; 2. a Holiday Assembly program; 3. mats for the school gymnasium; 4. student telephone directories; 5. foyer decorations, and 6. a new flag with flag raising personnel.

On September 4th, the day before the opening of school, a meeting of several S.C.A. members was held to draw up a honor code for Virginia Beach High School. After a backyard barbeque and several hours of deliberation a provisional charter was created and presently will be presented to the entire S.C.A. for ratification.

School, that annually procuring conglomeration of experience, has of course reopened once

CHINESE CORNER—A Department of Public Works crew began closing a series of openings in the median strip of Virginia Beach Boulevard Tuesday.

First phase of the work is the closure of the first three openings west of the traffic light at Chinese Corner. The job is being carried out in an effort to reduce traffic hazards.

Safety Bureau Chief Reeves Johnson said the openings between east and westbound traffic lanes have been the scene of numerous accidents. One of the first three to be closed was the scene of a fatal accident last spring, he said.

Closing the median openings will halt crossovers. Johnson said however that the openings between main lanes and the service roads will remain.

Johnson said studies are being made in the area west of London Bridge and in the vicinity of Princess Anne Plaza. He indicated that closure might be made near London Bridge but not at Princess Anne Plaza.

He said the city will probably provide more "turn off channels" there to separate turning traffic from high speed traffic.

again, and as far as Virginia Beach High School is concerned this means a delightful array of both new and familiar faces. I wish to welcome all the incoming eighth graders on behalf of the S.C.A. We shall be looking forward to working with you!

Funerals

DRINKWATER—Funeral services for Edward Drinkwater, 58, of 1111 p.m. in the home, 512 1/2 St. N. C. he came here when he was a year old. His father, Edward Drinkwater, became mayor of the Virginia Beach City during which time it was said to have been his mother who Mrs. Drinkwater, Edna Drinkwater. He had 12 brothers and a sister.

He and all the Drinkwater youngsters were educated in a one-room schoolhouse near the present Holly Road and 31st Street intersection.

After working 10 years as a line man, he entered the Coast Guard in 1933, serving at Parish Hill, Little Neck, Dam Neck and Virginia Beach before he retired in 1943 after 30 years.

Interviewed in May, 1962, about the Ash Wednesday storm, he said: "That wasn't a storm we had here March 7. That was just a high tide." He recalled a 100-mile-per-hour blow that cut an ocean canal down 28th Street all the way to Linkhorn Bay and destroyed the old Princess Anne Hotel.

Drinkwater said the "greatest tragedy" he experienced was the sinking of the Norwegian bark Dilator in 1901 off Virginia Beach. The surf was so rough the Dilator's captain thought he was headed into Chesapeake Bay but instead bore onto the beach near the Cavalier Hotel site, with a great loss of life, including the captain's wife and child.

Surviving Drinkwater are his widow, Mrs. Ida O'Neil Drinkwater; a daughter, Mrs. Ruby D. Perry of Nags Head, N. C.; two sons, Edward R. Drinkwater of Windsor, Conn., and Vernon Drinkwater of Virginia Beach; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The body will be taken from H. D. Oliver Funeral Apartments to Virginia Beach Methodist Church for a funeral service Thursday at 2 p.m. Burial will be in Eastern Shore Chapel Cemetery.

Plaza Fireman Surprised By Popularity

PRINCESS ANNE—Fireman William O. Johnson, Jr., has been asked by Chief Marshall Morrell, to turn in his badge.

Chief Morrell recently visited Johnson at his home in Princess Anne Plaza. "Where do you keep your badge?" the Chief asked. Morrell said Johnson to get the badge and turn it over to him. "We hold a meeting tonight, Johnson, and we decided that we must let you continue to wear a fireman's badge."

Johnson, surprised at the Chief's statement, became even more surprised when the Chief handed him another badge. "We decided that we want you to wear this badge instead." The badge read CAPTAIN.

Plaza Volunteer Fire Department, Inc., Captain William O. Johnson, Jr., is a Chief Petty Officer in the Navy and was one of the original members of Fire Department volunteer unit in Princess Anne Plaza.

BASKIN' IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

Everyone in the area must certainly know by now that I am the World's Most Famous Girl-Watcher and Woman-Admirer. I figure that I could challenge any male alive in a contest to decide this title, and spot him points and still win hands down. I would, as a matter of fact, welcome a contest to decide the titleholder, since the only way to crown the winner would be to allow the contestants to watch girls and admire women over a suitable period of time. Nothing would please me more than this, since I do love to sit around and look at dames. I don't mean the Miss-America-type contest, since this is much too involved. Besides, Bert Parks would sing that miserable song, and I would be up for murder from having run amuck with a butcher knife and killing the best known TV announcer in the country. My defense lawyers would never be able to prove that I had really killed a bad baritone.

Anyway, I love females—but there IS one little thing about them that hurts me down deep. I'm talking about the things that they will buy that are supposed to make them look better. I have seen some horrible get-ups in my day, and I know, because I LOOK at all females. I ain't talkin' about how most women look in slacks. That is common knowledge. Unfortunately the very women who wear them—shouldn't. That is, in eight cases out of ten.

What I'm talking about is the latest rage as shown on TV. I dunno if you've looked lately but they are now selling a kit which is for women who do NOT want curly hair! Now ain't that the living end? Here the Lord has been scattering straight-haired women around for several centuries, and has not charged anybody a quarter. This is not new good enough for Madison Avenue. It just goes to show you that they can sell ANYTHING if they holler loud enough over the magic box. I suppose the factories are working three shifts to manufacture this new goop.

I never thought I'd see the day that women would buy a concoction which would guarantee that at the end of a messy job that they would have hair that would NOT be curly.

Oh, well, I just don't keep up with things like I oughta. I do have an opinion, though. Anyone who'll examine the picture in this column should realize that I haven't had any hair problems for years.

The playgrounds and their directors are the following:

HAWKS FACE FERGUSON

VIRGINIA BEACH—A green, inexperienced Virginia Beach Seaboard football team will face Ferguson High in Newport News Friday night.

Coach Carlton Bowyer has been singing the blues this year as candidates dropped off to a dangerously low point. However, within the past week the squad has increased with the opening of school.

The Hawks, co-champions of the district last year, were hard hit by graduation and are in deep trouble at several positions. They have a veteran at quarterback in Gordon Nolan but the line is thin and light.

As Bowyer sees it "we will have to make up in spirit and desire what we lack in experience." The boys can do it if they will put forth their best effort at all times," he said.

On the other hand Ferguson, a Group One team, is rated stronger than a year ago. The Seaboards won a close 6 to 0 game from them last year.

Kickoff time at Ferguson is set for 8 p.m.

Next meeting is scheduled for Sept. 17 at 6 p.m., and they will roll for averages at 6:30.

This League now has 2 Grumman teams and wants to invite more tech. reps. to participate.

TILT LOOMS AS TOSS-UP AMONG TOP ELEVENS

VIRGINIA BEACH—If the rival coaches know whereof they speak it could be that Cox Stadium this week will find the two strongest football teams in the area battling each other.

This is the consensus of the two coaches, Pete Sachon of Princess Anne and Billy O'Brien of Great Bridge, whose teams meet under the lights Friday night at Princess Anne High School.

Both coaches have called their 1963 teams "terrific" and that is a bit unusual for football coaches. Usually they cry the blues and make all sorts of excuses. Not so with Sachon and O'Brien.

Friday night's game between the Cavaliers and the Wildcats could set an attendance record. Interest is running high despite the fact that it is the opening game of the season. Both clubs are rated high this year and their games in the past have always been close. Great Bridge holds a decided edge in the series.

Sachon is quoted as saying "the talent at Princess Anne is terrific." And, when he says that he no doubt is thinking of the fabulous Buster O'Brien, his passing quarterback, and two great ends in Charlie Carr and 6-6 Billy Bowes. But, he also has other talent. In fact, Sachon admits that he has boys on the bench who would be playing regular if it wasn't for the exceptional ability of the first team.

Rival coaches credit Princess Anne's top rating to an improved line. Sachon has a veteran line that grew up midway of the 1962 season.

Still Coach O'Brien says his team is "great." Great Bridge has speed and much will depend on the talented Fela Rhodes, who will defend against Carr on passes. The Wildcats coach believes his team will go all the way if it can get by Princess Anne.

Both clubs are stacked with exceptional material and the game just could be the best played in the district for the entire season.

Game time Friday night is 8 p.m. Football lovers are expected to arrive at Cox Stadium early for it will certainly be a standing room only affair if the weather is good.

W&M Business Research Dept. Has New Director

WILLIAMSBURG — Dr. Maximilian B. Jones, associate professor of business administration at the College of William and Mary, will assume the acting directorship of the College's bureau of business research for the coming academic year. He takes the place of Assistant Professor Alvin B. King, who will be at the Ohio State University during 1963-64 taking advanced work in business administration.

Founded in 1958, the bureau of business research has developed a statewide monthly newsletter, the Virginia Business Index Report, which measures the monthly business and economic activity of Virginia by examining fourteen major retail centers in the state in the perspective of nine selected business and economic indicators such as, bank deposits, building permits, electricity consumed, newspaper advertisement lineage, new car registrations, postal receipts, retail sales, water consumed, and non-agricultural employment.

The bureau receives the cooperation of a large number of retail establishments in these fourteen major retail centers in assembling statistics of sales and consumer services which are published in the Virginia Business Index Report. Dr. Jones will edit this monthly newsletter. The bureau also publishes an annual summary of the monthly indices and occasional monographs on Virginia business and economic problems.

A member of the William and Mary faculty since 1959, Jones received his A.B. from the University of Virginia and his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of North Carolina. He has served in a number of consulting capacities for industry and government agencies in the Hampton Roads area, and is a member of the board of directors of the Richmond Chapter, Society for Advancement of Management. He is married to the former Jane C. Miller of Winchester; they have two children.

State Business Index Gains

WILLIAMSBURG — With the one exception of building permits which showed a decline of over 40% from July of last year, business and economic activity continued in July to register year-to-year gains over the comparable month last year, according to the Virginia Business Index Report published by Bureau of Business Research of the College of William and Mary. The Bureau is under the direction of Dr. Max B. Jones.

Eight of the nine indicators continued to reflect a general pattern of increased activity. The increase in business activity was highlighted by new car registrations and bank deposits, with the sale of new cars ahead of the same month last year by more than 15% and the bank deposits up almost 15%.

Building permits registered a year-to-year decline for the second straight month, down 41.3% from July of 1962. Building permits also reflect a decline in the seven-month cumulative period, down 10.6% from the first seven months in 1962.

Retail sales for July register a 5.5% increase over the same month in 1962, and a 19.1% increase over the base period (1964-1968). This compares favorably with a 4% year-to-year increase in retail sales nationally as indicated in the Advance Retail Sales Report of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Personnel Firm Names Beach Rep.

KAY JOHNSON

PLAZA — Personnel Consultants announces the appointment of Kay Johnson to its staff of counselors. Mrs. Johnson will be in charge of the Personnel Consultants Virginia Beach Branch Office located east of Princess Anne Plaza.
The agency established in Norfolk 18 years ago and branched to Virginia Beach in April of this year.

One of Mrs. Johnson's first assignments with the agency was to choose a new name for herself. It seems that there is another Mrs. Johnson at Personnel Consultants—Mary L. Johnson, who has been with the agency since its earliest days. As the second Mrs. Johnson became more involved with the agencies service, the question "Which Mrs. Johnson" became too popular. It was finally decided that the first Mrs. Johnson, (Mary), would stay Mrs. Johnson, and the second Mrs. Johnson, (Kay), would become Mrs. Kay.

Said Mrs. Kay (Johnson), "I only hope that I am able to project as much good will and high standards from Personnel Consultants, Virginia Beach, as Mrs. Johnson has projected from Personnel Consultants, Norfolk. Her name and fine reputation are well known to employers and business men in the Tidewater area."
The Virginia Beach Branch of Personnel Consultants was previously managed by Margaret Ange who will be returning to the downtown office. The agency operates still a third branch in Newport News.

Steve Raines of "Rawhide" on the CBS Television Network was spotted by a Hollywood producer while stunt riding in a rodeo in Texas.

Heavy Schedule Makes Civic Center State's Busiest

VIRGINIA BEACH — September, 1963, promises to be the biggest convention month Virginia Beach has ever had with three outstanding groups already booked at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center during that period.

Promotional Director William B. Lillyman said Monday that the Mid-Atlantic Shrine convention has designated Virginia Beach as its meeting place at that time. Virginia Lions International and the League of Virginia Municipalities, both unusually large groups, had previously selected this resort for their 1963 convention site during the same month.

Frank Kellam, Potomac of Khedive Temple, headed the delegation that obtained the convention for the city, Lillyman said.

The Civic Center has been gaining in convention activity, but its overwhelming successful summer concert series has made it "the most utilized civic centers in the state," Lillyman said.

The concert series, launched on June 15 and ending Sept. 1, drew more people to the center during the 90-day period than any single year since the building was erected seven years ago, he said.

The center hasn't been closed on a week-end for almost a year and the week-end schedule is already booked solid through next summer, he added.

Though the focal point of some heated criticism in the past, the Civic Center has come a long way in the past three years, not only financially but in its usefulness. It is no longer the financial drag to the city, as it was once called, but has become a necessity to the community.

"The center is producing a great deal more revenue than in previous years," Civic Center Committeeman Robert Cherry said, "but the main thing is that it has filled a great need for adult entertainment. If we did not have the building we would have felt it."

Area's Entertainment Spot

Lillyman feels that this summer's successful season has proved one important point: that Tidewater residents are looking toward the Civic Center for entertainment.

"Virginia Beach was the only place in this entire area that had a full entertainment schedule and we drew people from the Eastern Shore as well as all over Tidewater," Lillyman said.

But the Saturday night concerts were just a fraction of the center's use. Roller skating and the Friday night Teen Cabaret program helped keep the building in operation six days a week.

The heavy turn-out for the first few events brought about a few problems, Lillyman said, but these were soon corrected. A new ticket window was installed to aid traffic control. At one show 2,000 people were brought in in 14 minutes.

"We were not ready on June 15 for the large crowds," Lillyman said. "It took us half the summer to get things running smoothly."

The WGH Top Thirty Show and Peter, Paul and Mary drew the largest crowds but follow-up in a close second spot were Dave Brubeck, Victor Borge and the Hootenanny.

The least successful event was the Jazz Festival but Lillyman said this will be overcome next year by bringing in bigger names, extending the show over an entire week-end and adding a more festive air.

"Surprisingly enough, the center, while increasing its activity and productivity, is still operating on the same budget it opened with seven years ago.

The only addition to the staff has been one part-time secretary, Lillyman said.

No Slack Season

The summer may be over but there will be no slack season at the Dome. The Baptist Unity Convention and the annual Antique Show and Sale are both scheduled for October and there are several club-sponsored dances and events already booked.

Lillyman said he is also working on a cultural concert series for the winter months but it is "in the talking stages now."

The summer concert series has received some criticism from scattered businessmen and hotel owners on the beach but the general opinion is that it has been a great addition to the summer season.

Certainly that is the opinion of city officials.

"It has been a great asset to our area," Mayor Frank A. Dusch said Wednesday, "and I often wonder what we ever did without the Civic Center. I am more than pleased with the progress the Center Committee has made and I especially congratulate Mr. Lillyman on his fine job. I think we can now look forward to an even more successful 1964 season."

Crowds like this one, at the WGH Top Thirty Show, helped put Civic Center "over the top" this summer

Thursday, Sept. 19, 4:30 p.m.—Y Teen Membership Rally, Camp Owassa, Shore Drive

This week's column should really be entitled "The Y Teen of It," because our Y Teens are beginning an exciting year with a kick-off Membership Rally at the YWCA camp with a picnic, games, skits, singing and lots of fellowship. The Interclub Council has met this summer and initiated plans for a year of fun and service. The agendas of the Frank Cox School, the Virginia Beach High School, Kempsville Jr. High, and Kellam High School include everything from Bake Sales and Bowling Parties, Coke Get-togethers and Christmas Caroling, trips to Washington, a Mid-Winter Ball (with coronation of the Y Teen Queen), Social Lenten services, and a May Court, May Pole, and Mother-Daughter Banquet.

The Virginia Beach High School Y Teens have already executed their first service project by designing and distributing the floor plan of the school to new students.

Y Teens are girls who are, and will be contributors to the communities in which they will live because they have been given the opportunity to make new friends, learn interesting skills, enjoy coed activities plan programs of their own choosing, develop as leaders, exchange ideas, share responsibilities with adults, perform services to their schools and communities, take part in Y Teen conferences in other cities and states, meet and get to know people from many countries, and work in an organization dedicated to peace among nations and freedom and "justice for all."

"We were not ready on June 15 for the large crowds," Lillyman said. "It took us half the summer to get things running smoothly."

There are 38 miles of shore line and 57 square miles of water in Virginia Beach. Does this mean anything to you?

To fully realize the benefits of being a Beach resident, you need a BOAT! You don't necessarily have to own one at first, or even have waterfront property if you do own one. Having a friend who has a boat is a good way to try before you buy. Never turn down an invitation to "come aboard," but, beware, the boat bug might bite you, then you will never rest till you can have one of your own.

Boating has become big business within the past decade, but this area is only in its infancy of the boat boom, according to Capt. (USN Ret.) Bob Moore, boat broker with Julius T. Hartel, Inc. of Great Bridge. No potential for boat recreation suggests the imagination. You don't have to be wealthy to become a boat owner (only crazy, as one enthusiastic owner quipped), and you can start small. This is a good time of year to shop around, since many skippers do not want the expense of storage and overhaul; therefore, their craft go up for sale at a better price to you than what you can expect to find at the beginning of the season.

Boating offers today what driving gave a generation or so ago. Whereas your parents looked forward to their Sunday drive, you enjoy a cruise. The waterways are one of the few places you drive and relax at the same time. The instant you step off the dock onto your bobbing boat, you feel exhilarated and tranquil—both . . .

Once you are underway, it continues to get better. The view you have on the water, you never see from the land. Within the Bay are many wonderful waterfront homes beautifully built with lovely spacious lawns. All the boats out with you are graceful—nothing looks awkward on the water, there is a feeling of friendship with every boat you pass—it doesn't matter if you know them or not, you wave or nod anyway. Everyone seems to be glad to be there and glad to see you there. The water itself is always interesting—did you ever go out on a moonlight night? The waves dance with a million forest colors.

But the sea can be treacherous, too. Never overload your boat and check all your safety equipment before leaving the dock. Have consideration for the pleasure of other boaters and avoid "hotrodding" your craft even if it will go fast.

Boats are for fishing. Men have known this for years and now the ladies are equally enthusiastic with wetting the line. . . . Boats are for picnicking. Eating on the water gives everything a special flavor. The seagulls will follow you looking for a handout and the children love to hear them screech as they plummet down into the water to grab whatever tidbit you tossed out for them.

Boats are for swimming. Diving off the stern into the cool clean calm water in the harbor is refreshing and sunning yourself after your dip soothes and calms you.

Boats are for pulling water skiers. You don't have to be young to learn; just young at heart with a spirit for adventure. It is easy but it does take skill to learn from an expert.

Boats are for romance. Boats are for families. Boats are for everyone!

SEA GULL IN FLIGHT
BAY SPAN SYMBOL

BAYSIDE—A sea gull in soaring flight, a motif that was most quickly recognizable and had the most favorable word associations in a series of psychological tests, has been selected as the official "mark" of the new 17.6 mile long Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, now being completed between Norfolk and the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

The flying gull, whose real-life counterpart is a familiar figure in the Chesapeake Bay area, was selected with the aid of special testing over several other designs for potential highway trailblazers by the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and Tunnel Commission.

The official Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel road marker, which will go into use as soon as the giant structure is opened for traffic early in 1964, is a two-paneled square. On the upper panel, the name "Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel" is imprinted in blue on a white background. The lower panel shows a white gull silhouetted against a sea of blue.

The mark not only will serve as a roadway marker directing traffic to the Bridge-Tunnel but it will also be used on Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel guard uniforms, trucks and other vehicles, letterheads, business forms, brochures and all visual materials that are associated with the crossing.

The gull mark which was developed by Robert Kline and Company, Richmond, Va., the Commission's advertising and public relations agency, was selected from three other suggested motifs: a cut-away outline of one of the tunnel sections that will be used in the structure, a three-legged trestle section and a visualization of a trestle receding into the horizon. The agency's designer was Arthur C. Bjehi.

CHESAPEAKE BAY

The sea-blue color was chosen because it is suggestive of sea and water; it is distinctive from many green highway trailblazers, and its intensity makes it easily visible even when used for lettering. The color was specifically selected for the Bridge-Tunnel and is not used by other Virginia highways. However, the size of the mark will conform to Virginia regulations, being a maximum of 36 inches high.

Travelers on the Ocean Hiway of which the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel will become a vital part, will shortly begin to notice the gull trailblazers as far north as the New Jersey turnpike and as far south as Jacksonville.

In arriving at its decision to select the gull marker, the Commission took into consideration a comparative study of highway signs which was made by Psychological Consultants, Inc., a Richmond, Va. firm.

Using a tachistoscope, an instrument that exposes colors and other visual stimuli for a fraction of a second, Psychological Consultants submitted the four suggested markers and two control designs to 133 University of Richmond students in a detection threshold comparison test. The purpose of this test is to determine how many seconds elapse between the time one sees an object or sign until its significance is registered on the brain.

It was found that the gull symbol on the marker which was later chosen officially had the lowest detection threshold, and the marker's worded message had the second lowest detection threshold. When the symbol of the gull and the message were combined, the sea gull marker achieved the best overall rating. The testers found that it could be interpreted in about one-fourth of a second.

When the scientific tachistoscope experiments were finished, the group was asked to indicate which design they "felt" would be the most effective in terms of legibility. An overwhelming number, 72 per cent, chose the sea gull.

In addition, the Kline agency took a sampling of individuals to learn what word associations were evoked by each potential marker. Eighty-four per cent of the sea gull word associations were favorable, with such descriptions as "water," "pleasant," "calm," "progressive," "appropriate," "peaceful," "attractive," and "carefree" being used.

Of the people questioned, 56 per cent chose the sea gull as the design they liked the best. Concluding its report, Psychological Consultants said, "If the (survey) seems to have demonstrated consistently that Design C (the gull marker) will make the most effective highway sign. It has a rapid detection threshold, an easy recognition threshold, and the association value is excellent. It seems to be clearly better than any of the other designs, with the exception of one control design which has a comparable detection threshold. But even here, the sea gull's association value seems much superior to the control sign and to all others tested."

Former Local

Newport News

NEWPORTS NEWS — George L. Aldridge Jr., 27, a former resident of Virginia Beach, has been named assistant executive director of the Newport News Redevelopment and Housing Authority.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Aldridge Sr. of 415 42nd Street, Virginia Beach.

Aldridge assumed his new duties Tuesday after previously serving as an assistant in the Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority.

A native of Virginia Beach, he received an A.B. degree with a major in political science from the University of Richmond in 1958. Two years later he completed work for his master's degree in government administration at the Wharton Graduate School of Business and Government Administration of the University of Pennsylvania.

While in graduate school, he was an administrative aid to the area planning conference with the Philadelphia Redevelopment Authority's personnel division.

He spent his first year out of graduate school as field representative for the Virginia Employment Commission. He joined the Richmond Authority two years ago.

LONDON BRIDGE CHURCH
HOMECOMING SUNDAY

LONDON BRIDGE—Homecoming Day at London Bridge Baptist Church will be Sunday, September 15.

The pastor, the Rev. G. Edward Hughes, will speak at the 11:00 o'clock service. His sermon title will be "God Gave Us Memory." Mr. F. R. Reader and Mr. R. B. Carter will welcome the visitors at the morning service. A picnic lunch will be served at 12:30.

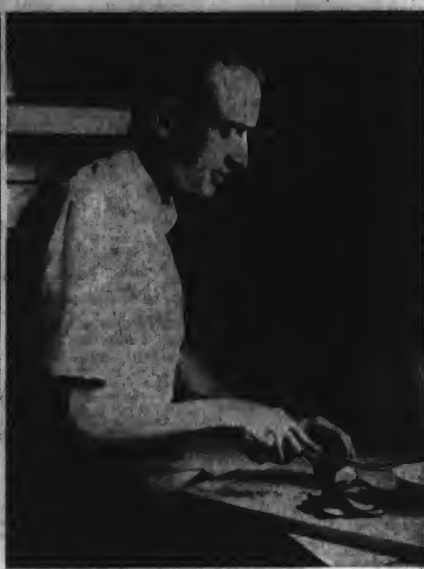

The outdoor afternoon service will begin at 2:00 o'clock with a fellowship song service led by Mr. Luttrell Sawyer. There will be special music by the choir of the church, the YWA Choral Group and the church quartet. Miss Susan Roper will present a ventriloquist act with her doll "Tony the Baptist." The afternoon program will conclude with a Girl's Auxiliary Coronation under the direction of Miss Shirley Wigdon.

Girls' Auxiliary is a part of Woman's Missionary Union, Auxiliary to Southern Baptist Convention and is an organization for junior and teen-age girls. The primary interest of Girls' Auxiliary is Missions, and also affords an outlet for social desires, parties, banquets, camps, but Girls' Auxiliary recreation does not stop with just good times; it goes on to true "re-creation."

Forward Steps provide additional missionary education for girls who want to do individual study and investigation. After the requirements for Forward Steps are passed, a Coronation Service is planned. A Coronation is an "honoring and awarding" service for Girls' Auxiliary and the sharing with the audience the many things she has learned. Girls' Auxiliary began in 1913; has been organized in many Foreign Countries and celebrated its 50th anniversary this year.

London Bridge Baptist Church is one of the oldest Baptist Churches in the city of Virginia Beach. It was organized in 1784. Friends of the church are invited to attend and enjoy a day of fellowship and worship.

These youngsters will take part in Homecoming ceremonies Sunday.

FALLOUT SHELTER
TOPIC OF ANALYSIS

NORFOLK—The Department of Defense, in cooperation with the Virginia Office of Civil Defense and Old Dominion College, announces a course in FALLOUT SHELTER ANALYSIS to be conducted for qualified architects and engineers in the Hampton Roads area.

Beginning September 13 and running through December 13, 1963, this course will be held on Friday evenings from 7:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. in the Hughes Library Building, Old Dominion College, 48th Street and Hampton Boulevard, in Norfolk. No tuition or fee is involved.

The course will be equivalent to the intensive two-week Fallout Shelter Analysis course offered at the U. S. Army Engineers School at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. Subjects such as effects of nuclear weapons, structure of matter, attenuation of nuclear radiation by structural shielding, shelter criteria, environmental engineering, blast resistant design, and introduction to structural dynamics are included in the curriculum. Problems and assignments in simple and compartmental shielding techniques and three written examinations will be given during the course.

Instructor for the course will be David Burke, a professional engineer and a member of the George Washington University Fallout University Fallout Shelter Analysis course staff.

To be admitted to the course, an applicant must be a registered architect or engineer, or hold a Bachelor Degree from a recognized school of architecture or engineering.

Those who successfully complete the course will be certified by the Department of Defense as qualified Fallout Shelter Analysts, and will be listed in National and Regional directories published periodically by the Office of Civil Defense. They will also be placed on Office of Civil Defense mailing lists to receive current information and technical developments in the field of fallout shelter design.

In this nuclear age, architects and engineers throughout the country should have a thorough understanding and knowledge of the fundamentals and newly developed techniques of fallout shelter design and analysis. With this added knowledge and capability, an architect or engineer can provide an optimum degree of fallout protection in any proposed building project with very little, if any, increase in construction cost and without handicapping the primary use of the building.

This course is designed to serve representatives of architectural and engineering firms; industry; Federal, State, county and municipal government agencies; school boards; and public utilities.

Architects and engineers interested in attending this course may receive application forms by calling or writing: Office of Civil Defense, Center Theater Building, 9th and Boush Streets, MA 7-4861, Ext. 281.

Degree Holder
Serves As Chef

ALANTON—Richard Staley has a master's degree in French, is working on his doctorate, is a college professor of the language and studied in France for two years on a Fulbright Scholarship—but these merits didn't help one little bit when it came to perfecting his summer job.

For the past three months Richard has been a chef at Alexander's Pancake Inn—and crepe suzettes were the only thing French about his busy summer schedule.

And last May he didn't even know how to cook those.

But experience is a good teacher, at least when it comes to pancakes, and in a short time Richard could turn out the many varieties of dressed-up flapjacks as well as the next person.

The only hitch, he found, was the late Saturday night rush hour when the restaurant was usually packed with hungry party-goers.

"That rush hour scared me to death," he commented. "But the customers were very understanding. Sometimes they would serve themselves. One man even poured coffee and cleaned off the tables. They all seemed to enjoy it."

Cooking pancakes is a very confining job, they require constant supervision. And this caused a few headaches during busy times. One night Richard was frantically preparing several hamburgers while keeping one hand on a grill full of pancakes. A woman found that her hamburger was well supplied with lettuce, tomato and other trimmings—but no meat.

A native of Greensboro, N.C., Richard has been spending his summer at Virginia Beach for the past 13 years, most of the time as an employee of Alexander's.

This was the first year that the Atlantic Avenue restaurant has stressed pancakes, along with its regular menu, and Richard, who has been an accomplished cook since he was a teen-ager, had to learn how to make pancakes.

He was preparing to leave Virginia Beach this week to start his teaching duties at the University of Virginia. But before he left, he wanted to prove to a few close friends that he really could cook something other than pancakes.

Colonel Swank
Germany Bound

FORT STORY—Colonel Walker D. Swank, who until August 14 was Executive Officer of Headquarters, Fort Story, is on his way to an assignment at Vaihingen, Germany.

Since his arrival at Fort Story in August 61, Colonel Swank has served as Deputy Post Commander (Aug. 61-June 62 and Aug. 62-May 63) and Commander (June 62-August 62) of Fort Story and the 4th TCTC.

Prior to his arrival at Fort Story, Colonel Swank was controller and chief of staff at Trans Terminal Command, Gulf.

A 1940 U.S. Military Academy graduate, Colonel Swank commanded a Quartermaster Truck Battalion during World War II, participating in five European Campaigns including Normandy.

After the war the Colonel saw duty with the Budget Division, Comptroller of the Army in Washington. In 1952 he went to San Francisco Port of Embarkation as Fiscal Officer.

From 1953-55, Colonel Swank was with the Terminal Command Arctic in Newfoundland, participating in annual resupply missions to Army installations in the far north.

Prior to his assignment at New Orleans, Colonel Swank did post graduate work at Syracuse University, and earned a Masters Degree in Business Administration in 1956.

So Tuesday he prepared a gourmet French luncheon and invited Angie Alexander, his employer-friend, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Margaret Slaughter, his landlady, and Mrs. Lou Britain, a neighbor.

He whipped up a menu that well proved his point: seel ball cocktails, crab meat roulade, peas with mushrooms, an elaborate salad tray and coconut cake with lemon filling.

Cooking is more than a hobby with Richard. He considers it an expression of art, a means of creating, and a diversion from the scholastic world in which he lives . . . much to the delight of his Tuesday luncheon guests.

Banks Vote
On Merger

NORFOLK—The Boards of Directors of The Seaboard Citizens National Bank of Norfolk and The Farmers Bank of Nansemond, Suffolk, voted Monday to call a special meeting of the stockholders of each bank, to be held on the 10th of October, to approve the Agreement of Merger previously entered into by the two banking institutions.

This announcement was made jointly by J. Hoge Tyler, III, President of Seaboard and Frank E. Butler, Jr., President of Farmers, following the regular monthly meetings of the two bank boards.

The combined capital account of the merged bank will be in excess of $10 million with total resources over $100 million. This merger, if effected, will bring together the two oldest banking institutions in their respective communities.

As previously announced, the merged bank will have a capital stock of $2,375,000, consisting of 475,000 shares of common stock of $5.00 per share, of which 375,000 shares will be issued to the stockholders of the Seaboard Citizens National Bank, and 100,000 shares will be issued to the stockholders of the Farmers Bank of Nansemond. Seaboard's proposed 2 1/2 for 1 stock split will have the effect of issuing to the stockholders of the Seaboard Citizens National Bank 1 1/2 additional shares for each share now held, and issuing to the stockholders of Farmers one share of the merged bank for each share now held.

The merger is subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, James J. Saxon, and the approval of the stockholders at the special meetings. Tyler also announced that the Board of Directors of Seaboard declared a regular quarterly dividend of 60 cents per share, payable October 1 to stockholders of record on September 16. He further advised the Board that earnings for the year 1963 continued to exceed those for the year 1962. Tyler had previously announced that any extension of the merged bank will be confined to the area of Tidewater Virginia and it would still be the determination of the officials of the bank to continue to bring to this area modern and progressive banking services.

Frank E. Butler, Jr., will continue as chief executive officer of the Suffolk operation, and the Merger Agreement provides that the merged institution will have additional members of its Board of Directors, Frank E. Butler, Jr., Harvard R. Birdsong, and George A. Thornton, who are presently on the Board of the Farmers Bank of Nansemond.

Your Social Security

Has disability robbed you of your earning capacity? If so, you should check with your social security office at once.

Monthly benefits can be paid at any age to working people who have become unable to work by reason of a severe disability that is expected to last for a long time. Benefits begin with the seventh month of disability, but an application may be made before that time. To be eligible, the disabled worker must have social security credits for at least 6 years' work in the ten year period before he became disabled.

When you make your application, the social security office will assist you in securing the medical evidence necessary. When this evidence has been obtained, along with other facts, a decision will be made as to whether your condition is severe enough to qualify you as "disabled" under the terms of the law.

If you think you meet the requirements or know of anyone who may be eligible, get in touch with the social security office at 220 W. Brambleton Ave., Norfolk, as soon as possible. Delay may result in a loss of benefits.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest force on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a cornerstone of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and spiritual support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

BIG DAY

It's an odd feeling when children start to school. As a parent, you are tremendously proud and excited. But you are also a little afraid.

For the first time, your Johnnie and Susie are going off on their own. Suddenly, they look smaller than they have since they were babies, and you have an irresistible impulse to run after them. But it's too late for that—so you let them go, with a smile on your lips and a fervent prayer in your heart.

Later, when the first rush of emotion passes and reason returns, you laugh at yourself. For the truth is that Johnnie and Susie are exactly where they've always been; in God's care, whether at home, in school, in play, or in church. And, grateful to the Church for this truth, you remind yourself that you'll remember to thank God for that care... a little more than that.

NOTES FROM YOUR AGRICULTURAL AGENT

They say bright eyes indicate curiosity, but so do black eyes.

EARLY FALL LANDSCAPE TIPS

Early fall is an excellent time to plant shrubs because days are becoming cooler. Set plants in the ground at the same depth as grown in the nursery. They may die if planted too deep. Withhold fertilizer until spring. Too often fertilizer added at the time of planting is not thoroughly mixed with the soil. Heavy concentration may injure the root system and eventually kill the plant. If the planting soil is lacking in organic matter, add top soil or material from the compost pile.

If you have not pruned your needle evergreens or broadleaf evergreens this season to control their size, there is still time. Don't wait until another season. It may be too late.

Boxwood needs to be thinned occasionally. Start by removing weak and crowded branches from the top center of the plant. Where necessary, shorten the taller branches. Continue this thinning over the entire upper half of the plant. This type of thinning will help develop a strong framework which helps prevent damage from snow and wind. Very heavy cutting, however, should be done in the spring.

Now is the time to plant spring-flowered bulbs. Plant early in order to give them time to develop an extensive root system before cold weather begins.

Some points to consider in buying bulbs are:

1. Know types, color, and sizes of bulbs and the places they grow best. Use colors that harmonize with the rest of the garden.
2. Check to make sure they are not diseased. Diseased bulbs look moldy and discolored, or soft and rotted.
3. Cheap bulbs are usually poor quality.
4. Buy specific colors or varieties you want. Inexpensive packages often contain too many of one color.

GROWING GRASS UNDER TREES

Homeowners are often disappointed in their attempts to grow grass under trees. A thorough knowledge of factors that contribute to such failures will help improve turf quality. It is important to realize that under evergreens and trees like the beech, where the branches are often close to the ground, it is extremely difficult to grow grass. The density of the foliage of deciduous trees varies. For example, it is much more difficult to maintain a good stand of grass under a Norway maple, which has very dense foliage, than under an elm, oak, or sycamore which produce more moderate shade.

The selection of a seed mixture that is not suitable for shaded conditions is often a major contributing factor in lawn failure. An adequate feeding program is important. Grasses in shaded areas should not be mowed closer than 2½ inches in dry weather. Do not leave excessive grass clippings on the lawn. They will further cut down on the amount of light grass plants receive. Make sure that leaves and twigs are removed as they accumulate. Lawn grasses are often weakened, especially in the fall, when fallen leaves are allowed to remain too long.

SHADE TOLERANT GRASSES

Selection of seed will depend on whether there is partial or heavy shade. The mixtures recommended for Northern Piedmont and areas West of the Blue Ridge Mountains differ somewhat from those recommended for Eastern Virginia and Southern Piedmont.

Seed Mixtures For Partial Shade
Kentucky 31 tall fescue 70%
Merion Kentucky bluegrass 15%
Common Kentucky bluegrass 15%
Seeding rate: 4 to 5 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.
Kentucky 31 tall fescue 100%
Seeding rate: 4 to 5 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.

For Heavy Shade
Merion Kentucky bluegrass 15-20%
Common Kentucky bluegrass 15-20%
Creeping Red Fescue (Penn-lawn, Illahee, Trinity, or Common Creeping Red) 55-65%
Redtop 0-5%
Seeding rate: 2½ to 3 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.

Kentucky 31 tall fescue 100%
Seeding rate: 4 to 5 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.

FERTILIZER PROGRAM

In order to grow grass successfully in shaded areas, sufficient fertilizer must be provided. Under most conditions, 4 to 6 lbs. of nitrogen, 1½ to 3 lbs. of phosphorus, and 1½ to 3 lbs. of potassium per 1,000 sq. ft. are needed each year. Phosphorus and potassium can generally be applied once annually. Soluble sources of nitrogen must be applied several times, but nitrogen with slow availability can be applied twice annually. For detailed information, on a fertilizer program consult Circular 818, "Turfgrass Guide for Lawns and Other Turf Areas", which is available from our office.

WATERING

During dry weather it is often necessary to water the grass under shade trees. The soil should be well moistened to a depth of at least 6". Apply the water gently so it will have an opportunity to soak in.

Renovation or Establishment
Preparation of the seed bed is essentially the same as for lawn areas in full sun. Work the seed bed to a depth of 6" and incorporate lime and fertilizer as recommended below. If the existing soil is poor, the addition of good topsoil would be beneficial. Apply sufficient time to bring the pH of the soil to 6.5.

The following amounts of fertilizer are recommended for establishing grass in new areas under trees or in renovating old areas:

A. If using fertilizer containing readily available nitrogen apply 50 lbs. of a 5-10-5 fertilizer per 1,000 sq. ft. or the equivalent nutrients from other analyses, OR

B. If using a slowly available nitrogen fertilizer, such as urea formaldehyde apply 4 to 5 lbs. of actual nitrogen and 15 lbs. of a 0-30-15 fertilizer per 1,000 sq. ft. or the equivalent phosphate and potash from other analyses.

If the soil tests show that the area to be seeded is low in both phosphorus and potash, apply 15 lbs. of a 0-30-15 fertilizer or the equivalent per 1,000 sq. ft. in addition to that recommended in A or B above.

If the soil is low in phosphorus and high in potash, apply 25 lbs. of a 0-20-0 or the equivalent per 1,000 sq. ft. in addition to that recommended in A or B above.

Other Aids for Improving Turf in the Shade

1. Remove any trees that do not contribute to the overall landscape picture, or that are creating more shade than is needed for enjoyment of the area.

2. Where practical, prune limbs to allow more sunlight to reach the grass.

3. Remove roots close to the surface. This will cut down some of the competition between the grass and tree roots for water and nutrients.

4. Often the soil under trees becomes compact. In small areas it can be aerated by using a spading fork, while in large areas, it is best to use an aerifier.

Substitutions For Grass
Sometimes because of extremely shaded conditions it is difficult to maintain a good turf. The use of other types of plant material is another solution.

State Gets Clean Bill Of Health

Virginia has been declared a sheep scabies-free state by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Two immediate advantages of this certification are that it means unrestricted interstate movement of sheep and eliminates the threat of economic loss from the disease.

"This is the climax of a concentrated eradication program which started early this year," announced State Veterinarian Dr. W. L. Bendix of the Virginia Department of Agriculture.

"This was achieved only through the coordinated efforts of the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service at VPI, the Virginia Veterinary Medical Association, USDA, the sheep industry in Virginia and the VDA," Dr. Bendix declared.

In September of last year it became obvious that an eradication program was essential in Virginia. The State Department of Agriculture requested the active participation of the Extension Service to cooperate in the planning and execution of a program tagged "Operation Allgo."

A training and educational program was conducted during the month of January.

With the cooperation of the Virginia Sheep Federation and the Extension County Livestock Committees, state-wide inspections began February 4.

There were 178 part-time state and federal employees and 53 county agents involved in the initial inspection. A total of 242,076 sheep in 7,626 flocks were inspected. Upon reinspection, 30 were found to be infected with sheep scabies.

Treatment and corrective measures were taken on all infected sheep flocks.

Following a complete analysis and evaluation of "Operation Allgo" the program was declared a success.

Sam McClure, sheep producer of Augusta County and President of the Virginia Sheep Federation, said, "This program can mean thousands of dollars to the Virginia sheep industry. All of us need to keep alert if we are to hold the ground we have gained. We must not let scabies get a foothold anywhere in the state again."

McClure congratulated all of the cooperative agencies for the planning and execution of the program.

Dieldrin Gets Official Okay

Recent surveys have confirmed the successful treatment of 2800 acres to eradicate the White-fringed beetle from the areas found infested in the City of Norfolk last year; it was announced today by the Virginia Department of Agriculture.

Routine checks conducted by the Department found no infestation of the beetle in the area treated in Norfolk earlier this year, a spokesman said.

The Department conducts pest surveys on a State-wide basis as a continuing program. State Entomologist, C. R. Willey, today reported his latest findings to Commissioner Richard D. Chumney, and noted that no beetles were found in the treated areas within the Norfolk City limits.

In his report Willey said that, as was to be expected, surveys made this summer uncovered several isolated infestations outside the treated area. The report showed four isolated findings of the White-fringed beetle.

The Department is continuing to survey suspected areas, and also is continuing to evaluate treatment methods.

Regular progress reports will be made by the VDA to the public on its total program on crop pest control.

The Mixing Bowl IT'S 3... TO COOK

By LUCILE CLARK

SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

So delicate in flavor, so creamy-soft in texture, is this chocolate frosting to freeze that you can use it as a filling as well as a topper for cakes. It's delicious on cake layers whether they are made by your own recipe, from a cake mix, or bought from the store. Use this frosting at once, or freeze it for the future when you want a luscious cake topper in a hurry. It's the type of frosting that takes to debonair swirling for decorative effect, and it's easy to vary with nuts or coconut.

Creamy Semi-Sweet Frosting

1 8-oz. package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 jar (7 1/2 oz.) marshmallow cream

Melt semi-sweet chocolate morsels and butter over hot (not boiling) water; blend well. Remove from heat. Gradually add evaporated milk, stirring until smooth. Let cool to room temperature. Add marshmallow cream & beat until smooth. If desired, vary filling by adding nuts or coconut.

Yield: Filling and frosting for two 8 or 9-inch cake layers or frosting for 24 medium cupcakes.

To Freeze: Turn into freezer container, seal. When ready to use, let frosting stand at room temperature until soft enough to spread, approximately 1 hour.

They would be mighty nice in the lunch-box, too.

Vanilla was known and loved by the Aztec Indians of Mexico long before the discovery of America.

"ORCHID OF COMMERCE"

Of the thousands of varieties of orchids, it is the Vanilla planifolia which is often referred to as "the orchid of commerce."

DE LUXE CRUST

To make a delicious graham cracker crust, add a few tablespoons finely chopped nuts and 1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract to the melted butter before tossing it with crumbs.

Here are some interesting data from the American Spice Trade Association:

MORE SPICES USED

The consumption of spices in the U.S.A. has reached its highest point in history, according to the American Spice Trade Assn. In 1961 we consumed 208,000,000 pounds as against an average of 126,165,000 during the late 40's.

GINGER CREAM

Add just a bit of ground ginger — 1/4 teaspoon per half cup of heavy cream — to the whipped cream to be served on bananas, pumpkin or rhubarb pie.

HERBED OMELET

Scrambled eggs or omelets are twice as good if seasoned with a pinch of poultry seasoning. Add 1/8 teaspoon poultry seasoning to the melted butter in which 4 or 5 eggs will be cooked.

GALLANT BASIL

Basil while growing, releases its delicious scent if brushed against. Once it was said that it received fresh life if touched by a fair lady.

DUTCH SNAP BEANS

A nutmeg grater is very likely to accompany an order of green beans in a Dutch restaurant. Each guest sprinkles the vegetable lightly. When seasoning green beans in the kitchen, add 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg per pound of beans.

Sweet marjoram was used by both the Greeks and the Romans to form the crowns worn by happy young couples.

PEPPER USE

Father, at the backyard barbecue, has helped up black pepper use 30% in less than 20 years.

SAFFRON HILL

One smoky area in the heart of London is still called "Saffron Hill" from the days long ago when saffron crocuses were grown there.

Aspirin is one of the herbs that was supposed to avert the Evil Eye.

ROSEMARY REMEMBRANCE

"There's rosemary, that's for remembrance..." said Shakespeare. Because of this belief, rosemary became the emblem of fidelity for lovers. Everyone will remember, too, a leg of lamb or roast chicken basted with rosemary butter. Use about 1/4 teaspoon rosemary to 1/2 cup butter or margarine.

PEPPY SHRIMP

Add 1 teaspoon mixed pickling spices to the cooking water for a pound of shrimp. Spices may be tied in cheesecloth for easy removal.

For extra good flavor add 1/2 teaspoon celery salt with other seasonings to 2 cups canned tomatoes.

Cinnamon was one of the fragrant ingredients of the precious ointment which Moses used in anointing priests and sacred vessels of the Tabernacle.

SPICE HISTORY

Even though Magellan and most of his men died in that first round-the-world voyage and only one of his four ships returned home, the value of the spices brought to Spain by the "Victoria" exceeded the cost of the expedition by 200 pounds. The cargo consisted of cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg, mace and sandalwood.

It will be extra nutritious as well for both these products supply calcium, iron and three essential B-vitamins.

Lunchbox Turnovers can provide two meals for you in one "sitting." Serve them piping hot for dinner one night with a cheese sauce and then pack the leftovers along with a thermos of vegetable soup, crisp relishes and a fresh pear in the kids' lunchbox. Try the tender pastry with other favorite fillings, too, for savings.

LUNCHEBOX TURNOVERS

1/2 cup enriched self-rising corn meal
1/2 cup shortening
3 cups sifted enriched self-rising flour

Combine corn meal and flour. Cut or rub in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Add water, mixing gently until dough begins to stick together. Divide dough into two equal portions. Press out on piece of waxed paper and press dough together. Wrap in waxed paper and refrigerate while preparing Ham Filling.

Ham Filling: 2 cups ground cooked ham
1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1/2 cup pickle relish

Combine ham, mayonnaise or salad dressing, onion and pickle relish. Roll out each portion of dough to circle 14-inch diameter. Roll each portion into six 4 1/2 or 5-inch rounds. Place a rounded teaspoon of Ham Filling on half of each round. Fold over other half to cover filling. Press edges together to seal. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (425°F.) about 15 minutes. Remove to turnovers.

Round Table: Newcomers and Old Settlers—How Do They Mix in Your Town?
Listen, Doctor! BY EDWARD STREETER Family Sailing in the Caribbean

Suburbia Today

In This Issue . . .

The Pain of It All

... page 7

Why—when he knows for a fact (well, almost) that he's a very sick man does no one, not even his doctor sympathize with him? The "ailing" gentleman is Edward Streeter, author of "Father of the Bride," and if the lament sounds familiar, read on as he describes the regular annual visit to the regular family doctor.

Split-Level Child

... page 8

Poetess Rosalind Welcher takes us into the strange and wondrous minds of young suburbanites through her "after-nature" poems and drawings.

New Family in Town

The great exodus goes on. A steady flow of families continues to leave the city and move to the suburbs, where the population jumped by 10,000,000 between 1950 and 1960. What happens when the newcomers settle in a community? How are they accepted by the old settlers? In this month's Round Table we asked the editors of suburban papers across the country to tell us how their towns are surviving their growing pains.

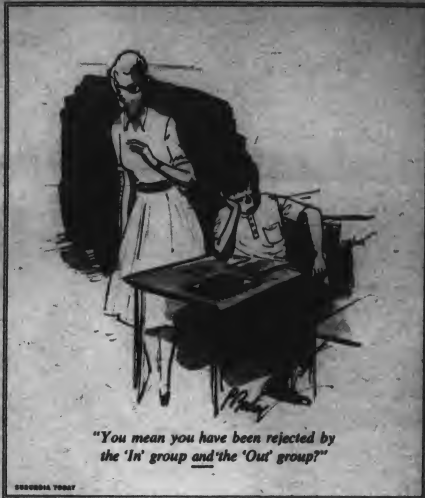

To Make at Home

Pick a pattern—choose a cloth to cut it in. Our fashion editor has selected five classic fall patterns for you to sew at home and has teamed them with swatches of the latest wools, silks, and tireless synthetics. There are big, bright plaids, bold houndstooth checks, lively tweeds, or, on the other hand, cut-velvets, sculptured brocades, or puffy matiselases—all to make sewing a special treat and wearing the results even more fun.

On the Cover

Who's modern? Not the young homemaker, as Laura Jean Allen's cover shows. She'll bake bread, even grind coffee in her old-fashioned kitchen. As for Mom—her dream kitchen is modern to the can opener. Here she can whip up a cake with the latest electric mixer or slip brown-and-serve rolls in the oven.

GETTING AROUND

... to Our Pleasant Places and People

POLK BROTHERS of Chicago are the biggest brand-name appliance dealers in the world, to be sure. But how come they were also the sponsors of the Polk Brothers Holiday Golf Classic, held in Lake County, Illinois, over Labor Day, with Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, and Gary Player signed to compete for a $50,000 purse?

"It was the fantastic growth of interest in golf as a sport for the entire family that made us think of the Classic," said Sol Polk, president of the firm. "And we had another good $50,000 reason for putting it on. Do you realize that 'Chicago-land' is now the golfing capital of the country—more courses within 50 miles of the Loop than you'll find in any similar area anywhere? I'm sick and tired of all the stale old gangland talk about Chicago, and the Classic was a good way of reminding people of the advantages we have here."

And for good measure the Polk brothers are planning on another reminder next Labor Day.

When a young taxpayer in Prairie Village, Kansas, heard she had been selected for an audit examination, she made this request: "Please may I

"Someone has been eating pears in my orchard!" said Eric Pearson. "Someone has been drinking from my rain barrel, and not too long ago!" said his neighbor. The mysterious stranger in both cases was papa bear, a huge 350-pound black bruiser who when last heard from was still on the loose in Rockland County, New York. He keeps appearing and just as quickly disappearing and, so far, the local police department has been unable to pick up his trail.

When it does catch up with him, he may have to take a supedose of tranquilizer in a heavy cartridge (delivered by special gun), but the game warden is hoping, before that happens, that the big boy will hit himself back to the hills—perhaps to nearby Bear Mountain.

Ever hear of Whistler's father? He, too, is believed to have been painted by his famous son, reports Mont Hurst of Dallas County, Texas, although the canvas is unsigned. However, the art critics don't think as much of the old gentleman as they do of his wife.

"Whistler's Mother" hangs in the Louvre in Paris. Dad is in a storage room in the Freer Gallery of Art in Washington.

"I never will be sure whether there are grunions, but I do know there are grunion hunters," writes a reader who visited San Diego, California, this summer. "I remember one moonlit night when a local disc jockey, with nothing better to do, suggested over the air that his listeners, mostly teen-agers, all congregate in Belmont Park with their transistor radios for a grunion hunt. And 5,000 of them did! Before it was over they had 50 policemen rushed to the scene—but as far as I know, no one caught a single grunion."

For exactly one hour once, Larry Evoc, city editor on the Birmingham, Michigan, "Eccentric," had one million dollars all to himself. As he sat in the midst of Midas splendor at one of the local banks and researched an article on money—what else?—he came up with this million-dollar information: One million dollars weighs about 176 pounds or the same as a good quarterback from Notre Dame. And it's about 40 feet in length when all the bundles are placed end to end. Based on the average household income in the Birmingham area, over $15,000 per annum, after taxes, it would take a man 66½ years to make his first million.

We were interested in a report that came in recently from the SPCA shelter in San Mateo, California. "Must you quarantine any animal that bites a person?" a telephone caller wanted to know. "What kind of animal?" asked the man in charge. "An elephant," came the hesitant reply. It wasn't pink either, it turned out, just the traditional gray, and it really had bitten Stanley Kramion in his own circus, while they were on tour in Oregon. By the time the circus got to San Mateo, Mr. Kramion was running a fever, had chills and couldn't swallow, so he took his chewed finger and threatening symptoms to the local hospital and reported Jumbo to the SPCA. After studying the case the hospital decided that all necessary first-aid treatment had already been given in Oregon. Final diagnosis: Tonsillitis, not elephant bite.

Last spring 200 women in Kettering, Ohio, were surprised to receive a dollar in the mail, donated by St. George's Episcopal Church, to be invested exclusively in their individual talents. The purpose?—to get big returns from these "talent dollars" and help raise the $8,000 for a kitchen which is sorely needed, but not included in St. George's budget. Entertaining Eleanor H. Green bought a stamp with part of her dollar and sent us this item. When the collection plate is passed this September on the deadline date, she'll have $10 earned from SUBURBIA TODAY to drop in with the rest of her contributions.*

*Editors' note: Our "Getting Around" Department pays $10 for each contribution printed, and some of the best material comes straight from our readers. Follow Mrs. Green's example and send in your news to Editor, "Getting Around," c/o SUBURBIA TODAY, 60 East 56 St., New York 22.

Why this new Hammond Chord Organ is the most expensive chord organ in the world

There are dozens of kinds of chord organs. Since Hammond invented the original 13 years ago, it has been imitated in a bewildering array of shapes and sizes and prices.

Some are toy-like little boxes that can rest in your lap. Some are relatively simple devices built into larger size cabinets. And some are worthy competitive instruments.

But not one offers you all of Hammond's musical versatility, Hammond's valuable music-making features, Hammond's rich melodic organ voices. Although the Hammond Chord Organ is the favorite instrument of beginners, scores of professional musicians have built successful entertainment careers around it.

A Hammond Chord Organ has 96 chord buttons, to give you a freedom of musical expression no other chord organ has yet matched... simply because other chord organs are so limited in the variety of chords you can play.

A Hammond Chord Organ has a Rhythm Bar that lets you accent the beat of your playing, adds color to classics, rhythm to dance tunes, exciting tempo to modern compositions. This is a feature patented by Hammond Organ Company.

A Hammond Chord Organ has two automatic bass pedals, that bring in a rich deep bass accompaniment at the touch of your toe. Tap them alternately and you play the "root" chord and its "fifth" for colorful bass effects. This is a feature patented by Hammond Organ Company.

A Hammond Chord Organ now has a reverberation system which creates a controlled echo effect so your playing sounds full and bright even in a room acoustically "deadened" by draperies, carpeting and furniture. This is a feature patented by Hammond Organ Company.

A Hammond Chord Organ has an unusual tonal balancing system which separates volume control for the chord section, the bass section and the keyboard section. You can mix the three parts of the organ sound to suit the effect you want.

A Hammond Chord Organ has Touch-Response Percussion to give you the sound of plucked strings like banjo and guitar, struck tones like xylophone and marimba. Hammond percussion, however, can be brought in on a single note or phrase, while other organs must make every note percussive when the percussion switch is on. The Hammond system is more flexible and expressive. It is a feature patented by Hammond Organ Company.

This latest model of the Hammond Chord Organ now has a Sound-Volume Swell Pedal that brings your music from a whisper to a great room-filling crescendo at the touch of your right foot. It is similar to the swell pedal on the most expensive Hammond Organs.

If you're thinking of a chord organ as a once-in-awhile time-filler, an amusing game, it won't matter much which one you buy.

But if you expect your investment to give you a full-fledged organ... if you expect to listen to true, rich organ tone... if you expect great satisfaction and lasting pleasure from playing... you'd better get a Hammond Chord Organ. America's leading music publishers have arranged and scored nearly 4,000 pieces especially for the Hammond Chord Organ. It costs $1075* complete with self-contained amplifier and speakers. It is worth every penny (even though the bench is extra).

Listen, Doctor

A famous and ungrateful patient sounds off—impatiently

BY EDWARD STREETER

Author of "Chairman of the Board," "Father of the Bride," etc.

MY DOCTOR is a close personal friend as well as one of the busiest men in town. In order not to add to his burdens I make a point of letting my physical disabilities pile up before bothering him, until it is a question of either a doctor or an undertaker. This year, by the time I called his nurse for an appointment, I had accumulated enough symptoms to keep the Mayo brothers busy for a week.

The nurse is quite friendly because I once brought her a gardenia on her birthday. She suggested I come early—around nine o'clock. "He always gives more time than he plans to his first patient," she said. "As a result, what with people coming in without appointments who are really sick, he gets farther and farther behind during the morning. If you come later you're apt to have quite a wait."

When I arrived at his office, however, there were already three moody looking characters researching for South Sea Island material in back numbers of the National Geographic.

The nurse said, "Are you going to have any tests made?"

I said, "How do I know? That's what I'm here to find out."

Without further discussion she led me to a little back room where an attractive blonde technician, who must have descended from a long line of vampires, immediately began extracting blood from various parts of my body.

"Now," she said, squeezing a last drop from my finger tip just for the fun of it, "if you will go into the other room, the doctor will be along."

I sat on the edge of the couch and studied my list of ailments so that I would not waste his time if and when he arrived.

He came bustling in full of good cheer.

"Good morning," I said crisply. "I have a list here of what's the matter with me so I won't waste your time."

He sat down on a stool facing me and lit a cigarette. "How's Jane?" he asked. "Has she had any more trouble?"

I told him about Jane. One by one he worked his way through the various members of my family. Then he extinguished his cigarette and picked up a stethoscope from the table.

"I have a list here of what's the matter with me," I reminded him.

He disregarded this. "Let's have a look at you," he said, clamping the cold stethoscope against my chest. "Splendid. You have the heart and lungs of a man of 40. You're in fine shape."

"But I am not," I replied. "I wouldn't be here if I were."

"What is the matter with you?" he asked, glancing at his wrist watch.

"Well, in the first place," I said, "I have a tremor that bothers me."

"You've had a tremor for the last 20 years," he said. "Hold out your arms and extend your fingers." He looked at my tremor unsympathetically, so I exaggerated it slightly until my hands were shaking like a pair of mating aspen leaves.

"How many cigarettes do you smoke a day?"

"I don't know," I said rather crossly. "It depends on what I am doing. Maybe 30 or 35. It all depends. Do you go around with an abacus counting yours?"

He nodded without comment.

"What else is the matter with you?" he asked.

"I get unbearably tired about four in the afternoon," I said. "I can scarcely crawl to my bed and pull myself up on it, and I go out like a light for an hour. If I wasn't retired I'd have to lie down on my desk."

"You are leading a bachelor's life these days, aren't you?" he asked. "I'll bet you go out practically every night."

"I have to eat," I protested.

"What do you do the rest of the evening?"

"None of your business," I said.

He nodded. "What time do you get up?"

"About seven."

"And you work hard all day?"

"I certainly do."

"That makes me tired just to think about it. What else is the matter with you?"

I consulted my list. "I wake up about three o'clock feeling as though I was giving birth to twin volcanoes."

"How much do you drink?" he said.

"About the same as you do," I replied irritably.

He nodded. "What else is the matter with you?"

"Item three," I said referring to my list, "I think my liver is enlarged."

"What makes you think so?" he asked.

"It is just an instinct," I said.

He pushed me down on the couch and plunged his hands behind my ribs until I could feel his fingers touch my backbone.

"You have the liver of a man of 30," he said.

"Possibly that's the trouble," I suggested. "Maybe I have an immature liver that never developed."

"What else is the matter with you?"

"Oh to hell with it," I said, crumpling up my list and tossing it on the table.

"Never saw you in better condition," he said.

"Wonderful. Splendid. Keep it up."

"Keep what up?" I asked, not too cordially.

"Whatever you're doing," he said. "It seems to agree with you."

WHE SHOOK HANDS perfunctorily, and I left. As I passed through the waiting room, I noticed the Geographics which my fellow sufferers had tossed on the table, and on the cover of one something about "Voodooism in the West Indies." I stopped a minute and turned the pages to the article. It was illustrated with a lot of color photographs of a sick man lying on the ground while around him leaped a whole medical school of witch doctors wearing comic masks, ringing bells, and brandishing spears at their patient.

I slipped the magazine under my arm. It belonged to the doctor, of course, but it was fairly dog-eared, and I wanted to go into this thing more thoroughly. Here was a group who obviously paid some attention to what their patients told them. It gave me food for thought.

Why OUR Children Go To Catholic Schools

It is not, as some imagine, because we want to keep our children apart from public school children.

It is not because Catholics want to dominate the education and culture of our society.

Nearly 5,000,000 children attend Catholic elementary schools in the United States today for just one reason: We believe that religion is the most important thing in life, and that education for our children is not adequate unless... as Pope Leo XIII said in 1897... it is "permeated by Christian piety."

In the United States, public schools are prohibited by law from providing such an education. (In Canada, Toronto public schools have prayers and Bible readings; Quebec public and parochial schools are both tax-supported.)

It is not uncommon in our times to see highly-educated persons whose knowledge is not "permeated by Christian piety." One, for example, may achieve distinction in the field of biology while holding to the view that man has no soul to save. Another will achieve scholastic prominence in the field of human relations without believing at all in the sanctity of marriage. Some attain greatness in the academic aspects of science while refusing to concede that divine considerations have any weight in their field.

Believing as we do that we are placed upon this earth to fulfill a divine and eternal purpose, Catholics do not believe it is enough merely to educate their children in the arts, crafts and sciences. It is not enough merely to educate them to meet the everyday practical problems of their existence on earth... to make money, attain prominence, or to achieve physical security.

As Catholics see it, our children must be educated not only in mind and body... but in heart and soul. That is not possible in a public school, under the law. So, in the United States alone, Catholic parents not only pay their share of the support for public schools, but maintain nearly 11,000 Catholic elementary schools at their own expense.

If you would like a more detailed explanation of why Catholics have their own schools... What goes on in a Catholic school... How Catholic schools benefit the nation... What and how Catholic children are taught—write today for our free pamphlet entitled "Should Children Learn About God—in School?" It will be mailed immediately; nobody will call on you. Old Settlers and New People— How Do They Mix?

THREE YEARS AGO the Bureau of the Census published 50 closely printed blue books, one for every state, with the latest findings on the American people. Included, of course, are data on where they all are today. A quick spot-check will show you, for instance, that some 17,000 are in the suburb of Raytown, Missouri, which 10 years before wasn't even incorporated. There are 21,000 more today in Redwood City, California, than there were in 1950, and 10,000 more in Littleton, Colorado. Look up any suburb in any of these books and the story is the same.

On the local level, we all see it happening in everyday terms we have come to take for granted—the purposeful piles of earth where a tangle of weeds and sumach used to be; new young fances in the postoffice and the library; more children entering first grade this month than there were in the whole school a few years back. Normal as it all seems, these are the outward and visible signs of the greatest migration in the shortest time in our history, the flight of more than 10,000,000 people to the suburbs in the last ten years.

Inwardly and spiritually, there are bound to be conflicts and adjustments in any such great movement of people. In some places, like Raytown, Missouri, a few hundred inhabitants had it all to themselves, up to recent times. In other suburbs, long-established patterns of community life have had to be adjusted to accommodate the flood of new arrivals. To add to the confusion, the "elsewhere-ians" have often brought in new religions, new racial backgrounds, new occupations. How are the old-timers adapting themselves? And how are the newcomers faring? These are awkward questions in many towns, but the answers are important for the light they shed on a real problem.

When we turned, as usual, to the editors of suburban papers throughout the country, we found that local reactions varied so widely that at first we had trouble getting any over-all picture.

At one extreme, consider the situation in a town in Massachusetts or Virginia, which proudly traces its origin back to the 18th or even the 17th century. Over the years, social and political power have become the perquisites of a comparatively small group whose roots are deep in the past. These roots are not easily dug up, and they are resistant to the intrusion of fresh roots from which new growths seek to draw nourishment. For the "upstart" newcomer there is one crushing comment—how long has the man lived here, anyway? This attitude is not readily abandoned, even while the whole outward character of the community is being drastically altered as it changes from rural supply center to fast-growing suburb.

We heard of one New England village in which, for all practical purposes, the paramount political power is wielded by one member of the village board who has been in office for over a quarter-century—as were his father and his grandfather before him. Invariably he listens in silence to any discussion until it has run its course. Then he either grants or nods or says curtly: "I don't hold with it." One way or the other, this pronouncement decides the issue. There happens to be a newcomer majority on the voting rolls of this village, but somehow they haven't been able to get organized for effective counteraction.

In the long-established communities, the old-timers have influence at the state capitols and in the courts. Socially, they control such status symbols as the garden club and the historical society, and in more than one lakeside village there's a boat club which is highly exclusive.

At the other extreme of the suburban panorama, old-timers of long standing are rarely to be found. Take a brand-new suburban. "development" which has appeared almost overnight where last year there was only grassland. No real old-timers there at all, you'd say, except that communities, even the newest, have an odd way of breeding their own. The people who get there first acquire a slightly smug attitude toward those who come a few weeks or a few months later.

"Now wait a minute, friend. I was right here when this sewer extension was first proposed, and I know the facts."

Does the approach sound familiar?

LET A YEAR or two go by, and you find the old-timer complex taking hold and developing a resistance to change just because it is change.

The patterns of the community thus begin to appear: They are less dependent on aged-in-the-wood tradition than in the older towns but they are patterns just the same. Farther out from the metropolitan centers, meanwhile, the rural fringe areas are being still further invaded, and the process repeats itself—seemingly endlessly. A discerning and thoughtful editor in Minnesota believes it is "the most important constant of our times in suburban development."

Let's now consider the vast "in-between" region which is neither dominated by tradition, nor

Some members of the Round Table panel of suburban newspapermen and women who contributed to the findings of this article:

Local newsmen speak frankly on a ticklish aspect of today's rush to the "peaceful" suburbs brand-new with the bulldozer scars still raw on the landscape. Here the process of adjustment to the influx of newcomers goes on, too, with local conflict here and there, but for the most part the key word is adjustment, not conflict.

Schools, according to our informants, are not prominent among the causes of conflict now. Better schools are a deep concern to newcomers, and they are almost invariably willing to spend all the money necessary. Old-timers as a class are against higher taxes, even if they no longer have school-age children of their own. How come? A West Coast editor suggests an answer: "The time gap between ceasing to be parents of teen-agers and becoming grandpas and grandmas isn't a very long one these days—and who's more anxious for kids to have the best of everything than grandparents?" Old-timers do occasionally balk at some aspects of "progressive education," but not all new arrivals are strong for "fancier" schools either, especially as they become better acquainted with the dimensions of their school-tax bill. Expressions of shock on this score are not infrequent.

Community planning is something else again. Many old-timers don't take to long-range planning in any form. On the other side, failure to plan ahead, to foresee the needs of the future, is one of the most frequent newcomer complaints. A New York state editor admits: "Our older inhabitants just weren't ready for the population explosion of the 1950s, and they're still bewildered by its results." But old-timer voices are heard scornfully referring to the young newcomers as "organization men" who don't know what life outside the big cities is all about and think all human affairs can be regulated by charts with neat little rectangles connected by dotted lines.

On zoning, there is a wide variety of viewpoints. In some areas old-timers oppose it as "newfangled," while newcomers are in favor. Other old-timers in other towns favor zoning as a means of resisting what one of them calls "creeping commercialism," while here and there we find newcomer groups who are beginning to understand what two or three prosperous commercial or industrial taxpayers can do to help keep down the householder's tax charges. Not all newcomers feel this way—some are stoutly opposed to industry in their neighborhoods: "We moved out here to get away from noise and smog." On zoning there is no consistent trend at all.

SEVERAL EDITORS in widely separated areas point out the clash in viewpoint between commuters and stay-at-homes—the latter being, of course, the people whose occupations keep them in a suburban community 24 hours a day. These are more likely than not to be old-timers, and they have a set of vested interests which they sometimes think aren't understood by the so-called "dormitory people." The stay-at-homes have more opportunity to work themselves into places of political influence, and their livelihoods are more directly affected by such questions as zoning and tax rates. In some places the lines of cleavage are quite sharply drawn between these two groups and are affected also by the working-hour presence of employees of the stay-at-homes who can't afford to make their homes in the community. They, at times, set up a demand for low-cost housing which runs counter to the taste of the commuters—and perhaps to zoning ordinances.

The pressure toward conformity which is found in many suburban communities has cropped up in previous Round Tables, of course; "conform to what" is one question that arises between old-timers and newcomers. Thus—in a northwestern community, newcomers were campaigning for badly needed storm sewers; old-timers opposed, said, "We've never needed such things, and you don't need 'em now." To which the newcomers retorted, "You've built most of your houses on the high ground, and there's no high ground left for us!" The old-timers in this case saw the point.

But others have carried their demand for conformity so far as to object to new houses simply because they "block the view" or "aren't in harmony with the prevailing taste." It may be admitted, observed one editor dryly, that on a tree-lined street of neat colonial-style cottages, a ranch-type split-level of a later generation is not exactly harmonious, and at least one instance is known where building permits have to be scanned by a committee of old-timers appointed to make sure of architectural harmony.

We asked especially about social strongholds from which newcomers are excluded, and the replies were, in the majority, negative. From the Southwest: "There's a social hard core which isn't easily penetrated, and a few clubs 'observe' newcomers for a year or so before opening the gates." In other places, election to the volunteer fire department is a status symbol not readily forthcoming. In a large northern metropolitan district our informant notes that the American Legion Posts are old-timer centers—adding that two or three of them make it a point of pride that no veteran of World War II has yet been post commander.]

But it's refreshing to note that the club as a hard-rock citadel of privilege does not seem to flourish in the climate of today's suburbia.

"Organizations in our area which don't encourage newcomers are slowly dying," notes one editor.

"There's no club here with a policy of excluding new arrivals and won't ever be if this paper hears of it," an editor from the Rocky Mountains area tells us.

Indeed, having recounted—on the theory that a fight is more newsworthy than peace and quiet—the various kinds and causes of contention between old-timers and newcomers, it is our happy duty to state that while this contention has been indeed a fact of suburban life, fully 50% of our replies emphasized that "in our town we are quick to welcome newcomers, try to make them feel at home." Newcomers' clubs with a varied program of social activities are found from coast to coast and are well attended. Block parties to welcome a new family are quite usual and to be known as a "friendly town" is rated as an important asset.

Without new residents, communities would not flourish, and without happy new residents, their flourishing would be short-lived. However slow, in some instances, old-timers may be to accept newcomers en masse, they do consistently welcome them as individuals.

One delightful instance of this, from Minnesota, strikes the note which, on balance, appears to be increasingly representative of today's suburban scene.

"A NEW residents in the suburb of Robbinsdale some 15 years ago," the editor writes, "we'd never had such wonderful neighbors as the elderly couple next door. As each of our three children was born, the Tuckers were very helpful. Mrs. Tucker even canned the corn in our garden when we were on vacation—imagine—and Mr. Tucker helped re-finish some of our antiques. They treated us as their children. I'm sure you'd find many such friendships in suburban areas."

What a nice thing to be sure of—and we can agree. The wonder is not that there is friction, but that the suburban migration can proceed on its history-making scale as smoothly as it does.

Caribbean Charter Cruise

BY BILL ROBINSON, Associate Editor, Yachting Magazine

BEFORE A BRISK Caribbean trade wind from the east, the 70-foot schooner Mollhawk carried us out of Tyrell Bay on the island of Carriacou, where oysters grow on trees. Over bright blue seas and under a tropical sun, as flying fish and porpoises played around us, we sailed past the odd-shaped rock known as Kick 'em Jenny, along the green and hilly coast of Grenada, terraced with spice plantations, and into the harbor of St. George's.

Thus ended a fabulous cruise through the Lesser Antilles island chain in the Eastern Caribbean that would have been impossible to manage a few years ago unless we happened to be retired millionaires. In this age of jet planes and well-organized charter cruises, however, we had accomplished it as a family trip over school spring vacation. We had flown down to Puerto Rico, had 10 hours there to sight-see in the lush rain forest on El Yunque Mountain, and then had flown on 300 miles more to spend a day in Antigua's glamorous surroundings.

It is at English Harbour on Antigua that the charter fleet of sailing yachts now makes its base, under the direction of Commander Vernon Nicholson, who is a retired British naval officer and the owner of Mollihawk. Bookings are arranged through the Nicholson office in John's, Antigua, and the vessels ply the waters from Antigua south to Grenada, some 300 miles. In this area, there are seven major islands 20 to 40 miles long and hundreds of smaller ones, none of them more than 40 miles apart. Charter parties usually make arrangements to join a yacht at Antigua, Martinique, or Grenada. They sail in one direction, north or south, and then fly back.

CRUISES MAY BE BOOKED for a week or longer. Costs can be figured roughly as comparable to first-class hotel accommodations—$25-35 per day per person for all expenses on board, depending on the size of the yacht. Air fare to the area is a little more than $200 round-trip tourist. Most of the yachts are booked by a family or a party of people who know each other, though one or two of the larger vessels take passengers on an individual basis.

You save ironing 4 ways...with this new Kelvinator dryer!

You iron far less when this new Kelvinator dries your clothes.

All in one unit, it combines all the latest advances to prevent or eliminate wrinkles.

First, it never bakes in wrinkles. Automatically, it senses the amount of moisture in your clothes and shuts itself off when they are dried just the way you want them.

Timed drying is also available for damp drying and gentle no-heat fluffing.

Second, a special wash-wear cycle removes wrinkles from wash-wear, but retains all of the preset creases.

Third, Kelvinator smooths and stuffs away wrinkles with a 10-minute cool tumble at the end of each cycle.

Fourth, a buzzer sounds to tell you when drying is done so you can remove clothes right away and prevent re-wrinkling. (Kelvinator engineers felt a buzzer was needed because the dryer operates so quietly. You can adjust the sound level of the buzzer or shut it off entirely.)

Such an advanced dryer is possible because of the Kelvinator Constant Basic Improvement program. It's another way American Motors brings you more real value just as in Rambler cars.

Why just dry your clothes any longer — when you can dry them and save ironing, too?

Do You LOVE House Plants?

*You begin from there, says the pro
who keeps 2,000 of them flourishing at United Nations headquarters

author of "Miracle Gardening Encyclopedia"

UN gardener Blaney sponges monsters.

A bank of exotic plants, set in pots, at the delegates' entrance to UN headquarters.

"MORE THAN TWO MILLION visitors a year see our plants," said Tom Blaney, head gardener at the imposing United Nations headquarters, "so they have to be kept in top condition daily. How do we do it? We give them the same care you would at home, except on a bigger scale. It's a matter of sensible house-keeping, following a few simple steps, and keeping at it week after week."

Blaney's proud comments as we walked from one graceful display to another made it clear that the first rule is to love plants for their beauty. He went on to tick off the other basic points of good plant keeping on his chunky fingers, starting at his green thumb: "Proper watering—enough light—humidity—cleanliness—protection—feeding." He finished, "That's about it." Six fingers' worth.

The most important single point in caring for indoor plants? "That's hard to pin down," he pondered, "but many plant troubles are due to improper watering, usually too much watering."

How often should you water plants? Blaney laughed.

"That's the question most people ask; they want a magic formula. There isn't any. It varies by type of plant and room conditions. The general guide is to soak the plant, let it go from four to seven days until the soil is almost dry, then water."

Light is another all-important factor.

"Because we have little direct light for plants in the UN building, we have mostly foliage plants that can live without much light. Which ones? Philodendron of many varieties, dracaena, aspidistra, pandanus, sansevieria (snake plants), dieffenbachia, ficus, kentia, and others. Philodendron and dracaena are the dependables."

He has African violets, begonias, and other favorites blooming on light-flooded window sills and also under electric lamps where the bulbs are only about a foot above the tops of the plants. If you like to experiment, try placing low-flowering plants the way he does, under lamps where the bulbs are on 12 or more hours a day. With a sufficient amount of artificial light you may be able to keep them blooming in rooms with scanty natural light.

"Lack of humidity is one of our big troubles in growing plants here," Blaney emphasized, "just as in many homes. Wherever possible, we set the pots (all our plants stay in their pots) on beds of peat moss covered with a topping of smooth, round stones for beauty. We soak the peat moss every few days, so that moisture rises around the plants. Also, we water a fine mist of water on the foliage every week, when we can find the time. A good thing to do at home, too."

House Plants

And at home you can place the pots over shallow trays containing water. But don't let the bottoms of the pots actually stand in water, or plants will get "wet feet" and trouble. Trays of water on radiators also will provide humidity that's good both for plants and for you.

"We try to clean the foliage every week," he continued. "We use a bucketful of weak insecticide with a nicotine base and sponge off the leaves, including the grooves where leaves and branches join the stalk."

That's important at home, too. Sponge off plants about once a week or clean with soft bristles—with an old shaving brush, for instance. Spray with a mild insecticide at any sign of mealybugs, aphids, or other insects; it only takes seconds.

Although the food at UN restaurants is good, the UN's plants are fed unite.

"We don't feed heavily," Blaney explained, "because we don't want foliage to spring up fast and get spindly so that we have to cut back too often. Of course, we start with a rich soil mixture. When we do feed, we use water-soluble plant food, applying it as we water through a tube attached to a tank."

That, too, is quick, clean, and easy to do at home. Mix a weak solution of soluble plant food in water and soak the soil with a long-nosed can that bypasses the leaves. For more blooms on flowering plants, apply every two or three weeks. It can make a wonderful difference in bloom size as well as quantity.

"When roots become too crowded," Blaney continued, "we report in containers only as inch or so wider in diameter. People at home usually report to a much larger container, which is bad. Also, with flowering plants, you get more blooms if roots are a little crowded."

"When we trim valuable plants, we often save some leaves with a few inches of stem, put them in jars two-thirds full of water, and add a few chunks of charcoal to keep the water sweet and clear. In a month or so the stems have developed strong roots, ready to grow into beautiful new plants. Anybody can do that at home."

And, with Tom Blaney's practical advice, anyone can keep house plants happy at home.

My baby looks like the Gerber baby—

Bringing Up Baby®
Hints Collected
by Mrs. Dan Gerber,
Mother of 5

Of all the warm and wonderful words, written by warm and wonderful mothers, none please me more than these: "My baby looks like the Gerber Baby." Because I like to think the Gerber Baby has a special something that belongs to all babies who are loved. It lights up their eyes. It sings out in their shining smiles. It speaks softly of inner security ... proof positive of a happy heart.

Yes, love is the strong song, managing miracles nothing else can. When you love a baby you wrap him in a smile that will warm him a whole life through.

Mothers often write to ask if the Gerber Baby is a boy baby or a girl baby. Well, our little charmer was conceived not as a he or she, but a representative baby ... the beautiful kind all mothers have.

When the Gerber Baby first appeared in Gerber advertisements over 30 years ago, mothers by the score began writing for reprints of the little likeness. (Matter of fact, the very popularity of the picture prompted the decision to use the baby as the Gerber trademark.) If you would like a print suitable for framing, just send 10¢, to cover costs, to: Gerber Baby Foods, Dept. M-3, Fremont, Michigan.

Today, the Gerber Baby is more than just a famous trademark. It has become the symbol of the specialists who devote all their energies to the most important people ... your baby and all babies. Their efforts are never-ending in behalf of better infant nutrition. From research, all through processing and final packing, the people who prepare your baby's food look upon the Gerber Baby as their special representative for Gerber quality.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—cereals, strained and junior—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say: "FOODS ARE OUR BUSINESS ... OUR ONLY BUSINESS!"

five crew of three to cook and help run the ship), outlined a suggested schedule. He recommended a day of lazing around Marigot Lagoon on St. Lucia and a night passage to the Grenadines in order to take in more stops.

His idea was a good one, as we spent an interesting day snorkeling on Marigot's reefs and visiting the two newly built inns on the shores of this picture-book harbor. Then a quiet night passage took us to the little island of Bequia in the Grenadines. Capt. Christian and his native first mate, Edmund, stood watches, and we slept soundly, lulled by the easy motion of a ship under sail.

The Grenadines are lower and more barren than the bigger islands of the Lesser Antilles. One legend has them as the peaks of the drowned continent of Atlantis, and their oddly shaped brown hills, jagged and steep, do look as though dinosaurs could lumber across them.

WE SPENT AN IDEALIC FOUR DAYS visiting Bequia (they pronounce it Beck-wee), Tobago Cays, Union, and Carriacou with perfect sailing over the calm blue waters inside the reefs, and the snorkeling was the best we have ever seen. I remember especially an underwater reef of fantastic shape and color, teeming with fish of all sizes, shapes, and hues, that lay in shallow water just off a beautiful curve of white sand beach, dazzling in its purity.

So bright is the water color that it reflects on the white undersides of sea birds soaring overhead, turning them a delicate turquoise. At sunset, relaxed from a long day of beachcombing and exploring the reefs in Mollihawk's dinghy, we sat in the cockpit and watched the play of clouds over the islands to the westward. When the colors faded from the sky, there wasn't a light to be seen in any direction, and the only sounds were the hum of the trades through the rigging and the lap-lap of waves on our hull.

At the end of the four days, Carriacou offered a partial return to civilization, and some breath-taking views from its hills. And Grenada seemed like a metropolis when we arrived, after the last brisk sail, in the lovely landlocked harbor of St. George's. The waterfront is lined with busy shops, and there is constant automobile traffic along the quay and many native craft in the harbor.

A calypso singer serenaded us during our farewell evening ashore, and our last glimpse of the islands was during the hour's taxi ride to the airport through the lush vegetation of plantations faintly perfumed by masses of the orchid we know as vanilla.

Travel Council Told

BRIDGE-TUNNEL MAY OFFSET FAIR LOSS

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel is expected to help the state offset the loss of tourist business to the World's Fair in New York next year, members of the Virginia Travel Council were told here during its autumn conference.

Managing Director Robert F. Nelson told the group that Virginia may lose as much as 35 per cent of its regular tourist business to the fair but added the bridge-tunnel will help offset this loss.

He said the bridge tunnel is con-

VB Blvd. Claims Another Victim

CHINESE CORNER—Thomas R. Petty, 30, founder of the King's Grant Civic League, was killed instantly Friday night in a collision on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The accident occurred at one of three openings in the median strip which the city is in the process of closing to prevent crashes.

Police said Petty was driving east on the Boulevard at about 10:30 p.m. when his auto struck the side of a car driven by Walter Wayne Jones, 18, of the 5000 Block of Don Drive of Norfolk.

Jones' had pulled onto the Boulevard from Clearfield Road and stopped at the median strip waiting to turn into the west-bound lane of traffic, police said.

Jones' car was ripped into two pieces by the crash.

Safety Bureau Chief Reeves Johnson said the median opening where the two cars collided had been scheduled to be closed to traffic today. Two other openings in the median strip were closed last week. One of these was the scene of an earlier traffic fatality last January.

Two passengers in Jones' car were seriously injured. Airman Donald E. Driskill, 18, and Linda J. Altman, both of Norfolk were admitted to Portsmouth Naval Hospital with serious injuries.

Jones, who was knocked unconscious in the crash, was placed under observation at DePaul Hospital. He has been charged with manslaughter. The crash was investigated by Officer Leo Palmer of Virginia Beach Police.

Miss Lupton suffered cuts and bruises and was treated at the hospital and released. Miles also was treated and released after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Miss Lupton and Miles were passengers in the car. They were on their way to the football game between Princess Anne High School and Great Bridge High School. The game was played at Princess Anne High School.

"It takes so little time to write a check and mail it to me," Mrs. Miles said, "and your gift can mean so much to a homeless child."

"These babies need help—now, not next year. Placing a homeless baby in a good home can change his entire life and give him a real chance to grow up as your own children do."

Chamber Gives Support To Track Plans

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Executive Board of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the 1½-mile stock car racetrack proposed for Princess Anne Borough, Executive Director Roy LaMere said Monday.

The Chamber is the second large organization to endorse the $1,286,000 project within a week.

The Virginia Beach Automobile Dealers Association voted in favor of the track at a meeting Friday. President Gene Meekins said at that time he believes the track would be an off-season tourist attraction, boost land values and aid business.

LaMere was equally enthusiastic about the track.

Pro-Football Stadium
"The 50,000 - seat stadium could provide us with a place for professional football," he said, "and that would bring people from all over the country to Virginia Beach . . . we could fill our motels every week-end."

He also pointed out that if pro football and stock car races were held here the beach would benefit from millions of dollars worth of advertising on sports pages throughout the country.

"Within the year the Chamber has received two proposals that would have resulted in nationally televised events originating in Virginia Beach but we had to turn them down because we didn't have ample seating capacity. This proposed stadium would solve that problem," LaMere said.

Plans for the racetrack, the only one of its kind in Virginia, were revealed last week at a meeting of the City Planning Commission by track agent Douglas I. Shelton of Colonial Realty Co. It is proposed for a 350-acre site at the northeast corner of Princess Anne and Sandbridge Roads and would include the concrete stadium, an oval asphalt track and over 180 acres of parking space.

A request for rezoning that would permit construction of the track on that site met some opposition on the basis that the rezoning would decrease property values.

Time Running Out
The Planning Commission's recommendations will be sent to City Council at a future meeting.

Grammar Review Being Offered At Amphib Base

In informal, non-credit course, BASIC GRAMMAR REVIEW, is being offered at Little Creek Amphibious Base, Norfolk, this fall by the University of Virginia's School of General Studies, through its Hampton Roads Center.

The course has been designed as a practical refresher course in basic English grammar. Emphasis will be given to the proper application of grammar in oral and written work, both on the business and professional level and in everyday personal communication.

Classes will meet on Thursdays, beginning on Thursday, September 19, at 7:30 P.M., Little Creek Amphibious School. Registration for the course is being accepted at the Hampton Roads Center of office, 120 THE MALL, JANAF Shopping Center, Norfolk, telephone 855-2001. Classes will meet once a week, for two hours for a period of ten weeks. The cost of the course is $15.00.

Miss Mary R. Knight is the instructor. She is an instructor at Granby High School and received her master's degree in English from Duke University.

but Shelton said that time is running out if the track is to be built here.

"We hope that the Planning Commission will expedite their decision as soon as possible because the deadline for making race engagements for 1964-65 ends October 31," he said.

Construction on the track, if approved by City Council, will get underway this fall and racing would begin next year under National Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (NASCAR) sanction.

"Whether anyone likes stock car racing or not," LaMere said, "they should not be opposed to this project. They should consider the many benefits it would bring Virginia Beach. I hope the Planning Commission and City Council will consider these things."

Riv Industrial Land, City Told

RAYMOND—The City of Virginia Beach should purchase sufficient land along good highways and railroads to be set aside for industrial development, W. Fred Duckworth, president of the Tidewater Virginia Development Council, said Wednesday.

Addressing the Rayville Businessmen's Association at the Shore Drive Inn, Duckworth stressed that the city will zone certain areas for industrial use "just as soon as a few details that at the present are not conducive to industrial development are settled."

Presumably, he was referring to the lack of a water supply which would be essential at industrial sites.

Duckworth described such land purchases as "the only way plant sites can be made available to incoming manufacturing and distributors at a reasonable price without too much fluctuation and at the same time from a zoning standpoint out this industry where it is needed or can best be handled."

He said local industrial committees would do well not to proceed too fast in seeking outside industry.

It is easier to expand existing industry than to start from beginning, he pointed out.

Barber Charged With Burglaries

VIRGINIA BEACH—A twenty-year-old barber has been charged with six burglaries including the theft of a pistol and $800 in cash from the home of City Attorney George Vakos last June.

The charges were placed Thursday against Joseph Roosevelt Warren of Washington Ave., Virginia Beach Borough.

Police said Warren would knock on a door and ask for work if anyone answered. If not, police said, he would enter the home, usually by cutting a screen.

According to police, Warren took money, jewelry and radios valued at several thousand dollars in a series of raids in Bird Neck Point and elsewhere.

He was arrested last week after he was seen breaking into a home, police said.

Detectives E. L. Knowles, A. E. Nobles and Sgt. R. C. Davis investigated.

TEEN TOPICS . . .

By Lucy Selden
Asst. Home Demonstration Agent

How many times does mother say, "Mary, when are you going to straighten up your room," or "George, you have just got to start picking up after yourself. I can't do it any longer."

Even if you already are careful about keeping your room tidy or have good intentions of starting out the school year right maybe I can offer some suggestions to make the task easier.

Everyone wants to be "neat" these days and in many instances this all inclusive adjective means being well-groomed too. Of course we all like to be included in the category of good-looking and nicely dressed. And, we will also admit that in order to be well groomed we have to put forth some effort. This is just as true for fellows as it is for girls.

"Time to get up" comes awfully early in the morning on school days doesn't it? How often do you crawl out of bed and grope through your closet for something to wear. Then, after you decide what to put on, you are discouraged to find a button missing, a skirt wrinkled, or a hem hanging loose.

Keeping your room picked up and your clothes in good repair is all a part of good grooming. Why? Because your clothes wear longer and look better on you when they are stored properly and cared for day by day. Think of how much better job you could do on repairing your clothes if you worked on them when you had time and not in the rush of getting ready for school.

But—your say—"I don't feel like spending my time hanging up my clothes and putting everything away all the time."

I agree, it does take some time to bang up everything, but, it means that you can wear the same outfit again without pressing it the time spent hanging it up is worth it—don't you agree?

There are some ways to make the job easier. Sit down on your bed and think through how you get dressed. Decide on what is the quickest and most convenient location of hats, shoes, under garments, jewelry, and cosmetics in relation to your clothes closet. In deciding where to store remember these things add to your convenience:

1. Store items at easily reachable and convenient heights.
2. Store articles together that you use together—such as your dress shoes and gloves in the same place.
3. Save articles so that they are easy to see. That is—tall bottles and things behind shorter jars and bottles—shoe boxes so you know which pair is inside.
4. If you put your clothes in a definite and convenient place each time you remove them, the task is much easier than it would be if you never could decide what goes where.
5. Arrange your closet so garments don't get rumpled. Now is the time to get rid of some of your summer clothes put away. Get a new hanger with a wooden neck piece for your suits.
6. Have your garments washed or cleaned before you put them back in the closet. Another idea to help is to have a container for your shoes to take to or in your closet. Especially important is to have a box for shoes that have to be washed by hand.
7. Taking care of your clothes will require a little thought. It may not be as fun as hanging out, but stick to it and you'll see that suddenly you have a neat closet—a habit that stays with you a life time.
8. And last but not least, try to keep your clothes in order—so, be a

Cavalier Gardeners Meet Wednesday

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Cavalier Garden Club will meet Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at Callee Episcopal Church. Mrs. L. O. Clark Jr. is president.

The program will consist of a flower arranging clinic conducted by five member-instructors: Mrs. E. A. Hoffmeister, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Fred Barham, Mrs. Robert P. Maul and Mrs. Carl M. Rau.

A skit on "The Well Misinformed Club Ladies" brought about some rather unusual expressions (to say the least) when (left to right) Mrs. J. A. Holland, Mrs. Roy M. Harkness, Mrs. Colon L. Powers and Mrs. Thomas B. Petty demonstrated their theatrical abilities for the Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club.

MRS. J. A. HOLLAND WILL BE CLUB REPRESENTATIVE

BAYSIDE — The Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach combined business and pleasure at their Club Institute Meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 11. A Picnic Luncheon was held on the lawn of the Mrs. Elwood A. Hudson on Lake Joyce in Bayside.

Following the luncheon, a brief business session was held during which time the Club elected Mrs. J. A. Holland as their representative to the Tidewater District meeting of Women's Clubs in October. Mrs. Lonnie Jarvis was elected as alternate.

Membership Chairman, Mrs. Colon L. Powers, reported that three new members had been accepted into the Club membership. They were Mrs. Irvin Ulmshook, Mrs. Jack Roper and Mrs. E. E. Linekin.

Mrs. Harry W. Fulford announced that plans were being made for a bus trip to Richmond while the General Assembly was in session. It has also been planned that on the same trip Club members will have the opportunity to visit the Medical College of Virginia where they will view the Maxitron, the $100,000 machine used for the treatment and research of cancer.

The Club Women of Virginia raised the bulk of money necessary to buy this machine. The trip will be sponsored by the Public Affairs Department of the Chesapeake Beach and Bayside Junior Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Fulford also announced that Miss Marcia Siegfried had, for the third year, received the $350.00 Bayside Scholarship grant, which is given annually by the Chesapeake Club. Miss Siegfried, a student at Longwood College in Farmville, resides in Bayside Pines.

Mrs. Elwood A. Hudson presented an original skit in panel form for the institute program entitled "What the Well Misinformed Club Member Knows." Those participating were Mrs. Thomas B. Petty, Club President, Mrs. Roy M. Harkness, Mrs. Colon L. Powers and Mrs. J. A. Holland. The participants surprised their panel Moderator, Mrs. Hudson, by denouncing "hat" supposedly peculiar to Club women, and Mrs. Petty stole the show by wearing the newest in "wigs." The skit was designed to provoke audience participation. Bringing Year Books

Kathy and Debbie Moore, Jill Goff and Brenda Manby won their blue ribbons on horticulture specimens of Colasia, Marigolds, Geraniums, Pansies and Petunias.

The middle of the nineteenth century saw one of the most significant strides in the long history of medicine—the use of anesthetics to relieve pain of surgery. Of course, a wide variety of specific poisons were known and used much earlier, but they were difficult to control and often exerted fatal influence on the patient and his recovery.

Surgery of the pre-anesthetic days either left their patients severely with ropes or relied on speed to finish operations quickly before the patient had much time to reflect on his suffering.

Getting away from anesthetics and into the subject of prescriptions, this is where BARR'S REXALL PHARMACY comes in. We have a complete prescription service, and in addition, you will find a large and varied selection of sundry items at BARR'S REXALL PHARMACY, 17th & Atlantic Ave. Phone GA 8-1211. An Open Letter To All Parents:

Dear Parents:

If you have a child in your home this letter is especially important to you.

At the beginning of a new school term, you, as a parent, and we as ophthalmic practitioners should be particularly concerned with the vision of our children. A recent report from the Better Vision Institute points out the need for this concern with statistics that show that one out of every four children today needs eye care or a new prescription.

Periodic eye examinations are important to the well-being of every child. They should be as routine as other aspects of health care. Only through regular professional eye care can a child's visual problem be determined at an early stage and the necessary steps be taken to correct it before it gives rise to other and often greater problems.

If your child has not had professional eye care recently, we urge you to make an appointment now for him to have a complete eye examination. Good vision as he starts the school year can be his most important asset.

We owe this to our children.

Local Agriculture Office Announces Elections

PRINCESS ANNE — Election of 12 Community Committeemen to hold Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service positions will be conducted by mail this year, Norman T. Beal, manager of the local office, announced last week.

A slate of 10 nominees will be sent to farmers in each of the four agricultural communities—Princess Anne, Pungo, Blackwater and Kempsville—and farmers will vote for the five of their choice.

The top three elected from each community will then become Committeemen for that community and will assume office on Nov. 1.

These Committeemen will represent their community in deciding important questions affecting the economy of farms in that specific area.

Among programs they will help administer will be: price support, feed grain programs, and loan and conservation programs, all of which operate with federal funds. Beal said that any eligible voter may add a name of his choice to the ballot providing he gets six or more voters to sign the petition and returns it to the ASCS office by next Monday.

The names of persons so nominated by petition will be included on the ballot if found to be eligible and willing to serve.

In order to take the examination the applicant must satisfy certain requirements. The minimum requirements are:

(1) The applicant must be 20 years of age. Under no conditions may the applicant be permitted to take the test prior to the time that he would have graduated had he remained in school.

(2) The applicant shall have earned at least 8 units of high school credit. Applicants who have obtained their 26th birthday may not be required to present the above units.

(3) The applicant shall have resided in Virginia one year prior to applying for the battery of tests and must reside in the school division through which he makes application.

(4) The applicant must attain a passing score on the complete battery of tests provided by the State Department of Education.

People who desire to take this test should make application to F. E. Taylor, High School Supervisor, Virginia Beach City Schools, Princess Anne Station, Virginia Beach. The deadline for submission of applications is Friday, October 4th. The test will be administered at the School Administration Building in Virginia Beach, 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

10 p.m. two nights each week for approximately three months. For further information call (day) MA 7-5651, (evening) MA 7-0992.

DON'T GET CAUGHT WITH A DRY TANK

By Hank Bowman

The pet gripe of marine rescue patrols, the Coast Guard and other groups dedicated to keeping boatmen everywhere out of trouble are the characters who have enough fuel for a one-hour run and head one hour straight out from their mooring.

It's a long way between filling stations when you're in a boat. And a few gallons of fuel can mean the difference between a pleasant day on the water and a tragedy if a storm happens to be brewing.

Boatmen, outboarders and inboarders alike, should know, not guess, how much fuel their outfit consumes.

An inboard operator should, on the basis of actual trials, figure out the number of gallons per hour of gasoline that his boat will consume in at least three different RPM ranges and the speed of his boat through the water at these three different engine speeds.

The skipper who spots a storm brewing will know whether he has enough fuel to reach his home port at the speed required in order to beat the storm or whether he should seek out a lee anchorage.

The outboarder should make fuel checks at full throttle, cruising economy range and at a slow throttle.

Since the outboard is more susceptible to weight changes as concerns its performance than is the inboard, the outboarder should make up two sets of fuel consumption figures: one with a light load, that is with just one additional passenger, and one with a full passenger load plus accessory gear.

A sudden head wind, strong current or rough water can cut down performance considerably. Always carry at least 25% more fuel than you will expect to burn on your planned outing.

Remember, too, that if you kill your engine and drift, you may be drifting away from your starting point.

Hunters Will Benefit From Conservation

PRINCESS ANNE — Every hunter in Va. Beach has a personal stake in the Agricultural Conservation Program. So does every fisherman, and every family that likes to camp out or picnic in the woods.

That's the opinion of Russell Dudley, Chairman, Va. Beach Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. He offers some facts to prove it.

"Hunting, fishing and outdoor recreation are part of our American heritage," the Chairman said. "And each year we find that the demand for all forms of outdoor recreation are growing."

Dudley said that today 85 percent of the wildlife in the United States is produced on privately owned farms and ranches. Rabbits, foxes, pheasants, doves, quail and other game are part of the harvest on farms. And hunters know that farms and ranches with properly installed conservation measures afford the best hunting.

Small game finds concealment in grass, brush and shrubs along the edges of fields and woodlands, along ditchbanks AND in specially prepared wildlife strips. These places are also sources of food and shelter. Well-managed farms usually have adequate supplies of water.

The Conservation Program which the ASC Committee administers locally is designed to help farmers set established — and extend their accomplishments — in conservation farming, and in wildlife conservation. It is a cost — sharing arrangement through which the public joins with farmers and ranchers to conserve and protect all the soil, water, woodland and wildlife resources.

This year many farmers in lower Va. Beach have out in wildlife plots for protection and feed for birds and small game over the fall and winter. Among them are Marvin Dawley, and Garland (Jack) Fentress of Princess Anne Station, and Roy Lovitt, Leav Whitehurst and W. J. Cartwright of Back Bay. For Whitehurst and Lovitt this is the second year they have put in such a strip. Seeds used were: millet, sudan, corn, milo and others which produce good cover and abundant seed for wildlife.

Initially, the public shares about half the cost of carrying out approved conservation practices on farmland. Chairman Dudley reported, here in Va. Beach the rates for different practices vary. He stressed that this program is entirely voluntary. The farmer chooses the kind of practice he wants to carry out. The Committee approves his request based on needs of the land and feasibility of the practice, and upon availability of funds in the current year's program.

Farmers pay their share of the total cost in cash, labor use of equipment, or conservation materials.

Some practices are approved annually for the benefit of wildlife. Life land water or cover. Many practices that are primarily for conservation of soil water and woodland also provide food water and cover for wildlife.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

To The Credit of Private Enterprise

A few years ago there was a great deal of talk concerning the need for a government "crash program" to hasten the production of economical electric power from nuclear sources. This, said the scheme's proponents, was the only way the challenge could be met. Private enterprise in the power field, it was assumed, just didn't have the resources or the will to do the huge job.

Well, we don't hear much about such a program today. And with good reason—for progress in this new and complex industrial art, spurred by the investor-owned utility industry and the electrical equipment manufacturers, working in close cooperation with the Atomic Energy Commission, has exceeded past expectations. This is especially true of the steps taken to solve one of the most vexing of problems—that is, to bring the overall costs of nuclear power generation down to a point where they are comparable to those of generation from conventional fuels.

New projects of one kind or another are constantly being undertaken. To take a current example, in late July the Public Service Company of Colorado entered into a two-year research and development program for the design of a 250,000-kilowatt nuclear power plant. Other sponsors of the program include a group of Midwest, Mountain and Western region investor-owned utility companies. Advanced technology will be analyzed and incorporated in the study. The goal is to produce knowledge which will serve the long-term interest of the customers and the regions served by these companies.

So the story goes, the nation over. Some nuclear plants are in operation, some are being built, some are in the blueprint stage, some are being studied. One by one, the unknowns become the knowns, as the frontiers of knowledge advance. These great achievements, in very large part, must be chalked up to the credit of private enterprise.

Grave Doubts

There is a fear, which has found its reflection in government policy and in various laws passed over the years, that in certain fields the future of small business is imperiled by big business.

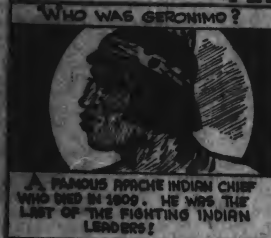

Without debating the pros and cons of this feeling, it is an ironical fact that some of the government's own laws and regulations are especially damaging to small business and, at the same time, lessen competition within the industries concerned.

Take, for instance, the new amendments affecting the drug industry which were passed last year. Dr. Austin Smith, President of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, has said: "Will the 1962 Drug Amendments stimulate competition in the pharmaceutical industry? On the contrary, some, in fact many, believe they will inhibit it. All of the evidence of my survey indicates that if innovation—research—is the key, the large firms can afford the privilege of complying with new federal edicts and maybe grow larger. But how many of the small firms will survive, temporarily or otherwise, without new product developments because they cannot afford the combination of lengthened pre-marketing pondering of new drugs coupled with added paperwork expenses of such studies, remains to be seen. There are many grave doubts about the future."

Reports now demanded under the law may run to thousands of pages. The costs, in time, money, energy, resources of every sort, may be staggering. One can sympathize with the honestly motivated effort to give the fullest possible protection to the users of drugs, and to establish high standards of safety and performance. But if this effort goes so far as to inhibit research and experiment, the loss will vastly outweigh the gain. If we attempt to eliminate every conceivable risk, we will eliminate progress. That would be a profound tragedy.

VEPCO Reports July Income

Operating revenues for July of $16,469,000 and a net income for the month of $3,207,000 were reported today by A. H. McDowell Jr., president of the Virginia Electric and Power Company.

Operating revenues for the twelve months ending July 31, 1963, totaled $192,555,000 and net income amounted to $39,355,000. During the same period in 1961-62, operating revenues were $181,792,000 and net income was $37,009,000. Operating revenues for July, 1962, were $15,499,000 and net income was $3,240,000.

Per share earnings on the company's common stock for the twelve months adjusted to reflect the stock split (3 shares for 2 shares) effected April 26, 1963, amounted to $1.57 this year compared to $1.53 last year, based on 22,365,000 shares outstanding at July 31 for both periods. Vepco spent $45.7 million in its 1963 construction budget of $89 million during the first seven months of this year. Major construction projects include a fifth unit at Chesapeake Power Station and the Mt. Vernon nine-mouth station in the West Virginia coal fields.

Local Heart Group Helps Red Cross

The Board of Directors of Virginia Heart Association has voted unanimously to contribute a sum of $1,000 to the present flood relief fund of the Red Cross Program.

The Medical College is one of two hospitals in the State where open-heart surgery is performed. The other is the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville.

Dr. Rodney D. Bates, Jr., Member of Virginia Heart Association's Rheumatic Fever and Congenital Heart Committee, speaking on behalf of the Association's Board of Directors, said that the grant will be applied toward the salary of full-time Administrator in the growing Flood Donor Recruitment Program, "in order that the many details involved in obtaining enough fresh blood can continue to be adequately and promptly handled". One hundred and forty-nine patients have received open-heart surgery at the Medical College since the program was undertaken in 1960.

Some fifteen to thirty pints of fresh whole blood are needed for each open-heart operation. The blood must be taken from the donor within 24 hours before the operation and be completely compatible with the blood of the patient. To date, most of the operations performed at the Medical College have been performed on children and teens between three months and nineteen years of age.

Virginia Heart Association and its seven affiliates throughout the State of Virginia, through public contributions, provide services of research, in the areas of heart and blood diseases of education, to spread information found to the medical profession and to the general public, and of community service, the putting of heart disease and preventive measures into action.

Bates pointed out that many patients requiring blood for open-heart surgery at the Medical College come from areas of the State other than Richmond, "so the Board of Virginia Heart Association feels it is fitting that Virginia Heart aid its support to this important program."

He added that "the Board appreciates fully the necessity of the full-time administrator in this case, as well as added clerical assistance, in view of the increase in the number of recent open-heart operations." "The VHA Board," he said, "is most grateful for this splendid service being rendered the cardiac surgery patient by the Richmond Area Red Cross Chapter."

The Richmond Area Chapter of the Heart Association will also participate in the accelerated blood donor recruitment program by providing volunteer clerical assistance to the Red Cross. A spokesman for the Red Cross, in thanking the Heart Association for this financial assistance, said "the addition of the full-time administrator made possible, in part, by this grant, will enable the blood program to keep pace with the increasing demand for blood."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Sun-News:
Dear Sir:

May I take this column in which to express my sincere and heart-felt thanks to every merchant in Greater Virginia Beach and to the perfectly wonderful merchants of the City of Norfolk, who responded so generously to my call for help, when I was visiting and soliciting their contributions for an auction sale that I was working on in behalf of The Business and Professional Women's Club of Virginia Beach.

I mentioned in detail that our primary aim was to further education and help put more women into the business world and that is done through our annual scholarship fund — we decided this year that in addition to the scholarship, it would be well to join hands with the other groups that were working so diligently to get a new General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Every merchant that I talked to thoroughly understood our need, and seemed to want to be a part of this project. I was not reproached nor denied by one single person and I called on 150 merchants. I was very grateful for such a reception as I am well aware that these people bear this sort of thing on an average of four times a day.

I would like to say that through the auction we were able to take care of our annual obligations and in addition to this we, on Monday night, September 2nd at the Fine Arts, presented Mr. Willis the administrator of the hospital, a check to cover an electrocardiogram machine and stand.

I am sure that as you read this, you will feel a great sense of pride as we do, at having had a share in this worthwhile cause and to the Virginia Beach Sun-News goes an extra special "Thank You" not only for their most generous gifts materially, but for the extensive free advertising of our auction which I feel contributed greatly to our success. I have found them standing by ready and willing to serve any need that arises in our community whether large or small, newspaper contribute greatly to the progress, growth and success of any city. May ours never grow too big that it cannot see a small need.

In closing this letter may I say it was not an easy job but very worth while and understanding is one of the greatest experiences I shall ever know. May God bless you and yours.

Sincerely,
Ruby E. Privette,
Chairman of Finance

"He who lives without committing any folly is not a winner or a loser." — La Rochefoucauld

It is likely that no copy of the book has been reached a stage of perfection where fully in some degree is not to be expected. In the dealing with and living with our fellow man it is impossible to have a straight line of perfection. If we do, we are certain to be deviated from the strict rule of perfection must be accompanied last we are to live without humanity amongst humans.

Parents Can Help Bolster Student Achievement Rate

Magazine Reports Causes, Corrections For Youngsters Not Working to Capacity

Parents Can Help Bolster Student Achievement Record

Most young people, like most adults, rarely operate at full capacity, but parents can take steps to help the child who is slumped by educators as an "underachiever," according to Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine.

An article in the current issue of the magazine states that about half of all able boys and a quarter of all able girls are in this category — bright youngsters whose marks show they are not doing as well as they should.

Most underachieving youngsters need more confidence and understanding, less nagging and reproval, the article advises. Parents who think their child falls in this category should have a conference with all teachers. The magazine states that in one out of five cases the problem is actually better than it seems and it may well be.

"Last of all, it is important to realize that the underachiever is not a failure, but a child who is not working to his full capacity."

Most students in the underachiever category do learn the basic information and when they need to move up through the grades, the article points out, but the work they turn out is less than the minimum they can get by with and far below what they are capable of.

In boys, the tendency toward underachievement shows up as early as the first grade and usually is pretty clear by the third or fourth, according to Changing Times. Girls aren't usually spotted until the sixth grade. "Though many an underachiever appears to be doing fairly well along with his school work, about half are deeply concerned about failure and are disappointed in themselves," the article notes. "They know they could be doing better but don't know why, they should or how to get themselves to make the effort."

97 Pledge Allegiance To U. S.

NORFOLK — At the United States District Court in Norfolk Wednesday, Sept. 4th, ninety-seven new citizens took oath renouncing their allegiance to their native lands and accepting the responsibilities and obligations of their chosen country, the United States of America. Many were young service wives, who had come from countries where American armed forces had been stationed. There were also children from other lands, who had come to join their foster parents in America.

Germany led the list with 35 former citizens becoming naturalized Americans. Japan was next with 15. There were 13 former Britons, 8 former Italians, 7 Greeks, 4 Canadians, 3 from China, 3 from the Philippines, 3 from the Netherlands, and others from Ireland, Spain, France, Egypt, Latvia, Cuba, Austria, Turkey, Mexico, Portugal, Israel and Norway.

Judge Hoffman explained to the group, before administering the oath, that their naturalization pledge is divided into two parts. First, they must renounce their allegiance or fidelity to "any foreign prince, potentate, state or sovereignty." Second, they pledge their allegiance to their adopted country, the United States of America. "We hope the United States of America will never again be engaged in conflict with a foreign power," he said, "in the event there is a conflict between your country and your mother country... you are citizens of the United States."

Jointly these chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution participated in the Naturalization program, Adams Thoroughgood Chapter, Great Bridge Chapter and Sarah Constant Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution. Also the Governor John Branch Chapter of the Children of the American Revolution provided pages, Shelly Ryan, Ellen Beamon, Nancy Beamon and Julianna McCubbin, who distributed flags and welcome cards to the new citizens.

ECC Names Dr. Parker To Post

A native of Woodland, N. C., Dr. Parker has more recently been associated with the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He received his B.S. and Master's degrees at Wake Forest College and was granted his doctorate in philosophy last summer by the University of North Carolina where he studied as a teaching fellow.

Sand Pumping To Be Increased

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Erosion Commission decided Tuesday to step up its sand pumping operations by operating its pumps on a 20-hour-a-day basis.

During the summer the main dredge pumped only eight hours a night to avoid interference with bathers by silting the water during the daylight hours.

The expanded pumping schedule is expected to go into effect in about three weeks after repairs on the main dredge are completed. The program will be geared to meeting requirements for federal aid.

Joseph McDonald, consulting engineer, told the commission the main dredge will probably have to pump 20 hours daily, six days a week, to reach the target of 130,000 cubic yards of good material—the amount required by the Corps of Army Engineers by next July.

The 10-inch dredge which carries most of the sand from Owl Creek to the beach was recently hauled from the water to be fitted with a more efficient engine on the cutter head.

The commission Tuesday ordered the speed-up in pumping operations as soon as the dredge is ready.

A smaller dredge, which has been pumping eight hours daily from just inside Rudee Inlet, probably will begin pumping 10 hours a day when the big dredge returns to the station.

About 40 feet of pipe used to pump sand onto the beach was lost during the northeast storm last weekend.

The strong winds and high tides removed large amounts of sand along the boardwalk. No estimate of the loss of sand was made but by late Tuesday the berm was beginning to rebuild as the tide began to replace some of what was lost.

Erosion Commission chairman E. H. Church said Tuesday, "The beach looks none too good but I have confidence it will come back."

Rabies Shots To Be Given City Dogs

VIRGINIA BEACH—Hundreds of dogs throughout the City of Virginia Beach will begin receiving rabies vaccinations Saturday as required by city ordinance.

The inoculations will be carried out by a special Rabies Vaccination Clinic held jointly by the Virginia Beach Health Dept. and the Tidewater Veterinarian Association.

Cost of the shots to dog-owners is $1.50 or half of the usual fee charged for this service by veterinarians.

A new city ordinance requiring rabies shots for all dogs prior to obtaining licenses will go into effect November 1. After that date owners will have to present vaccination certificates before getting licenses.

The ordinance was adopted by City Council earlier this year when a rabbit suffering from the disease was found here. More serious outbreaks of Rabies have been reported in other areas of the state, particularly the south-western part.

The disease has spread north to the Washington area and is now moving down the Eastern Shore.

The Health Department is distributing 30,000 leaflets in the city reminding residents they may use the clinic. Twenty-three of these will be distributed through the offices of the 10,000 license plates of business.

The wholesale inoculations are a precaution against infection from animals brought into the report by vacationers from areas where the disease is more prevalent.

Rabies, also called hydrophobia, is a terrifying disease which may be transmitted to humans by the bite of a rabid animal. Once the symptoms appear, there is virtually no cure and convulsions and paralysis are followed inevitably by death.

The rabies clinics are scheduled as follows: Saturday, Sept. 21, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Kellam High School, Kempville Fire Dept., London Bridge Fire Dept., Ocean Park Fire Dept. and Thalia Fire Dept.

Saturday, Sept. 28, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Thoroughbred Elementary School, Arlington Elementary School, Crockett Fire Dept., Sateck Fire Dept. and the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center.

Clinic officials are hopeful that all dog owners will take advantage of the inexpensive program but ask that cat owners stay away.

It's not that they don't like cats, they explained, but just that a different type of serum is needed to inoculate cats.

Elks Express Appreciation

VIRGINIA BEACH—Honored Ruler Robert L. Simpson of Virginia Beach Lodge 2288 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks expressed his thanks Tuesday to the many civic and service organizations that helped in the fall festival parade last Saturday.

The parade was a feature of the Elks Rodeo weekend that was dampened somewhat by inclement weather. However, events as scheduled, including the parade, were held as planned.

Simpson praised the work of all groups that supported the Fall Festival parade, and he particularly offered thanks and appreciation to city officials and department heads for their efforts in behalf of the Elks Lodge.

Virginia Beach Girls Return From Europe

VIRGINIA BEACH—A tour that took two Virginia Beach girls through seven European countries this summer has proved one major point—this really is a small world.

Karen Patrick and Claudy Tucker returned last week from Paris, where they were enrolled in the summer session at the Sorbonne, and both were amazed at the number of Virginia Beach people they ran into in various locations.

They met a former acquaintance while visiting the Tower of London; encountered a boy in Paris who had once lived a few blocks from Claudy; hailed down another longtime beach resident in Rome; and visited in the home of friends in Madrid.

The two girls were in Europe for two months participating in a French study program sponsored by Temple University in Pennsylvania. Both are students at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg. Karen is a French major; Claudy, fine arts.

They spent much of the time on a Dutch ship going to and from Rotterdam; one week sightseeing in England, Holland, Rome and Spain; and five weeks at the Sorbonne. The classes, conducted entirely in French, were not so confining, however, to prevent them from sneaking away for a

Active Petition Campaign May Get Underway

VIRGINIA BEACH—An active campaign may get underway here in November to obtain signatures on petitions requesting that the electorate of Virginia Beach be allowed to vote on whisky by the drink.

Attorney L. Charles Burlage said Tuesday he would try to arrange the campaign which would be similar to the one presently being conducted in Norfolk.

The Norfolk petitions specifically request that the 1964 General Assembly authorize a referendum in the city on the liquor-by-the-drink issue. A goal of 20,000 signatures has been set.

Burlage said that the response he has already encountered indicates that Virginia Beach citizens would welcome the opportunity to sign local option petitions.

Coal Pier Dedicated

VIRGINIA BEACH—Many Virginia Beach officials were among other area dignitaries attending dedication ceremonies Wednesday for Norfolk & Western Railway's new Coal Pier 6.

Guest speaker at a luncheon at the Golden Triangle was Christian A. Harter, special assistant to President Kennedy for trade negotiations and former secretary of state.

Diplomats from more than 25 foreign countries, which import American coal were among local officials and dignitaries.

Gov. Albertis S. Harrison welcomed guests before the luncheon on the 1,600-foot coal pier.

Pier 6 began operating last December upon completion of the first of its twin, self-propelled loading towers. The second tower was completed this summer.

Water Talk Set Again October 2

CHESAPEAKE—Water negotiators from Norfolk, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach appear to be ready to sit down and discuss an equitable price for Norfolk-owned water lines in the two new cities.

Members of the Chesapeake-Virginia Beach Joint negotiating committee will meet with Norfolk officials Oct. 2 for the first such meeting in almost 4 months.

In the meantime engineers from Malcolm Pirnie Associates of New York have been appraising the Norfolk-owned mains for the two new cities. The figures they arrive at will serve as a basis for bargaining.

Chesapeake Circuit Court Clerk Charles B. Cross, chairman of the 10-member negotiating committee said Monday he had arranged the Oct. 2 meeting with Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin, Jr.

It will be held at 2 p.m. in the office of Norfolk City Manager Thomas F. Maxwell. At that time, Cross said, the committee will be ready to begin final negotiations on a bulk water rate and cost of the water lines in question.

Last June Chesapeake and Virginia Beach negotiators told Norfolk officials they were interested in buying the 214 miles of Norfolk pipe located in the two cities and also in buying bulk water from Norfolk to distribute to their own citizens - "if the price is right."

Norfolk agreed at that time to sell after the current four-month appraisal being handled by the Pirnie firm.

Both Virginia Beach and Chesapeake are without public water systems of their own and must depend on Norfolk, Portsmouth and private wells.

Scout Roundup This Saturday

NORFOLK—Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers from all over Tidewater will gather at Foreman Field Saturday for a giant "Roundup Rally" between 2 and 4 p.m.

Youth Arrested For Breakins

VIRGINIA BEACH—A 20-year-old youth was arrested here Monday and charged with a series of nine burglaries in the area.

Thomas Lee Tillery, who police described as unemployed and having no fixed address, was apprehended while burglarizing the Clark Chevrolet Corp. on Virginia Beach Blvd., according to police. The other thefts were also on Virginia Beach Blvd. and were committed between August 4 and Monday morning.

Police said most of the burglaries involved petty cash totalling about $112 in the nine thefts. Tillery was arrested about 1 a.m. Monday on the Clark Chevrolet premises by Sgt. T. W. Simmons and Detective Charles Payne. Detectives H. C. Perry and E. L. Knowles assisted in the investigation.

Tillery will receive a hearing in Municipal Court Oct. 4.

Council Meet September 30

VIRGINIA BEACH—Council will not meet Monday scheduled but will convene instead on Sept. 30 at 10 a.m.

An Open Letter To All Parents:

Dear Parent:

If you have a child in your home this letter is especially important to you.

At the beginning of a new school term, you, as a parent, and we as ophthalmic practitioners should be particularly concerned with the vision of our children. A recent report from the Better Vision Institute points out the need for this concern with statistics that show that one out of every four children today needs eye care or a new prescription.

Periodic eye examinations are important to the well-being of every child. They should be as routine as other aspects of health care. Only through regular professional eye care can a child's visual problem be determined at an early stage and the necessary steps be taken to correct it before it gives rise to other and often greater problems.

If your child has not had professional eye care recently, we urge you to make an appointment now for him to have a complete eye examination. Good vision as he starts the school year can be his most important asset.

We owe this to our children.

South then took the two good heart tricks, stuffing the losing diamond on the fourth heart trick to make contract.

COMMENT: East could have set the hand by leading king or queen of diamonds after taking the two club tricks. When South had to force the ace of hearts, East would have held the setting trick before South had the opportunity to stuff the diamond.

"Soup Bowl"

If you're one of the 17 million bowling enthusiasts in the United States, you are well aware of how you hunger for a snack after the game. A breezy new beverage, Frisky Sour by name, and quick apple pancake score just fine with the after-bowling crowd.

The tangy goodness of this delightful beef broth drink complements the light flaky baked pancake. And recipes are easy to follow for the novice cook set.

For 6 to 8 servings of Frisky Sour, chill 2 cans of beef broth for 4 hours. Then combine with 1/4 cup can water, 8 ice cubes, 1/4 to 1/2 cup lemon juice. A good hearty shake—and happy sipping.

Make fluffy apple pancake by combining 1/2 cup of biscuit mix, 3 eggs, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Beat until smooth. Add 1 cup coarsely chopped peeled apple. Pour into greased 9" heavy skillet. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar mixed with 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon. Bake 375° for 30 minutes. Serve with honey butter. Makes 6 servings.

Sure it's fall, but don't fall for

- (1) "fly-by-night" house painters and/or repairers
- (2) last minute check of heating system
- (3) last minute order for fuel—it's better to keep oil in tank but in case you didn't or you've just moved in—order now
- (4) food facts that promise miracles, there may be miracles but they can't be bought for $10 or $15. Just good meat, eggs, bread, vegetables, (especially green and yellow) fruit and milk would be really miracles in some parts of the world.

So for goodness sake, let eat!

Don't throw that chicken in the freezer as you bought it at the store. Remove the wrapping and the chicken from the pasteboard tray. Put chicken in a plastic freezer bag, slowly lower in water to force out air, fold over and fasten with rubber band. If you wish to keep pieces of chicken from freezing together wrap each in piece of wax paper or plastic wrap before putting in freezer bag.

To thaw, open bag and let thaw about 6 hrs. in the refrigerator. The same procedure should be followed for any meat not bought frozen.

Keep vegetables frozen until ready to cook for best flavor. Allow frozen fruit to thaw only to the point where there are a few ice crystals and it is not mushy.

I guess I'm working up to saying it's going to be a long hard cold winter. Haven't you noticed the mass on the trees?

I'm heading for the hills! I'll be attending V.P.I. at Blacksburg to try to keep up with the new information in Home Economics and ways of teaching it. Purpose — just to be more help to more people.

At present a person to fill the position while I'm gone has not been appointed. I'll try to continue the column if I possible can. How "I'll see it" as a Co-ed might be different.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

No St. George

There's no doubt that the phrase "truth in packaging" has a built-in appeal. You can practically see those who would mislead the consumer being driven to cover as the law, backed by a stern "truth in packaging" weapon, moves in.

It's quite a picture. But currently proposed packaging and labeling legislation, as the Wall Street Journal points out, hardly falls into such a St. George versus the Dragon category.

The Journal observes that the implication is that the legislation will "make the use of every noun, adjective or verb on labels completely understandable by everybody. That's expecting an awful lot of any legislation. It also certainly seems to indicate considerable contempt for the mentality of the consumer."

The newspaper also points to the abundant legislation now in existence which deals with deception in this field. Then it says, tellingly: "... it's a little hard to see how the proposed legislation would bring any new benefits. But it's easy to see that it would provide employment for still more Government busybodies, while restricting consumers' freedom of choice, reducing product competition and putting business in a still more confining regulatory package—all for the sake of a 'need' that is itself mislabeled."

The proposed law, then, is just one more example of the kind of thinking that would have the government attempt to do everything for everybody—which means giving virtually blanket powers of decision to those "government busybodies." Carry this idea far enough, and the citizenry will be treated like a group of mental defectives in an institution, with bureaucrats manning the staff.

Naval Reserve Exams Dec. 14

WASHINGTON—Vice Admiral W. R. SHERIDAN, Jr., Chief of Naval Personnel, announced today that the 10th annual national competitive examination for the Regular Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps will be given on December 14. Eligible high school seniors and graduates should submit their application before November 22.

Designed to supplement the officers output of the Naval Academy, the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at the civilian college of his choice from among 52 colleges with an NROTC Unit. All tuition, fees and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives a retainer of $30 per month for not more than four years. During the summer the student goes on interesting training cruises as a midshipman. After successfully completing a four year college course, he is commissioned in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps and goes on active duty as a career officer with the Navy's modern fleets. Immediate challenging assignments to aviation training, nuclear training or submarine training offers varied career opportunities to those graduates who apply and qualify.

High school seniors and graduates who will reach the 18th but not the 21st anniversary of birth on 30 June 1964 may apply for the NROTC aptitude test. Those who make a qualifying score will be interviewed and given a thorough medical examination early in 1964. From the number of qualified young men remaining in competition

MARKET REPORT

The following is prepared from the Fortnightly Review. It is made available to the Virginia Sun-News by Anderson & Strudwick, Investment Firm at 3110 Pacific Ave., Virginia Beach, and is prepared by their New York correspondent, Carl M. Loch, Rhoades & Co.

AFTER LABOR DAY

Rarely if ever are discussions of the unemployment problem devoid of emotional overtones. Our heart tells us not to be satisfied until, in the language of the Council of Economic Advisors, "all persons able, willing, and seeking work should be continuously employed." But our reason cautions that such a goal is unattainable and that well before it could be approximated the accompanying drawbacks would outweigh the advantages, economically as well as sociologically. Regardless of the level of prosperity, seasonal and structural unemployment will persist. In construction, the automobile industry, the garment trades, vacation business seasonal variations of economic activity create major fluctuations in the demand for labor. And the tides in the fortunes of individual industries and enterprises that result from technological change, shifting consumer preferences, and differences in managerial skill will always make for dislocations in the labor market, as will the liberty of employees to seek the jobs they desire and what remains of the freedom of entrepreneurs to hire the help they want. (We might note parenthetically that in spite of total regimentation, some unemployment has persisted even in USSR.) Moreover, we should not be unaware of the byproducts of unemployment figures approaching the ideal limit of zero: an upward thrust in costs and prices, loss of industrial efficiency, the adverse effect on the balance of payments, not to mention personal inconvenience as services become increasingly shoddy and hard to obtain. All this makes it necessary to define the concept of full employment in less sweeping terms, and even the Administration's target of unemployment at 4% of the labor force, sometimes described as only a way station, may be too ambitious. Such considerations do not lessen our concern about unemployment, which has lingered at uncomfortably high levels for some time even during periods of prosperity (at 5.5% of the labor force in August). But while compassion for the unemployed should always remain an important factor, if economics is to serve as an aid to the policy maker, it must try to define and disentangle the issues and to clarify objectives and impediments. This is a task undertaken by Dr. Arthur F. Burns in a lecture earlier this year at Rice University, which was published in the July issue of the Morgan Guaranty Survey.

TWO SCHOOLS OF THOUGHT

Among those agreed that our economy has in recent years suffered from excessive unemployment, there is nevertheless disagreement about the causes of, and hence, the remedies for this phenomenon. One group considers more or less chronic shortage of aggregate demand the principal ailment and aggressively expansionist policies the cure. The other holds that the rapid piling up of technological and economic changes has created a problem which is structural in nature and must be treated accordingly. Dr. Burns submits that despite impressive evidence to support these respective views, neither school has demonstrated conclusively that its diagnosis is the right one. Unless we know why the employment picture is not any brighter, how are we to decide whether to rely on the characteristic recommendations of the expansionist school, easy credit, larger public spending, lower tax rates, or a combination thereof, or to stress with the structural school better organization of the labor market, improved systems of education and vocational training and guidance, and retraining programs for displaced workers.

A NEW APPROACH

Dr. Burns points out that much of this doubt could be resolved by more adequately knowledge of the facts. He calls for overall national statistics on job vacancies, supported by data on job openings and unemployment in individual occupations and communities. (Presently available statistics tell us little if anything about the relation between unemployment and job vacancies in terms of actual market conditions.) Also needed is a revamping of our system of unemployment insurance: extension of coverage and liberalization of benefits while withholding benefits from those who quit their jobs without good cause or are unwilling to accept suitable work; use of the insurance system to enlarge retraining opportunities and facilitate the finding of new jobs; and modifications of the insurance system to give employers a greater financial incentive to stabilize output. Dr. Burns also notes that unemployment or part-time employment, exists side by side with substantial overtime work and wonders to what extent, since fringe benefits and disputes over work rules are related more closely to the number of men employed than to manhours worked, collective bargaining and some of our social legislation have tended to complicate the unemployment problem.

NEW CLASS AND OLD PRAYER

Another aspect of structural unemployment has been suggested by Dr. Andrew Hacker of Cornell. He sees in the very success of efficient enterprise, above all in the emergence of the modern corporation, the danger that there will be two Americas, the one flourishing under the protective umbrella of the dominant institutions and the other comprised of the unemployed, the ill-educated, and the entire residue of human beings no longer needed in the economic process. So far, our country has been largely spared the devastation of class struggle, but if this pool of losers were to grow to substantial proportions, it would find its political leadership and give vent to its resentments and frustrations. "The discard heap the machine itself created may arise to devour its progenitor," it would seem to us, though, that within our system there are the jobs, the resources, the will, and the imagination to forestall such an event. A constant upgrading of our work force through education and training is the most promising avenue in this direction. But since not everybody has the native endowment to climb high on the competitive educational ladder, we should also in homes, schools, and shops put greater stress on the dignity of honest labor, whether skilled or not. In our worship of visible success too many of us have forgotten the old prayer "Give us work till our life shall end and life till our work is done."

Good Handwriting Means Better Marks

Handwriting has a definite effect on the grades a pupil or student will get, educators point out.

"The neat and legible paper will average one letter grade better than a messy and illegible paper, even though the content and error in mechanics and organization are about the same," says Prof. Paul D. Bagwell, former head of Michigan State University's Department of Communication Skills.

A problem in writing for many pupils develops when they switch to pens after learning the fundamentals with pencils in the first few grades. Ballpoint pens have been the most widely used, but many teachers object to them.

A survey by the Scripps company found that a major objection of teachers was that children lost speed and fluidity with ballpoints.

"The construction of the ballpoint pen required that it be held almost vertically to write smoothly," says C. K. Lovejoy, Scripps Vice president of new product development. "Since this is contrary to the slant position pupils learn to write with, their handwriting suffered."

Scripps' research department experimented with angling the point to allow smoother writing at the same natural position as a pencil.

"Our tests showed that the tilted tip permits freedom of movement needed for good handwriting for grade and high school work," Mr. Lovejoy says.

For youngsters going back to school this fall, Scripps is introducing a new and stronger chrome and plastic model with the exclusive tilted tip. The pen, called the Tilt-Tip, has been designed for hard use, and the chrome gives the pen added weight for smoother writing, according to Mr. Lovejoy.

Hartford's New Ship Shape Building

Resembling a ship more than the conventional office structure, the unique elliptically-shaped Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company home office has added a distinctive face to the Hartford (Conn.) skyline.

The building is as unusual inside as it is outside. Visiting executives, for example, would look in vain for that standard business status symbol—the corner office. Private offices are located along sides of the building and clerical workers occupy the unpartitioned end sections with their panoramic views. Elimination of corner offices reduces space lost to corridors. Open planning admits light to all work areas.

The building was designed by the noted New York architectural firm, Harrison & Abramovitz, and is located in Hartford's Constitution Plaza urban renewal area.

FORTY YEARS OF SERVICE

1923 was not only the beginning of WTAR Radio. It was a year that saw a nation begin to come into its own as a major world power. The history and achievement of WTAR is a reflection of the radio industry itself, and the rise in stature of a great country. There has been a story to be told over the past 40 years... many stories in fact. And radio has told it to more people more quickly than any other communications medium. In millions of words and sounds, through good years and bad... from the upper limits of the stars to the "inner space" of the seas, WTAR has been there to report to its public. Today it stands as one of the most respected radio stations in America. WTAR has always kept ahead of the times, and holds most important its duty to the radio listeners of Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina.

Rev. ROBERT H. HARPER

WHAT WOULD HE DO?
IN READING and hearing about all the wonders of the present age and the horrifying possibilities of making war and the imagined ability of blowing away the world itself to spread it in a trail of vapors and ashes through space, I fell to thinking what would and what could Napoleon Bonaparte do if he were here today?

JUST A THOUGHT!
Whatever our individual station in life, we are called upon frequently to meet the challenge of making a decision in which conscience must play a part. It's not always easy to do the right thing. Sometimes it requires great effort to even give it a try.

It is perhaps safe to assume that he who rose above the storm of the French Revolution and carried the banners of the French to the far corners of Europe and threatened the British Isles would find a way to master and use the things of the present. But how?

In some ways, Napoleon would find the task of ruling and of making war simplified, or at least made easier. Instead of riding his beautiful horse at the head of his troops over the nations, he would ride in a high-powered car over paved highways or fly in jet planes. But he would not bother to travel thus, he would just stay in his palace in Paris and order destruction upon any offending capital.

Instead of going to Moscow and risk having it burned down upon him and his army as happened to him once, he would set it afire from Paris. And if the world were blown up, Napoleon would set the fuse.

You may be eligible for membership in any one of the fine Country Clubs which are within the Virginia Beach area. Do you know which one is closest to your neighborhood, if you are interested in becoming associated with the distinguished members of your community?

Tidewater's oldest Country Club is the refined rambling Princess Anne Country Club off Holly Road in Virginia Beach Borough. Managed by Roy M. Niel, Jr., this Club offers the ultimate to its members and their guests amid splendor and privacy. The championship golf course presents an opportunity for a wonderful variety of shots and is a perfect test of golfing ability. Leo Kernon is the pro, and under his direction many a duffer gets quite professional. All manner of golfing championships are played on the interesting 18 holes. Tennis is taught by Wells Peck on hard-surfaced tennis courts. Personalities of the tennis world travel many miles to play and compete on these courts. Many members enjoy the twenty-five meter pool for swimming instructions and swimming parties. The Sun Deck, dine and dance Terrace is a popular spot for poolside buffets, steak cook-outs, and family fun. Balls and banquets are featured from time to time, and meetings of various social and fraternal clubs use the facilities.

A few miles away on Birdneck Road is the newer Golf and Yacht Club which features extensive sports and pleasure facilities on a picturesque site within the sheltered waters of Lynnhaven Bay. The safe quiet harbor provides every facility and service for all type of craft, and continues reciprocal courtesies with other recognized yacht clubs. The 18-hole golf course is the setting of many championship tournaments and is kept in prime playing condition by the pro Lou Shue. The entertainment committee plans exciting events for adults, children and families to insure social enjoyment and congeniality of the new membership. Manager Geo. W. Barnes announced that this private club will close its membership when its goal of 350 members is reached. Renovations and new additions to the Club will be begun within two years.

The Bow Creek Golf and Country Club is the newest in the area and will be found in a secluded area about a mile within Princess Anne Plaza. Ultra modern facilities are available to the members and other groups who desire to hold their gatherings amid luxury and quiet. Manager Johan Kok will be happy to arrange for special activities. The Bow Creek Inn, adjacent to the Golf and Country Club, offers a relaxing atmosphere for visiting business men and vacationers. Year-round golf may be enjoyed on an excellently laid-out 18-hole championship club course. Tom Strange is the pro in charge. Two pools are close by—one at the Country Club and the other at the Inn. All weather tennis courts are kept in top play condition for the racquet crowd.

All of these clubs are private clubs, and membership is carefully screened to insure the high calibre expected of its members. Guests of members are treated with warm hospitality. If you are acquainted with a member, you will enjoy a visit to his Club—you will be made to feel most welcome.

K & P OPEN HOUSE

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 166 will hold an open house and "get-together" Saturday at 7 p.m. at the regular meeting place, 306 17th Street.

Mrs. Robert L. Reis will be guest speaker. All Pythians and their wives and friends are invited to attend.

Mrs. Sam Mason, immediate past president of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club, assists less handicapped children with their lunch while other clubmembers feed those unable to care for themselves.

Busy Thalia
4-H'ers Elect

THALIA—Mary Bungard was recently elected president of the Thalia Community 4-H Club.

Other new officers are Laura McAndrew, vice president; Elizabeth Bungard, secretary; Jim Kelly, treasurer; Sharon Kelly, reporter; and Julie Rushing, song leader.

During the next few weeks the club will sponsor a membership drive. The club is open to any youngster over 10 years of age.

The Thalia Community 4-H Club chalked up some impressive records last year.

At the 1962 Achievement Night program, the club received a red award on its project exhibit; a blue award on the scrapbook; and a trophy as the outstanding Junior 4-H Club in Virginia Beach.

A majority of the club's members received awards in individual project areas. Some of the most prominent were: Mark Pratt won the Oslin Award as the outstanding junior boy in Virginia Beach; Mary Bungard won the same award for the senior girl; Marty Strait was taken into the Virginia Beach Honor Club; and Sharon Kelly was tapped into the Virginia Chapter of 4-H All-Stars.

Leading the club through the successful 1962 year were these retiring officers: Debbie Ford, president; Sharon Kelly, vice president; Mary Bungard, secretary; and Lynn Keating, treasurer.

Young people interested in joining the club should contact any of the new or retiring officers for information.

Gun Club To Aid Hunters

DAM NECK—The Dam Neck Gun Club, located at the U. S. Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center, will hold sighting-in days for hunters of the area on September 21 and 28.

The club range will be open from 0800 to 1200 on those days and members of the club will assist hunters to sight-in their rifles and pattern their shotguns.

The club is offering this service as part of a nationwide program conducted by the National Rifle Association.

Detailed information on sighting-in techniques and firing points for zeroing-in will be available at the range. Hunters are required to have all firearms unloaded and actions open when entering the range area.

Civilian hunters will be required to sign "responsibility waivers" prior to entering the range area.

It has been pointed out that in order to hunt effectively, the hunter must be familiar with the gun he is using. Giving hunters a safe place to sight-in and practice will increase the percentage of clean kills and make hunting a more enjoyable and safer sport.

ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE IS SET FOR NEXT MONTH

The weekends of October 11, 12 and 13 and October 18, 19 and 20 have been selected as the dates for Virginia's third annual Autumn Pilgrimage, according to Mr. Malcolm Jamieson of Berkeley Plantation, Charles City, Virginia. Mr. Jamieson is Chairman for the 1963 event.

Eight early Colonial churches all located in Tidewater Virginia will again sponsor the Pilgrimage, which attracted visitors from 34 states and 3 foreign countries in 1962.

Covering six days, divided into two weekends, the Pilgrimage will this year offer two separate areas. Visitors will be able to see more than thirty homes, plantations and shrines which are opening in support of nearby churches. A substantial number of the houses will be open for the first time to the visiting public, and will provide an interesting experience for Virginians as well as out of state visitors.

The first area to open on Friday, October 11, Saturday, October 12, and Sunday, October 13 will be Westmoreland County, where St. Peter's Church will present Windland, Ingleside and Wakefield Farm Plantations, as well as Stratford Hall and the George Washington Birthplace; Richmond County where St. John's of Warsaw and North Farnham will open Sabine Hall, Grove Mount and Milden Hall. Another newcomer to the event, King William and Prince George Counties will open Chelsea, Dunluc and Holly Hill in support of Old St. John's at West Point, followed by Grace Church at Yorktown, with the Burcher House, Captain Ballentine's House, Swan Tavern, the Dudley Digges House and the Custom House. This ends the first weekend.

The finale comes on Friday, October 18, Saturday, October 19, and Sunday, October 20 when the long-time favorites along the James River will be open. These include the great Georgian houses and famous plantations on both the north and south side of the river. Names long associated with the history of this country dominate the list.

These are Sherwood Forest, Belle Air, Coleville, Evelynston, Berkeley, Westover and Shirley, all in the vicinity of Westover Church in Charles City County, and Appomattox Manor in Hopewell, Willow Hill and Brandon in Prince George, along with the restored summer kitchen and extensive grounds at Chickokes in Surry County. These will open in support of Merchant's Hope and Brandon churches.

Also open in connection with the Pilgrimage are four noted historic shrines, Kenmore and the James Monroe Law Office and Memorial Library in Fredericksburg, and Stratford Hall and the George Washington Birthplace in Westmoreland County. These are open daily year round.

Individual and block tickets are available at each of the houses and churches and at local information centers, which are listed in the brochure. Many of the churches will serve lunch on both Friday and Saturday and this has long become an anticipated and looked for pleasure. Both Westover church in Charles City and Brandon in Prince George County have earned a reputation for their enticing food on these occasions.

Additional information may be obtained from Pilgrimage headquarters, 3806 Chamberlayne Avenue, Richmond, Virginia.

New For Ft.
Story Officer

FORT STORY—Richard L. Dixon, who served as Fort Story's Information Officer from 23 May to 19 August this year, has returned to civilian life and is presently engaged in the insurance business in the Va. Beach area.

The 25-year-old Gastonia, North Carolina native entered active service in the summer of 1961 following graduation from Davidson N. C. He attended the Transportation Officer's Orientation Course at Ft. Eustis before being assigned to the 461st Transportation Company here. From Co. duty he moved to the Fort Story Officer Open Mess in Dec. 1962 as club secretary.

During the reorganization that took place at Ft. Story this spring he was assigned by the 10th Battalion Special Duty to the Information Services Division.

Although now a civilian, Dixon's days of soldiering at Ft. Story are not over as he expects to spend his two weeks of active duty for training each summer here.

UCF Drive In Progress At Fort Story

FORT STORY—Once again the United Communities Fund Campaign is under way at all sections, units and installations of Fort Story. The campaign will be on 23 September and run through 4 November 1963. It will cover two pay days and give all Ft. Story ample time to plan on making a substantial contribution to a most worthy cause. Not only does your contribution help to cement better community relations, but rather it aids hundreds of those who cannot ordinarily do for themselves due to lack of sufficient support and funds.

Lt. Colonel Myron Martin of the Ft. Story Dental Clinic has been named Project Officer for the 1963 Campaign and will be assisted by Captain Beauregard Brown III who will represent the Hq Ft. Story Officers. Mrs. Winona Shirey will collect from civilian employees on the post and 1st Lt. Richard Cockrane will represent the Hq 10th Transportation Battalion (TMBL) collections.

Each section and unit will have in addition an E-5 or above representative to act as key Non Commissioned Officer. An initial briefing was conducted by the project officer outlining the aims of the annual campaign. It behooves every Ft. Story individual to contribute and become an integral part of this most worthy cause.

Jr. Women Help

Art Event To Benefit
Camp Civitan, Norfolk's Cerebral Pals y Center

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club was disbanded for the summer but many members spent worthwhile hours aiding cerebral palsied and other physically handicapped children at Camp Civitan.

For two weeks the Virginia Beach women and members of the Norwiew Methodist Church Youth Group gave unselfishly of their time to help and entertain the children—many of whom have known very little fun in their short lifetimes.

One child had her first taste of ice cream. She is 14 years old and had not been out of her home for seven years. She could not speak nor feed herself but the appreciation and gratitude shown in her eyes as she finished her fourth cup of ice cream.

The last day of camp was family picnic day, but there was an undertone of sadness intermingled with the joy and excitement. The children obviously wanted to return to the camp next year.

But there will be no next summer for these children unless the Parents Council of United Cerebral Palsy of Tidewater make a success of their Scholarship Fund Art Auction and Crafts Fair scheduled Nov. 30 at Star of the Sea Church recreation hall.

The proceeds from this event will be used to raise money for the summer camp and the Developmental Center in Norfolk. The combined facilities offer afflicted children year-around programs.

During the winter months the center provides habilitation for

Music Program
To Benefit
Seatack Center

SEATACK—A musical program Sunday at St. Stephen's Holiness Church will benefit the Seatack Community Center.

The program will feature singing groups from churches in the Tidewater area. The hours will be from 6 to 7 p.m.

The Center Committee is striving to hit the $3,000 mark so that the center will be opened by Nov. 11, as planned. The building will not be completed at that time, a spokesman said, but it will be adequate for use for further money-raising projects.

There is still much work to be done, the spokesman added, and urged the public to support the program to make it a success.

Program sponsors are Miss Margery Duke, Aaron A. Parson, president of the Center Committee, and Mrs. Johnnie M. Smith, reporter.

older children who have been bypassed by life because they grew up in the days before special schooling was provided. Laughter and good cheer are the rules at the center where barren lives are shown the joys of simple handicrafts which their twisted muscles can work. The eyes of these children radiate the alertness of the minds imprisoned in crippled bodies.

Most of the children possess good minds, but they have been allowed to regress because of lack of facilities to cope with the handicapped bodies.

The center must also have money to keep its doors open. Transportation to and from the center is a major obstacle. Adequately trained help is imperative and expensive. To maintain one child there costs a minimum of $50 per month.

This figure is more than the average family can carry when added to the cost of braces, special shoes, medical and dental care and the numerous extras, such as crutches and wheelchairs.

Much depends on the Art Auction and Crafts Fair. Past promises to be an event to be enjoyed as well as beneficial. Leading artists in the Tidewater area have already contributed many fine pieces of art. Booths are rapidly being taken by Norfolk and Virginia Beach church and civic organizations.

There will be a Gourmet Food Booth, antiques, Christmas centerpieces, delicatessen foods and many other varieties. A special feature will be the Parcel Post Booth, sponsored by the local unit for Woman's Club, with packages from faraway places to be sold unopened.

Of Interest To Veterans

In addition to furnishing government markers for the unmarked graves of veterans, Army provides for the replacement of markers when they are no longer serviceable; that is, they have been damaged or become unsightly due to weathering or the inscription has become illegible.

According to the Memorial Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, a new application with the notation REPLACEMENT must be submitted for each such deceased veteran concerned. The application should be accompanied by a covering letter giving the reason for the replacement request, because such information will aid the Army in locating the veteran's file and original application.

Any person having interest in or knowledge of an unmarked grave of a veteran, or one in need of a replacement headstone or marker, may make application. We are told that all requests will be given careful consideration.

Assistance in filing for government grave markers may be obtained from this office.

Please visit my office on any claims or problems regarding benefits for veterans and their survivors.

SILAGE QUALITY

In two-thirds of Virginia, beef cattle producers are trying to figure out how they are going to winter their cattle. Hay is extremely short on most farms and it looks as though silage is going to be of poor quality.

One problem many are facing is what to do with corn that has failed to mature, or failed to develop ears from missing rain at a critical time. The first inclination is to cut the corn immediately and put it in the silo when one sees the ears are not going to develop.

This has been of great concern to me. I've noticed that silage which runs high in moisture generally makes very poor feed and is unpalatable to cattle. Agronomists recommend that drought-stricken corn not be put in the silo until moisture has dropped relatively low in the stalk.

The thing that gets everyone uneasy is the fact that the leaves are firing up from the bottom and it looks as if we are losing a good bit of feed. Actually, this is not true. The leaves that are near the bottom and are being lost contribute very little to the overall weight and nutrition of the corn plant. So, let the leaves fire and wait until the moisture has dropped relatively low in the stalk before cutting for silage.

Corn silage which contains less than 25 percent dry matter makes a very poor quality cattle feed. Where ears have failed to mature much of the silage will not go over 15 percent total digestible nutrients. This is low quality feed, but worth saving. Remember, let the moisture get out.

With the poorer quality silage expected, one cannot hope to get the same results in wintering calves or fattening cattle as in the past. When using drought-damaged corn as silage, one must expect less gains or plan to add more grain to get suitable results.

In many cases, it will not be practical to buy grain to add to this silage, and growers will just have to tighten their belts and get along with less gains than normal. But, the drought-damaged corn can be put to its best use by ensiling even though it will be of poor quality.

I suppose it goes without saying that this year crop reduction will be put to the greatest use ever. All fields should be gleaned by cattle this fall and those roughages which have been thought too poor to bother with should be used. Honeysuckle and any other green material can be grazed off in the fall and winter. While certainly not good feeds, these poorer roughages will help a cattleman get his breeding herd through to next year with the least cost.

Most likely, the best way to use poorer roughages is by using some grain supplement. Four pounds of corn plus half a feed of any type of roughage will get cattle through to spring.

Protein feeds will be necessary in many cases and vitamin A will be universally short. All these must be considered in figuring feed budgets.

DANGERS OF GREEN CORN
In late summer and early fall, many pastures are over-grazed or burned brown. This is especially true during a season of drought such as Virginia Beach has experienced this year.

Under these conditions, cattle begin looking for something green to eat. Some of the green forage may be poisonous weeds. But some of it likely to be crops grown on the farm such as corn, cane, or sudan grass.

Mature corn makes good feed for cattle, but green corn can be dangerous. The change in feed often causes difficulty for cattle. They will eat as much as they can of such tempting green forage. Their delicate digestive systems cannot stand the sudden change in diet. It is this sudden change rather than poisonous properties of the green corn that causes trouble.

With sudan grass or cane, however, there may be a definite problem with poison. Both—under some conditions—contain prussic acid which is a fast acting poison. Cattle have died in 20 minutes after eating such plants. It is vital that a veterinarian treat the poisoned animal as soon as possible if it is to be saved. Animals near death often are normal within a few minutes after intravenous injections.

To treat the green corn problem veterinarians often inject a detoxifying solution directly into the blood. This is because the green corn has a paralyzing effect on the cow's stomach and medicines applied by mouth are not effective. Another treatment is to inject stimulants under the animal's skin where they may be absorbed quickly. A third treatment is by surgery. In this way the veterinarian can go directly into the rumen and remove the green corn.

What are signs of trouble from green corn? Generally when a cow stops chewing her cud it is an indication that digestion has stopped and the rumen is becoming paralyzed. If the farmer cannot feel the normal movements of the animal's stomach through the left flank, he can be pretty sure the animal is sick and a veterinarian should be called at once.

The best way to prevent this problem is to keep cows away from the green plants. This means that fences should be kept in good repair. Equally important, cattle should be adequately fed. If they are, they are not so likely to be tempted by green corn and will make less effort to get to it.

GRAZING DIVERTED LAND

A special release came to the ASC Office recently from Washington, authorizing grazing on diverted land starting October 1. This is due in large measure to the drought conditions prevailing over Virginia, and is a full month earlier than was originally planned. So now is a good time to put in a good cover crop of rye, oats or other of your choice on diverted land and have some good grazing by October 1. You can graze it until next May 1, and still use the same land as diverted acres for next year's corn program, which will feature higher rates per acre, and let you put up to 50% of your corn base or 25 acres into the soil bank, and pay you all at the high rate if you put in from 40% to 50% of the base. Normal Beal, ASC Office Manager will be glad to help you with this.

Child, Family Service Gets Project Grant

NORFOLK—Child and Family Service has been selected by the Family Service Association of America and the Child Study Association of America to participate in a new family life education project. A three grant from the National Institute of Mental Health will defray the tuition costs of intensive training institutes and field supervision to be given to the 15 selected agencies. Central to the aim of the project is the expansion of these preventive mental health programs so that more parents in local communities can be reached. This is the first time that National Institute of Mental Health has given recognition to parent group education as a valid part of their mental health endeavors.

Mrs. Haywood A. Clay, Jr. (Tennie B.), Caseworker, at Child and Family Service will receive this specialized training announced Earl D. Morris, Executive Director. Mrs. Clay is a graduate of Hampton Institute, received her Master's degree from Atlanta University School of Social Work, is a member of the National Association of Social Workers, the Academy of Certified Social Workers and has been a counselor for the last 15 years with Child and Family Service. "Norfolk is deserving to be selected for this family life education project," stressed Earl Morris, the Child and Family Service will create the only program operating in a Virginia, family or child welfare agency. This will strengthen services to families by helping parents cope with problems of child development at their early stages when prevention is easiest. Mrs. Clay has had excellent experience from her years of counseling and with this can give skillful leadership in the development of a new community educational service for all families in Norfolk, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach.

The Child Study Association of America is a voluntary, non-profit organization whose primary goal is helping parents to cope with their children, other members of their family, and various members of their community. The CSAA has taken national leadership in training professional persons to develop and conduct programs of parent group discussions. Subject areas dealt with in the training program are: patterns of family interaction; cultural variations in attitudes toward children and child rearing practices; parental concerns and responses to children at different stages of growth and development; and principles and techniques in recruiting the parent group.

Directed to Families Under Stress is the slogan of the Family Service Association of America. Norfolk Child and Family Service is one of 312 member agencies whose goal is the strengthening of family life and improving of social conditions in the community. Services provided are counseling for marital difficulties, un-parent-child relations, unmarried mothers, foster home care of children, adoption, and homemaker services. The Child and Family Service is a member agency of the United Community Fund.

What nostalgic memories this picture brings. Every Sunday morning we used to drive to Church in Pop's old "Hivver," picking up the Parson on the way.

Today I live in a great city. I ride commuter's trains, and dictate letters, and spend endless hours "in conference."

But I've never forgotten our Church in the field. It plowed deep furrows in my life, and planted the seeds of real happiness.

Now I worship in a big city church. You might think it would be different; but it isn't. We are just as earthly. The Truth is just the same. And God is just as close.

You see, in the country or in the city, Christians are conscientious people trying to be better. And for folks like you and me who worship God, the Church—big or little—is home.

BIDS ON HOSPITAL RUN NEAR BUDGET

VIRGINIA BEACH — Bids by five contractors to construct the 105-room Virginia Beach General Hospital indicate that hospital officials will have to trim some items from their construction budget.

Although the lowest base bids were near the $2,130,000 general construction budget, the bidding did not include sterilizing equipment and surgical lighting, expected to cost between $40,000 and $60,000.

Lowest of the base bids submitted Thursday was that of J. A. Jones Construction Co. of Charlotte, N.C. in the amount of $2,138,800. Second lowest bid was $2,156,000 offered by Doyle & Russell of Norfolk.

Twenty-three alternate items were included in the bidding. Hospital officials could cut the contract cost considerably by careful choosing among the alternate items.

Carl A. Wunder, chairman of the hospital's building committee, said that all of the bids would be studied closely before the contract is awarded.

By accepting bids on the list of 23 alternate items, the building committee is able to compare prices and get the most for its building dollar, Wunder said.

A contract must be signed by October 1 to take advantage of federal Hill-Burton Act funds.

Other base bids received on the project Thursday were:

J. L. Coe Construction Co. of Charlotte, $2,195,762; John P. Pettyjohn & Co. of Lynchburg, $2,264,806 and Basic Construction Co. of Newport News, $2,295,000.

The successful builder will have 20 months to complete construction.

Red Cross To Sponsor Life Saving Course

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a Senior Life Saving Course at the Cavalier Hotel pool starting October 1.

Registration for the course may be made at the Red Cross office on 19th Street before the opening date. Classes will be free but there will be a small charge for use of the pool.

To be eligible a person must be 16 years of age or over or a student in or above the 11th grade; must be a basically good swimmer; and have a doctor's permit.

Objective of the course is to provide the individual with knowledge and skill to save his own life or that of another in case of an emergency.

This course will be followed by a Water Safety Instructor's course which will be open to graduates of the first series of classes.

Cables Are Hazard On Beach Blvd.

VIRGINIA BEACH — The cables which separate Virginia Beach Boulevard from its parallel feeder lanes have proven to be a "hazard rather than a help" in some locations, according to Public Works Director Richard J. Webbon.

Where possible, the cables are being removed between the Norfolk city limits and the boulevard's intersection with Laskin Road.

Webbon said Thursday that in some locations, the cables keep cars from pulling off the main highway when there are emergencies, such as stalls or flat tires. He also said the cables, when struck sometimes flip cars back onto the highway.

Safety bureau chief Reeves Johnson worked out arrangements to remove some cables in conferences with Webbon and other public officials.

He said all cables will remain in place at the Laskin Road intersection and on Laskin Road itself.

Removal of the cables marks the second major move in recent weeks to cut the accident rate on the boulevard. Public Works crews have closed three openings in the median strip in the area just west of Chinese Corner. Other closings will probably be made in the near future.

Rev. Lowell To Vatican Council

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, former pastor of the Virginia Beach Methodist Church, will leave for Rome, Italy Sept. 25 to serve as an accredited correspondent, reporting on the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Rev. Lowell is editor of "Church and State," the official publication of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

Editor Lowell will report for his own journal and also for a number of protestant publications. He will also visit Spain and the Netherlands.

POA is a national organization claiming more than 175,000 supporters whose primary object is "the maintenance of separation of church and state as promulgated in the Constitution and interpreted by the U. S. Supreme Court."

Civic Center Fight Nets Boys Fine

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two teenage boys were each given 60 days in jail and $100 fines for fighting at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center during a Cabaret Teen dance. The sentence and fine were suspended for 12 months.

The stiff penalty was imposed on the two boys, aged 16 and 17, Thursday at Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court by Judge L. Travis Branch in an attempt to crack down on misbehavior at the teen-age program.

This was the second case to appear before Judge Branch on charges originating at the Civic Center. The first case, involving disorderly conduct, also received a severe penalty.

Thursday's case involved two boys who apparently provoked each other into a fist fight.

Both boys had reportedly been in Juvenile Court before on similar charges, which apparently influenced the judge's decision.

Judge Branch warned the boys that if they appeared in court within a year he would impose the 60 day sentence and $100 fine.

The boys were also forbidden to attend the Cabaret Teen dances, which are held every Saturday night, for the next three months.

PAVAB Scouts Adopt Slogan

VIRGINIA BEACH — Cub Scout Packs, Boy Scout Troops and Explorer Units of the PAVAB District Boy Scouts of America are currently launching their Adventure Round-Up, a program designed to recruit more boys into scouting.

The campaign slogan is "Find Adventure — Join the Scouts."

"There are hundreds of boys in Virginia Beach who are interested in scouting," said Ken MacLeod Jr. of Arlington Village, district Organization and Extension chairman of PAVAB.

"Recent surveys have indicated that three out of four boys want to be scouts," he said. "We want to make the program available to all boys in Virginia Beach between the ages of 8 and 18."

Parents and boys are invited to attend Cub Scout, Boy Scout and Explorer meetings to learn more about the scouting program.

The Adventure Round-Up will continue through December 31. Boys wishing more information about joining a scout unit may write the Tidewater Council, Boy Scouts of America, 109 W. City Hall Avenue, Norfolk 10, Va., or call MA 7-4349.

The estimated minimum expenditure by this group was $50,000.

The festival committee hopes to include 24 participating bands in next year's festival, double the number that participated in 1963.

Information and invitations are to be sent to 2200 high schools by the end of this month.

One delegation at this year's festival flew here from Kentucky in two chartered planes, bringing not only the bandmembers but their parents. This delegation alone accounted for 200 visitors.

Observers from as far away as Anniston, Ala. were here to explore the possibility of sending their bands next year.

The September issue of the magazine, "The Instrumentalist," brought national publicity to the '63 festival.

Art Group To Hold First Meet

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Art Association will hold its first meeting of the 1963-64 club year Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Gallie Episcopal Church, 40th St. and Atlantic Ave.

Plans for the new club year will be discussed and members will hear a final report on the 1963 Boardwalk Art Show.

Eagle Awards

Beach Scouts To Get Badges

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two Virginia Beach boys will chalk up two "firsts" to their credit Wednesday night when they are presented their long-awaited Eagle Scout badges.

Louis Hubbard, 16, and John Ort, 15, will be the first Eagle Scouts for the 434-year-old Troop No. 378, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Methodist Church.

And during the presentation ceremonies at the church they will be the first scouts to receive the Freedom 7 city emblem tie clasps, to be awarded them by Mayor Frank A. Dusch.

Louis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ort of 808 Kennedy Ave. He went into scouting 4 1/2 years ago as a charter member of the church's Cub Pack. His mother was his Den Mother and his father is presently Scoutmaster of the troop. He has 25 merit badges to his credit.

Both boys belong to the Order of the Arrow, the honorary society of scouting, and were sent by the troop to Camp Philmont in New Mexico.

An interest in camping and out-door-life drew John and Louis into scouting but it was the challenge of achievement that drove them toward the Eagle badge, even though they both admit that time for scouting gets more scarce the older they get.

Beach Leads In Building

VIRGINIA BEACH — More than half the residential building permits issued in Tidewater so far this year were issued for Virginia Beach units, according to Rear Admiral L. T. Newell, USNR (Ret.), executive director of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders.

Newell said Thursday that permits issued in the Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach and Chesapeake area totaled 3,234 of which 1,694 were issued in Virginia Beach.

Broken down by areas, 532 permits were issued in Norfolk, 184 in Portsmouth and 824 in Chesapeake.

The combined total for the four cities represents a dollar value of $52,092,529, Newell said. Dollar value of the Virginia Beach units is $28,423,782 — again more than half the total.

These figures represent an increase of 63 units over the same period last year and an increase of $8,268,090 in dollar value compared to the first eight months of 1962.

Most of the missing animals are the smaller, more expensive breeds, such as poodles or cocker spaniels, Duncan said.

A majority of the reports come from Princess Anne Plaza residents, he said, but there are scattered reports from all over the city.

There is also an indication that some of the dogs are being taken for the rewards they might bring, he said.

"We had one case that we definitely thought was for the reward. But how are you going to prove something like that?"

Hunting Dogs, Too
dogs missing, which Duncan says happens every year just before hunting season opens. Many of the cases last year had pens broken into, but there has been no indication of that this year, he said.

The bureau is presently receiving 20 to 50 complaints a day on dog problems, Duncan said, and this has prompted a stepped-up program in animal control.

A new employee will join the bureau Thursday, making three men "on the road," and they are planning a shift operation to take care of dogs running loose at night.

"Dognapping" Missing Dogs May Be Stolen

VIRGINIA BEACH — A definite increase in reports of missing dogs may be an indication of "dognapping" cases in Virginia Beach.

James Duncan, superintendent of the city's bureau of animal control, was hesitant Monday to say that the dogs were being stolen, but said that the cases are following the same pattern of a similar outbreak about five years ago.

At that time it was found that dogs were stolen from Virginia Beach homes and transported to Canada where they were sold. A check with the Canadian game wardens proved that the dogs were from this area.

It was believed that a group of persons were involved in the "dognapping" ring but no arrests were made.

Most of the missing animals are the smaller, more expensive breeds, such as poodles or cocker spaniels, Duncan said.

A majority of the reports come from Princess Anne Plaza residents, he said, but there are scattered reports from all over the city.

An Open Letter To All Parents:

Dear Parent:

If you have a child in your home this letter is especially important to you.

At the beginning of a new school term, you, as a parent, and we as ophthalmic practitioners should be particularly concerned with the vision of our children. A recent report from the Better Vision Institute points out the need for this concern with statistics that show that one out of every four children today needs eye care or a new prescription.

Periodic eye examinations are important to the well-being of every child. They should be as routine as other aspects of health care. Only through regular professional eye care can a child's visual problem be determined at an early stage and the necessary steps be taken to correct it before it gives rise to other and often greater problems.

If your child has not had professional eye care recently, we urge you to make an appointment now for him to have a complete eye examination. Good vision as he starts the school year can be his most important asset.

We owe this to our children.

Cordially,

With Fruit-Fresh
Fresh Fruit Pie Tonight—and Next Winter

Are you serving a fresh peach pie tonight? If so, instead of just making one, make several. Bake one and freeze the others uncooked to use in the future. Fruit-Fresh, an ascorbic acid mixture, makes this possible, for it will prevent the peaches from turning brown and insure a real fresh pie in months to come. It is a good idea to make the pies in foil plates, for they are easier to store in the freezer. These are available in any store that sells housewares and can be used over and over again. The recipe below is for one pie, so double, triple or quadruple it according to the number of pies you wish to make.

FRESH PEACH PIE

Pastry for a 9-inch lattice top pie	Dash salt
1 tablespoon Fruit-Fresh	1/4 teaspoon cinnamon (optional)
1/2 cup sugar	5 cups sliced fresh peaches (about 3 1/2 lbs.)
3 tablespoons flour

TEEN TOPICS . . .

Lacy R. Oliver
Asst. Home Demonstration Agent

It is for skin care—and it is also for this area of special concern for almost every teenager I know, both guys and girls.

Most experts agree that beauty is more than skin deep, but never-the-less, we all know how discouraging it is to feel that our complexion does not enhance our personal appearance. But, let's face it, there is no easy way to cure skin problems, since healthy skin reflects so many inter-relating factors.

In addition to just simply good complexion we all know that no one can hope to be attractive without sparkling health and pep.

There are a few things, though, about skin care that we all might find useful. Beauty is a habit. Complexion beauty comes not only from good care of the skin, but also from correct eating, proper elimination, the right amount of physical exercise and rest, plenty of fresh air and sunshine, and a happy, contented frame of mind.

Remember that certain essentials cannot be over-lacked. They are:

Rest
We need to relax. We need about eight hours' sleep. The best and most restful sleep is supposed to be before mid-night. If you fool around and don't get to bed for fear you will miss something, you will miss more the next day. If you have a habit of rest, occasional breaks for special events do not make as much difference because you are ready for them.

The Right Food
We need three meals a day. Do not skip breakfast. Generally, you use the most energy in the morning. Avoid snacks between meals, if they interfere with your regular well-balanced meals. Try to learn to like all foods. Each type of food has a very definite place in body growth and health. You feel better when you have a well-rounded diet. Too much candy or sweets and starches may have a well-rounded diet. Too much candy or sweets and starches may have a well-rounded diet. Too much candy or sweets and starches may have a well-rounded diet.

Exercise
Take exercise in fresh air. Get plenty of sunshine at playtime. Hike and swim. Develop an outdoor hobby.

Scrubbing Up
Scrub not only behind the ears but all over with good old soap and water.

One function of the skin is to give off moisture to cool the body. This is perspiration. Perspiration helps to get rid of body waste, too. From 1½ to 2 quarts of water are given off by the body daily as perspiration.

Another function of the skin glands is to produce oil to keep the hair glossy and skin smooth.

Cleanliness on the Inside
Inside cleanliness is important to health and to the skin. Drink plenty of water. Let body waste be carried off by kidneys. Have a daily elimination from the intestines. Waste left in your body is absorbed and gives a tired feeling, headache, or skin pimples.

Help Yourself Fight Acne
You can also help yourself fight acne. Overactive oil glands make the face shine. If not thoroughly washed, the pores become clogged and form black or white heads or other skin trouble. If pimples stay with us, the condition is called acne. Acne is caused by dirt or bacteria lodged in the oil ducts. If not washed out, congestion forms a blackhead, which may later become infected to form a pimple. As teenagers you need to be especially careful, as nature seems to increase the amount of oil manufactured at this time. Clean your face perhaps twice a day with warm water and pure soap. Rinse thoroughly. Always use a clean wash cloth and carry a clean handkerchief to avoid infection. Do not pick or squeeze pimples; they may be very sore and leave your skin scarred. Keep your hair clean. Dirt and dandruff fall on your face and shoulders and cause pimples. To avoid pimples on shoulders and back protect your shoulders with a towel or cape when you brush your hair.

If cleaning your face carefully, eating right foods, exercising, and eating do not keep your skin clear, ask your doctor what will solve your particular skin problem.

Fifteen minutes every day given to your skin gives better results than three hours of intensive care after a week of neglect.

Most skins are classified as four types—dry, oily, combination, and normal.

Dry skin requires the use of moderate water temperatures and creams. Always use a light, upward motion to help sagging muscles.

Because your skin is oily, you will remain young looking longer than any other type of skin. It does present some problems too. Ask your druggist to give you help on finding a soap with astringent qualities. A good scrubbing each night with this type of soap will help. Then rinse your face with as cold water as you can stand. To keep fresh, this type of skin should have fresh make-up about every four hours.

For girls, cosmetics can run into money, and perhaps not help skin problems either. All that you can expect from a so-called skin cream or oil is that it will remove surface dirt and make-up and temporarily soften the dry skin when dryness is caused by external conditions.

High priced face powders frequently offer little more than a more expensive odor and container.

Avoid skin creams claimed to "nourish" the skin. Competent authorities point out that food taken internally is the only way to nourish your skin.

But, remember that consistent and thorough cleaning is the most important aid you have in maintaining pretty skin.

125 Attend Buffet At Friends House

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Friends Meeting House was the setting for a buffet supper Sunday evening honoring new parents and the Faculty at Virginia Beach Friends School.

Mrs. William Bruce, President of the Parents Group, was in charge of the arrangements. Assisting her were members of the Mothers Committee and the School Board.

Over 125 people enjoyed the evening.

Protect Table Linens

Candlelight is romantic, agrees, Mrs. Anne Sterling, Director of Consumer Relations for the American Institute of Laundering, but the drip of candle wax that fall onto your linens are not. Excess professional care will cure this, but why not prevent the drips by putting the candles in the refrigerator for several hours before lighting them.

By SAM MASON, R.P.H.

Mankind owes a great debt to Joseph Lister, for it is very possible that the lives saved by this brilliant surgeon's work are numbered in the millions.

It was Lister who introduced antiseptic less than a century ago, and this means of preventing infection removed the final great stumbling block to modern surgery.

In Lister's day, surgery was a chancy and discouraging proposition in that no matter how fine the surgeon's talent and despite careful planning, patient mortality was alarmingly high due to post-surgery infection.

In our day, prescriptions are becoming increasingly more important to our health and well being from time to time. Look for a complete prescription service at BARR'S PHARMACY, 17th & Atlantic Ave., Phone GA 5-1211. Free prescription delivery.

Club Votes Plant Sale For April

BIRDNECK — The September meeting of the Birdneck Point Garden Club was recently held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Charlton, with Mesdames Burks L. Hammer, Rufus S. Knight and C. A. Rutter, Jr., acting as co-hostesses.

Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, President of the Club, announced that the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs would hold a meeting on October 9th; the Tidewater District of the State Federation of Garden Clubs would meet at the Hotel Chamberlain, Old Point Comfort, on October 17th; and the Miller-Rhodes Woman's Forum would be held in Richmond on November 7th.

The Club voted to schedule its annual plant sale for next April, instead of in October, as in former years.

Mrs. Malcolm Todd, a member of the Marion Crosby Garden Club, and a nationally accredited flower arrangement judge, conducted a "work-shop," demonstrating line, design, balance and color-grouping, which both, old and new members, found to be very beneficial.

Horticulture ribbons were awarded to Mrs. C. B. Arrington, gold; Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. W. H. Lyons and Mrs. Knight, blue; and Mrs. E. T. Deacon and S. L. Lott, red.

D.A.R. Women Hold Covered Dish Luncheon

PRINCESS ANNE—The Princess Anne County Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Saturday with Mrs. Bernard F. White and Mrs. Berton E. Owens for a covered dish luncheon with Mrs. Owen Moore Jr. presiding.

Mrs. J. Fletcher Bryant read a paper on National Defense. Members were urged to attend the Tidewater District 1 meeting on September 28th at the Chamberlain Hotel, Old Point Comfort.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Owens presented a program on Constitution week. Mrs. Owen stated that the week of September 17 had been proclaimed Constitution Week by Mayor Frank A. Dusch.

A Constitution Week display will be exhibited at the Virginia National Bank at Virginia Beach. Mrs. William Bew of Norfolk, Mrs. R. R. Ford and Mrs. John T. Gupton, Jr. were guests of the chapter.

Avoid Mildew Damage
Mrs. Anne Sterling, Director of Consumer Relations for the American Institute of Laundering, warns that summer clothes should be stored in a dry place to avoid mildew damage. They should also be packed loosely so that there will be fewer wrinkles when it comes time for wearing them.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

How Much Of A Problem Is Weight?

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am 17 years old. I will be a junior this year in high school. My problem is that I have difficulty with my weight. I have lost 15 pounds. This particular boy has taken me to the movie. I like him very much. What I want to know is how I can get him to like me a lot. Do you think my weight has anything to do with it?"

OUR REPLY: You forget to state whether your problem with weight was "too much or too little." Either way, we must say that weight is important because the individual who is too heavy or too thin does not look her best. If you are overweight, ask your parents to help you discuss the problem with the family doctor . . . and follow his recommendations.

Appearance is important. We should all try to look our best. Yet it is still possible to be handsome or pretty and not be too well liked. This is because people like or dislike us because of the personality that we present to them and because of our attitudes and actions—what we are and what we do. Haven't you noticed that sometimes the most popular individual in school is perhaps not the prettiest or handsomest?

If you want to make someone like you, be yourself. Be a nice person. Be friendly, be fun to be with. Don't talk too much or too little. Try to put people at ease when they are with you and you will find that you yourself feel more comfortable at the same time.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

The Oil Story

Anyone who can visualize 10 million barrels a day—10 million barrels of anything—has a mathematically inclined mind. And to project this over a month or a year would tax the visualizing process of anyone short of an Einstein.

But 10 million barrels of oil a day is what this nation has to have to supply its farms, homes and industries, to keep its 70 million motor vehicles ticking away, to operate conveniences ranging from automatic heat to air conditioning.

To move this vast ocean of oil is a gigantic, endless task. The resources of our railroads, trucks and water carriers play vital roles. But they can't do it all, and that's the reason for pipelines.

These date from the earliest days of the industry—in 1864, a two-foot, oil-carrying ditch was dug over a distance of several miles between an oil town and a terminal. Today more than 200,000 miles of pipelines network the nation. They gather the crude, carry it to refining centers, then deliver the finished products to market regardless of weather.

More and bigger pipelines are in the works. The first thousand miles of one system now under construction will have 36 inch pipe—the largest ever used for an oil pipeline in this country. The cost of the whole facility will be more than a third of a billion dollars.

Everything is big, indeed, about the oil story—including the services it performs for the people of the Free World.

A Real Cat Fight

Senator Goldwater, in a TV interview, reported that President Kennedy once said to him that if they were to oppose each other for the Presidency it would be a real cat fight.

So it would. And it would provide the nation and the voters with something that has been lacking in contests at the peak political level in late years.

There has been a failure, on the part of candidates of both parties to provide the electorate with a clear and unequivocal choice between two platforms, two philosophies, two diverse attitudes, issues have been blurred. They have been made wishy-washy and indistinct, as conservatives and liberals alike have tempered their views in the fear of alienating masses of voters.

President Kennedy and Senator Goldwater have made their records. The differences between them are profound, particularly in the primary domestic issues, such as federal fiscal policy and the whole Welfare State concept. There are important differences in aspects of foreign and military policy too.

It would be a real battle, between able and articulate men who would give no quarter. The people would have a choice that really meant something.

A Fiery Contestant

Bubba Flame, a contestant in the hot and heavy "Favorite City Father" competition, claims "That show's gonna be hard to match," referring, of course, to the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club's annual Cabaret Follies to be held Nov. 1-2 at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center. Cast your penny vote for your "Favorite City Father" on poster containers placed throughout the city.

Award Goes To Story Man

FORT STORY — SFC John C. Trammel, 155th Transportation Company, became the first man at Fort Story to receive the Army's new Joint Service Commendation Medal when he was presented the award by General Paul D. Adams Cinc US Strike Command.

The 37-year-old Jacksonville, Ill. native distinguished himself while on Swift Strike III when his quick thinking and decisive action contained a fire that had been started by tactical action and threatened buildings and wooded areas in the vicinity.

The citation reads in part "Sergeant Trammel immediately undertook positive action to bring the blaze under control. After unsuccessful efforts to stop the fire through the use of a front loader and the use of maneuvering troops to cut off the fire, Sergeant Trammel collected his command of eighteen men who were clearing a drop zone after a parachute assault, and singularly led his men in fighting the fire until the fire-fighting equipment arrived. In preserving this area from destruction under the observation of civilians residing in the locale, Sgt. Trammel manifested outstanding traits of leadership, initiative, and forcefulness, and brought the highest degree of distinction to himself, the United States Strike Command, and the Department of Defense.

Since 1941, the Treasury has sponsored two partial payment plans for purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds: through the Payroll Savings Plan "where you work," and through the purchase of Savings Stamps at schools and post offices.

The Battalion commander entered the service in 1942 at Baltimore and was commissioned from the Chemical Warfare Officers Candidate School in 1943.

Col. Case was detailed to Infantry and later to the Trans Corps. During World War II he served with a harborcraft company in Florida and later saw duty in England.

In 1944, Lt. Col. Case served with a traffic regulating battalion in Europe, followed by duty in the rail transportation office, Bamberg, Germany.

By Paul B. Macdonald
"Force is all-conquering, but its victories are short-lived."
— Lincoln

History lists a long and imposing list of conquerors, few of which might claim any great measure of permanence.

Force overwhelms and imposes its will, but the story does not end there. It takes a steady, and unrelenting application of force to retain the conquest. It is a victory, a triumph, a triumph which is seldom noted for its longevity.

BASKIN' IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

I hear tell that the movie makers in this country are growing dimmer about how business is poor, and that people don't come to the movies. They say that free television has caused them to lose their audience.

All I say is—A box on them. A large, terrible box, with knobs on it! You know why? If I see one more word about that miserable display of vulgarity Hollywood calls the Love Affair of the Century—I'm talking about that Elizabeth Taylor and her Mr. Richard Burton—I will make a point of it even if it makes me sick, and it probably will.

I hear tell the original Cleo was quite a bag of tricks, but she was a sweet, demure little girl compared to the actress who is playing her part in movie houses all over the country. No historian ever has claimed that Antony was loaded with brains, but he looks like a genius compared to the guy portraying him. I see where Miss Taylor (by the way—how can you call anybody Miss who has been married four times?) stands to make about seven million dollars out of this picture even if it just breaks even. Mr. Burton worked for a flat quarter of a million. If this isn't the highest pay ever awarded to a couple of miserable specimens of humanity, then I'll take the veil.

I wish Christine Keeler would get in touch. She only caused an international uproar, and caused the downfall of a cabinet minister. When she sees Taylor's salary scale, she'll flip. She's been working for peanuts!

Books Tell Of Civil War

NEW YORK — Many residents of Virginia may have "treasure" slashed away in their homes in the form of books, pertaining to the Civil War, without realizing it, says the author of a new volume on Civil War books.

The Centennial of the War Between the States has created a boom in hundreds of books pertaining to, or published in Virginia, according to John Mebane, whose "Books Relating to the Civil War" has just come from the press (Thomas Yeloff, Inc.).

Mebane says that books which had been gathering dust on dealers' shelves or in basements or attics of individuals have unexpectedly become "collectors' items" and are selling at prices far above those prevailing a few years ago.

His book, which contains about 4,800 listings of more than 3,150 individual titles, sets the price range at which volumes valued at $5 or more have sold at retail in recent years.

For example, a number of regional and similar military outfit histories associated with Virginia are currently in heavy demand. Mebane cites William M. McDonald's "A History of the Laurel Brigade, Originally the Ashby Cavalry of the Army of Northern Virginia, & Chew's Battery," published in 1907 and now valued at $25 in defective copies. Though published in Baltimore, the book is of specific Virginia interest. T. J. Macon's "Reminiscences of the First Company of Richmond Howitzers," printed in Richmond, is selling now at $50 a copy.

General books relating to the Civil War and associated with Virginia also are currently bringing fancy prices. Alex H. H. Stuart's "Narrative of the Leading Incidents of the Organization of the First Popular Movement in Virginia in 1865 to Establish Peaceful Relations Between the Northern and Southern States," printed in Richmond in 1868, is valued at $35 to $50.

Especially high prices are now asked for the scarce Confederate imprints. For example, an unbound sheet captioned "Message of the President to the House and Senate of the Confederate States . . . Feb. 6th 1865," printed in Richmond that year, has a $50 valuation. Forty dollars is asked for a copy of "Ordinance

BOATING WITH BOWMAN

by Hank Wiscand Bowman

Without guidance, uninitiated landlubbers are apt to hang an outboard on the back of their new boat, hop in, take a whirl on the lake, have their back teeth nearly slapped out and decide that if this is boating, they'll stick to horseback riding.

Even some people who grew up with skis in their hair and spray on their sunglasses blink that taking a boating is a part of boating. But it isn't so. In defense of all the millions of intelligent and happy boatmen, I will say categorically they are not neophytes who like lumps and bruises—they just know how properly to hang an outboard motor on the backs of their boats.

That's right. An improperly set up motor on any boat can make the thing handle worse than an ill-tempered horse. —Or to the other extreme, wallow like a water buffalo.

No one is happy very long with a boat that alternately lifts its bow and slaps it down into the water again with a metronome-like rhythm. This seasawing action is usually referred to as porpoising.

It's generally attributed to incorrect motor angle or to much weight in the stern of the boat. If your own boat has a tendency to porpoise, decrease the motor angle, that is, move the lower unit closer to the transom of the boat. Every outboard motor has some means of transom angle adjustment, either notches or supporting pin hole adjustments in a quadrant type bracket.

Try trying the motor in, first one, then two adjustments. This will bring the bow down and will usually stop the porpoising motion. At the same time you will find that the boat will bounce onto plane without struggling and you'll suddenly find that it has increased gumption for pulling water skiers.

This motor-angle deal can work to both extremes. If the motor is tucked in too close to the transom, the boat can become bow heavy. It will have a tendency to plow rather than to plane, to bury its nose in the turns, toss green water all over its passengers every time it encounters a wave and on a straightaway it may fall off to either side so that the boat will refuse to run on an even plane.

If the handling characteristics of your boat fall into this category, try moving the lower unit out, a notch or two and chances are you'll find this makes all the difference in the world and you'll probably pick up some added speed.

City Teams Win Four, Lose One

VIRGINIA BEACH—Chris Hansen led defending champion Virginia Beach to a 26-7 victory over Pocomoon in a District One, Group Two football contest Friday night.

Hansen turned in a superlative performance with three long runs, each resulting in a Seahawk touchdown. He ran wild in the first half, chalking up scoring dashes of 71, 86 and 72-yard runs. Pocomoon 0, 0 7 0-7 Va. Beach 6 14 6 0-26 VB—Hanson 71 run (run failed) VB—Hanson 86 run (Hanson run) VB—Hanson 72 run (Chaplin-Tar-kenton pass) VB—Nolan 83 run (run failed) Poq—Moore 3 run (Parks run)

BARRY-ROBINSON

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Barry-Robinson Rangers opened their football season Friday afternoon by swamping the Tidewater Academy Mariners, 40-6.

After an opening quarter 6-6 tie, the Rangers ran the score up with the aid of several spectacular runs and pass plays. Quarterback Junior Duncanson pitched out to Cal Koonce, who sprinted 22 yards for the tie-breaker. Mike Pearson then took a reverse handoff 16 yards for a score to make it 20-6 at the half. Barry-Robinson.

KELLAM

HAMPTON—Floyd E. Kellam of Virginia Beach ruined Kecoughtan High's football debut here Friday night with a 12-6 victory over the Warriors.

Kecoughtan opened a 6-0 lead in the second period when sophomore quarterback Tommy Catlett tagged and Alex Conle for a 31-yard scoring aerial.

Kellam 0 6 0 6-12 Kecoughtan 0 6 0 0-6 Kecoughtan—Conley 31 pass from Catlett (kick failed) Kellam—Rozos recovered fumble in end zone (run failed) Kellam—Rich 35 pass from Morris (run failed)

PRINCESS ANNE

NORFOLK—Princess Anne regained its football bearings Friday night and flattened Norview, 19-0.

Knocking reeling in its own opener by Great Bridge a week ago, the big team in red shirts was in a mood to do some spoiling 49 seconds before the end of the half.

Two more touchdowns were on the Cavalier side of the scoreboard before Norview had its second first down or ran a play in Princess Anne territory.

O'Brien In Form
All three touchdowns came on running plays which is unusual, making it two weeks in a row that Buster O'Brien has failed to connect with a scoring pass. Otherwise, though, the senior quarterback was quite himself. If anything he is a better runner and a more astute diagnostician of defense than last year.

COX

CHESAPEAKE—Sophomore end Jim Lawrence scored all his team's points Friday night to lead Deep Creek to a 14-0 win over Frank Cox High School.

Lawrence scored on a 20-yard pass from quarterback Dave Underwood in the first period to take a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter Lawrence ran for nine yards and a touchdown clinching a 60-yard drive. Both of Lawrence's place kicks were good.

Fourth Fishing Tourney Here Sept. 28-29

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Angler's Club in conjunction with the City of Virginia Beach will conduct its Fourth Annual Salt Water Fishing Tournament from the surf and piers at Virginia Beach, Saturday and Sunday, September 28th and 29th, 1963.

This event is open to the public and there is no entrance fee. Contestants are required to register prior to fishing and may do so at either the Virginia Beach Fishing Pier, 16th Street & Ocean Front, or the Williams Steel Pier, 2nd & Ocean Front. Beach Marshalls will patrol the fishing area, which extends from the Port Story fence at 89th Street on the north to the Camp Pendleton fence to the south. The inland waters of Rudee Inlet, Croatan Bay and Owl Creek are also eligible fishing areas. Fishing will not be permitted from boats.

Hours for fishing each day will be from 6:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for all species except Channel Bass. The hours for the particular species will run from 6:00 a.m. Saturday through 6:00 p.m. Sunday, to give the anglers a chance to catch this battling beauty during the night hours.

No restrictions are imposed on fishing tackle or bait used but state regulations regarding legal size and limit must be observed. Illegal fish should be returned to the water immediately as a conservation measure.

Two Grand Tournament prizes will be awarded to the male or female angler scoring the greatest number of points and/or catch the most eligible fish during the two days. Four daily prizes will be awarded each day to the lucky male and female catching the most eligible fish and also to the male and female scoring the most points. Special awards will be made for the largest of species and outstanding or unusual catches. Awards will also be made to contestants for outstanding catches from the SURF.

This tournament is expected to attract tourists from all over the country that spend their fall vacations at Virginia Beach, "The World's Largest Resort City". For further information contact Virginia Beach Anglers Club, P. O. 953, Virginia Beach, Va.

PLAZA RESULTS

Cox's deepest penetration was to the Deep Creek 25-yard-line with five minutes remaining in the third quarter. Underwood completed 10 of 15 passes for 153 yards.

Dog Mart Oct. 12th

FREDERICKSBURG—The annual DOG MART will be held in Fredericksburg Saturday, October 12, under the sponsorship of the Fredericksburg Chapter, Rappahannock Chapter, Isaac Walton League of America.

History tells us that when the White Man settled in Fredericksburg he brought fine hunting dogs with him. The Indians, a co-operation of 32 tribes under their powerful Chief Powhatan, wished to obtain some of the dogs. The continuing warfare between the Colonists and the Indians seemed to make this impossible. The Indians on the other hand, had valuable furs, gold and other articles that the White Man coveted. The White Men and the Indians, after several meetings, decided that they would declare a truce for one day of each year for the purpose of trading with each other. The first truce was the year 1608. Thus, the DOG MART originated. This was perhaps the only time in history that two warring factions laid down their arms on account of a Dog. The original truce was signed with the Pamunkey Indians and they, under their present Chief T. D. Cook, continue to this day to take part in the DOG MART.

The DOG MART will start at 10:30 a.m. with a parade through the business district of downtown Fredericksburg and end at Mary School Stadium. The participants in the parade will consist of owners and their dogs, horses, ponies, bands, Indians and others.

The principal feature of the MART is the dog auction. Dogs are sold, at no cost to their owners, for as little as $50 and up to $50. The owners range in age from 8 to 80. Dogs of all breeds, purebred and mutt, are shown and auctioned. The MART consists of contests of various kinds—hog calling, old time fiddlers, fox horn blowing, freckles, The K-Nine Corps of Dogs from the Police Department, Richmond, will perform. The Manahoe Bowman Archery Club of Fredericksburg will have an exhibition of archery. There will be trained dog acts, Indian dances and displays and sale of Indian ware. At the Stadium there will be food booths where one may purchase home cooked food.

The public is cordially invited to visit Fredericksburg, Virginia on Saturday, October 12th and attend "AMERICA'S MOST UNIQUE EVENT", the DOG MART. Admission is free.

Further information about the DOG MART may be obtained by writing the Information Center, 2800 Princess Anne Street, Fredericksburg, Va.

Birdneck League In Quarterly Meet

BIRDBECK POINT—The Board of Directors of the Birdneck Point Community League held its quarterly meeting Thursday at the home of president Pinkney S. Cook.

Considerable discussion was had regarding the potential hazards of children invading the golf course within the Birdneck Point area. It was decided to write each resident requesting co-operation in the matter.

The Board voted to donate specified amounts to the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad, Seaside Volunteer Fire Department and the Oceana Volunteer Fire Department.

The question of developing an appropriate entrance marking for Birdneck Point on Oriole Drive was tabled pending action by property owners at the entrance.

Educational Opportunities Growing Unusually In U.S.

By Sen. Stephen M. Young (D. Ohio)

For more than a century the pride of America has been its fine system of public school education. It was founded on the premise that education is the heart of a democratic society and is the birthright of every American. Through the years, we have willingly supported our public schools in the belief that it is in them that we develop our most precious natural resource, our children. Although our system of public education has worked well, I maintain we could do better—much better. Indeed, it must be the very best if our society is to meet the grim challenges of the years ahead.

The sheer pressure of population growth has brought about a critical need for rapid expansion of educational facilities and rapid increase in educational personnel. Today there are 70 million young Americans under the age of twenty—seven years from now there will be 16 million. This year, alone, there are 1 million more sixteen-year-olds than last year.

Because of this population pressure, our educational needs, now and in the years to come, are staggering. Since 1959 enrollment in our schools and colleges has increased by over 10%, and it is expected that by 1970 college enrollment will double and secondary school enrollment increase by 10%.

One and a half million new classrooms will be needed for elementary and secondary schools in this decade. Yet, last fall we had a shortage of 121 thousand classrooms, and if current construction rates continue we will make up only half of what we will need. Moreover, last year, one and a half million of our children were studying in overcrowded classrooms, and two million others were studying in substandard conditions of health and safety. These figures represent but a small illustration of our very immediate educational needs.

Recognizing the enormity of the problem, we must also recognize that this is not only a local problem, but a national one as well. If education is inadequate in one area, ability is undetermined in all areas. Today, we are allowing a situation to exist in which educational opportunity is grossly uneven and unequal throughout the land. And where educational opportunity is unequal, all opportunity is unequal, all opportunity is unequal.

Those who cry of a "federal take-over" are wasting their time and our time. Our total national expenditure for education is about $10 billion. The federal government contributes only 4% of this. The Administration has proposed that we increase the federal contribution towards education to only 6 or 10%.

While some of us are splitting hairs over whether an educational crisis exists and whether a suitable solution can be found, the problem grows. We must begin now to correct the very deficiencies in our public school system. They will not disappear if we ignore them. They will only grow more acute. The time has come when the only interest which must be satisfied is the interest of our children—the interest of those whose future is dependent upon education.

Book 730, page 541, default having been made in the payment of the debt thereby secured, and at the request of the creditor secured, the undersigned Trustee will sell at public auction for cash, at the front door of the City Hall of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, located in the Borough of Princess Anne, on September 30, 1963, at 12:00 noon, the following property, to-wit:

PLAZA—Master Auto Service held the Grand Opening of its Plaza store Monday and opening ceremonies will continue through Sunday.

The new store is the third branch of the parent store, located in Norfolk.

Attending Monday's ceremonies were approximately 30 officials of the US Rubber and US Royal Tire Companies and city officials from Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

Manager of the new store is Bob Fletcher; assistant manager is L. Ross Mayo.

Master Auto Service Corporation is owned by Sam Green and his son Archer. MASC has been in business for the past 44 years and is the oldest tire dealer in the Tidewater area.

In addition to its complete line of passenger, truck, farm and industrial tires, the Corporation specializes in under-car services such as front end alignment, wheel balancing, complete brake service, shock absorbers, mufflers and tail pipes.

Of Interest To Veterans

Maurice J. Hunger of the division of War Veterans' claims, a free service operated by the state of Virginia, will interview veterans and their survivors in Virginia Beach between noon and 4:00 P.M. on Thursday, September 26, 1963 at the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center, 19th St. and Pacific Ave.

Hunger's Norfolk area office is at Suite 218, Professional Arts Building, 142 West York Street; telephones 622-9871 — 625-4170.

Your Social Security

Should disaster strike and you become so disabled that you can no longer work you should get in touch with your local social security office at 220 W. Brambleton Ave., Norfolk, Va.

If your illness or injury keeps you at your home or you are confined to a hospital just get word to your local social security office and a representative will come to your bedside. Never delay asking about disability insurance benefits because you don't know whether or not you meet the requirements. The social security people will find out whether you worked long enough under social security to be entitled to benefits. They will also tell you what medical evidence you will need to support your claim. Delay in getting in touch with the social security office about your eligibility for disability benefits could result in loss of benefits to you and to your family.

VIRGINIA BEACH—George D. Brooke, President of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, has announced that the contract for construction of the new hospital is to be given to J. A. Jones Construction Co. of Charlotte, N. C.

Paper Drive Planned To Aid Hospital

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach will sponsor a paper drive through the month of October starting next Tuesday.

Proceeds from the drive will be used to pay for air-conditioning units in the present hospital building on 25th Street and to equip the pediatric service of both the old and new hospital.

Headquarters will be located at 53rd Street and Atlantic Avenue in what was once the Colonial Service Station. This drop-off point will be open Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., but the building will be closed the remainder of the time.

Donors are asked to bundle the newspapers, to eliminate a possible fire hazard, and leave them at the headquarters during the designated hours.

A called meeting of the Auxiliary's executive board and committee chairmen will be held Monday at 11 a.m. at the Thunderbird Motor Lodge to complete plans for the project.

Mrs. P. H. Allen and Mrs. Harold Kellam will serve as co-chair-

Four Youths Court Bound

VIRGINIA BEACH—Four youths involved in a traffic accident while allegedly fleeing a burglary scene will appear in Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Tuesday.

Police said the four boys escaped injury when their car overturned as they were chased by a patrol car early Tuesday.

The oldest boy was identified as Richard Paul Davis, 18, of South Bird Neck Road. His companions were 14, 15 and 17 years of age.

A security patrolman telephoned police after he surprised the four youths in the office of the Kempeville Building Materials, Inc., on Bonney Road. He furnished police with a description and license number of the car they left in.

Detectives William Currie and Charles Payne saw the car in the south part of London Bridge and chased it east on Potters Road at speeds up to 90 miles per hour. The fleeing car flipped over when it tried to turn onto First Colonial Road in Oceana.

Ceremony Mark New Motel Start

VIRGINIA BEACH—Ground-breaking ceremonies for a new modern oceanfront hotel at 27th Street and Atlantic Avenue will be held today at 10 a.m.

To be called the Viking Hotel, the project will be built by George and John Vokos.

Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch and other officials will be on hand to officially launch the new building.

The Piggy Needs More Nourishment

Mrs. Pat Bragg, manager of the White Heron Motel, displays the piggy bank that is collecting contributions for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Newspaper and telephone money left by motel guests is dropped into the greedy fellow's tummy and "he's getting heavy," Mrs. Bragg said. The pig will be opened and a drawing for a 12-pound ham, also for the hospital fund, will take place in November. (Baldwin Photo)

4-H Youths Select Steers For Show

PRINCESS ANNE—Young 4-H members will select the steers they plan to raise for the 1964 Steer Show and Sale Saturday at 10 a.m. at the M. R. Adams Farm in Princess Anne.

The steers have been purchased by the Virginia Beach Agriculture Committee and each will be sponsored by a local business firm who will provide the youngsters with money needed for the project.

Coast Guard To Assume Bay Aids

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Beach Channel Association has received word from the U.S. Coast Guard that as of October first the department will assume responsibility for all aids to navigation located in Broad and Linkhorn Bays. These private aids were originally installed and have been maintained for a number of years by local yachtsmen who contributed funds to the Association.

Specifically, the change of ownership includes Daymarkers 2-4-5-6-8-10-11-12-14 and 15, most of which are located in the Narrows. W. H. Terry, vice president of the Association, stated that the group had been trying for some time to have the markers taken over by the Coast Guard and that the recent great increase in boating on these waters was responsible for the change.

Negotiations with the Coast Guard were handled by Ray Cassett, head of the Association's Aids Committee, who said, "Commander C. H. Jurgens of the Coast Guard was most cooperative. His letter assures us that further improvements in these aids will be made as funds become available and we have requested that a lighted marker be placed at the Broad Bay entrance to the Narrows Channel. The aids are now official and will be included in the U. S. Light List."

Hoy Awarded Oliver Job

VIRGINIA BEACH—L. J. Hoy, Inc., Norfolk contractor, has been awarded a $151,950 contract to erect a building for Oliver Funeral Apartments, Inc., on Laskin Road.

Clarence W. Meakin is the architect.

Chamber Executive Director Roy LaMere said.

The annual Lamb Show, usually held in November, was cancelled this year because of the severity of drought conditions this summer, he said.

Members of the Agriculture Committee are requested to attend Saturday's activities since a meeting of the group will be held immediately following the distribution of the steers.

Invitations have been sent to the committee, members of the press and steer sponsors, but the general public is invited.

The farm is located just off Highway 629 between Nimmo Church and Princess Anne Court House.

FOOTBALL TICKETS

Adult tickets to the Virginia Beach - Norfolk Academy football game here Friday are on sale at Alexander-Boggs Men's Store and Coaches Sporting Goods.

Linkhorn Park Club Pays Off

The Linkhorn Park Garden Club had pledged $100 to the new General Hospital of Virginia Beach to be paid over a three year period. But the club's successful Plantation Party event enabled it to pay off the pledge in a lump sum... with $15 over. The check was presented to Claiborne K. Bryant, treasurer of the hospital campaign, by Mrs. T. Cornell Berry. (Baldwin Photo)

45 Chambers Contacted

C Of C Gives Boost To Local Option Question

VIRGINIA BEACH—Local option for the right to vote on liquor by the drink received another boost this week by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, which has already passed a strongly worded resolution favoring the move.

Chamber Executive Director Roy LaMere said Wednesday that he has written 45 other chambers throughout the state, representing cities over 5,000 population, asking that they adopt similar resolutions.

The letters also asked each Chamber to appoint a representative to a committee which, when formed, will make personal visits to Governor Albertis S. Harrison Jr. and Senator Harry F. Byrd.

The committee will present the two state leaders with copies of resolutions from the various Chambers as evidence of local opinion supported by the business community of the state.

LaMere said that so far the Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Alexandria and Winchester-Frederick County Chambers are the only ones to pass such a resolution.

A similar proposal came up before the Portsmouth Board of expected in the near future.

The Virginia Beach Chamber's representative on the state-wide committee will be its president, F. Reid Ervin. Alexandria has appointed John R. Stevenson, a member of its board of directors.

New Autos To Be Shown Here Oct. 25

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Automobile Dealers Association will move its annual Auto Show to the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center this year. The dates will be Oct. 25-27.

The show had previously been held at the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center which is now filled with business firms.

A popular event, the show attracted over 40,000 spectators its first two years of operation.

The show will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and entertainment and prizes will be offered throughout its three-day run to encourage family participation.

Association President Gene Meakin said models will be displayed both in and outside the Civic Center.

Expected to draw considerable interest will be displays of racing cars and factory experimental models.

United Nations Discussed By Women Voters

LONDON BRIDGE—Four major national issues were stressed Tuesday at a meeting of the Virginia Beach unit, League of Women Voters at Eastern Shore Chapel.

These issues included weighted voting in the United Nations, as opposed to one vote per nation; disarmament; the United Nations function in disarmament and the financing of the United Nations to prevent bankruptcy.

Resource material was distributed by Mrs. E. W. Abild and discussions were led by Mrs. J. M. Cochran Jr.

The League's stand on poll tax legislation was reviewed by Mrs. Ruth Borne, a member of the state board, League of Women Voters.

Persons interested in the League's activities may contact Mrs. Abild at 428-6098.

Directors in June, he said, but the resolution was tabled and no action has been taken by that city.

The Chesapeake Chamber has not taken a stand on local option

Jaycees May Join Local Option Plan

VIRGINIA BEACH—Junior Chamber of Commerce chapters throughout the city may join forces to sponsor a mock election or petition booths to determine the general opinion on local option for liquor by the drink.

The Virginia Beach Jaycees have already voted in favor of such a project and it is expected that the Princess Anne and Bay-side chapters will follow suit.

If such a joint effort comes about it will probably be sometime in November, either on Nov. 5 at the same time the general election is held, or about that time.

The Virginia Beach Jaycees Tuesday night officially adopted a resolution in favor of local option for liquor by the drink.

The vote was unanimous, a spokesman said.

A mock election or petition booths may prove to be a gauge to show how Virginia Beach residents would vote if the General Assembly ever passed legislation that would permit local option on liquor by the drink.

Brooke has written the Jones Company of intention to enter into a contract for construction of the hospital, subject to the approval of the Virginia State Department of Health. The actual signing of the contract will not take place until early October, with construction to begin shortly thereafter, and completion of the building in the spring of 1965.

The new hospital is to be located on the Alanton Road, a little less than a mile north of Hilltop on a 20-acre tract contributed to the hospital by Mrs. Levi Old, widow of Dr. Levi Old.

The basic building will be constructed by the successful bidder, J. A. Jones Construction Co., at the contract price of $2,160,865. The architects for the building are Baskerville & Son of Richmond.

The original contract will be for a hospital building to accommodate 105 beds, including 70 for medical-surgical, 24 for maternity and 11 for intensive care. Laboratory and other central facilities, kitchen and cafeteria, operating and delivery rooms are of sufficient capacity to accommodate 66 additional beds. In addition, the building will have foundations and general services adequate for future expansion to 300 beds.

Brooke has expressed satisfaction and gratitude to Karl A. Wunder, chairman of the Hospital Building Committee, and to all members of the committee for their diligent and intensive work in attaining the construction stage of the program. He stated further:

"The low bid is somewhat above the estimate of a year ago, but we have incorporated in plans, certain provisions for future expansion. It is my feeling, joined in by those associates closely in touch with the project, that the lower bids were favorable indeed. This, of course, is a source of real gratification to us all," Brooke said.

When the hospital is completed and fully equipped, the total cost will be in excess of $2,600,000. A grant of $1,430,000 for the hospital has been earmarked from Hill-Burton Federal Funds. The remaining costs must be raised by pledges from private subscribers in previous fund raising campaigns.

Brooke points out that, "As construction begins, payments due on pledges made during the several fund drives, are now urgently needed. We are grateful to those who have made pledges, and I am confident that payment on these pledges will now be forthcoming, so that we can complete construction of this much needed medical facility in our community."

The Virginia Beach Hospital on 25th Street was acquired from private owners on December 1, 1961, and has been enlarged and modernized for operations on an open staff basis. This hospital will be known as the 25th Street Branch of the Virginia Beach Hospital. W. Earl Willis is Administrator for the new hospital, and is now serving in that capacity.

Negotiations with the Coast Guard were handled by Ray Caselt, head of the Association's Aids Committee, who said, "Commander C. H. Jurgens of the Coast Guard was most cooperative. His letter assures us that further improvements in these aids will be made as funds become available and we have requested that a lighted marker be placed at the Broad Bay entrance to the Narrows Channel. The aids are now official and will be included in the U. S. Light List."

Four Youths Court Bound

VIRGINIA BEACH—Four youths involved in a traffic accident while allegedly fleeing a burglary scene will appear in Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court Tuesday.

Police said the four boys escaped injury when their car overturned as they were chased by a patrol car early Tuesday.

The oldest boy was identified as Richard Paul Davis, 18, of South Bird Neck Road. His companions were 14, 15 and 17 years of age.

A security patrolman telephoned police after he surprised the four youths in the office of the Kempsville Building Materials, Inc., on Bonney Road. He furnished police with a description and license number of the car they left in.

Detectives William Currie and Charles Payne saw the car in the south part of London Bridge and chased it east on Potters Road at speeds up to 90 miles per hour. The fleeing car flipped over when it tried to turn onto First Colonial Road in Oceana.

The pig will be opened and a drawing for a 12-pound ham, also for the hospital fund, will take place in November. (Baldwin Photo)

4-H Youths Select Steers For Show

PRINCESS ANNE—Young 4-H members will select the steers they plan to raise for the 1964 Steer Show and Sale Saturday at 10 a.m. at the M. R. Adams Farm in Princess Anne.

The steers have been purchased by the Virginia Beach Agriculture Committee and each will be sponsored by a local business firm who will provide the youngsters with money needed for the project.

This annual project has now become a joint effort between the Virginia Beach and Chesapeake Chambers of Commerce and the locations will alternate each year between the two cities.

The 1964 event, scheduled for May, will be held at Frontier City in Virginia Beach. The 1965 show will be in Chesapeake.

This combined arrangement will make all future shows twice as large as those previously held.

Chamber Executive Directory Roy LaMere said.

The annual Lamb Show, usually held in November, was cancelled this year because of the scarcity of hay caused by the severe drought conditions this summer, he said.

Members of the Agriculture Committee are requested to attend Saturday's activities since a meeting of the group will be held immediately following the distribution of the steers.

Invitations have been sent to the committee, members of the press and steer sponsors, but the general public is invited.

The farm is located just off Highway 629 between Nimmo Church and Princess Anne Court House.

C Of C Gives Boost To Local Option Question

VIRGINIA BEACH—Local option for the right to vote on liquor by the drink received another boost this week by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, which has already passed a strongly worded resolution favoring the move.

Chamber Executive Director Roy LaMere said Wednesday that he has written 45 other chambers throughout the state, representing cities over 5,000 population, asking that they adopt similar resolutions.

The letters also asked each Chamber to appoint a representative to a committee which, when formed, will make personal visits to Governor Albert S. Harrison Jr. and Senator Harry F. Byrd.

The committee will present the two state leaders with copies of resolutions from the various Chambers as evidence of local opinion supported by the business community of the state.

LaMere said that so far the Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Alexandria and Winchester-Frederick County Chambers are the only ones to pass such a resolution.

A similar proposal came up before the Portsmouth Board of expected in the near future.

Reid Named
The Virginia Beach Chamber's representative on the state-wide committee will be its president, F. Reid Ervin. Alexandria has appointed John R. Stevenson, a member of its board of directors

Directors in June, he said, but the resolution was tabled and no action has been taken by that city.

The Chesapeake Chamber has not taken a stand on local option either, LaMere said, but action is and chairman of the tourist and convention committees.

The first letters asking that a resolution be passed went out to only Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake but the board later decided that more Chambers should be contacted.

Letters to the 45 Chambers were mailed Sept. 19, LaMere said, but, because of various meeting dates, answers are not expected for at least 30 days.

"This movement is not meant to take the place of current movements in Norfolk and Virginia Beach to secure 20,000 signatures to petition favoring local option," LaMere explained.

He said he felt this expression from the business complex of the state, in addition to the thousands of individuals signing the petitions, would be the strongest case yet presented for local option.

The drive to solicit signatures locally is headed by Virginia Beach attorney L. Charles Burlage.

Petitions Available
Copies of these petitions are available, for eligible voters, at the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce office, 25th Street and Pacific Avenue.

Several petitions are already being circulated and are nearly filled, LaMere said.

The resolution passed by the Chamber a few weeks ago pulls no punches in declaring that the present Virginia State Alcoholic Beverage Control laws are "trifling the competitive position of certain portions of the state."

It further states that these laws have never been suitable to all portions of the state nor have they limited the consumption of alcohol or reduced highway accidents.

Music Honor Students Named

These issues included weighted voting in the United Nations, as opposed to one vote per nation; disarmament; the United Nations function in disarmament and the financing of the United Nations to prevent bankruptcy.

Resource material was distributed by Mrs. E. W. Abdlil and discussions were led by Mrs. J. M. Cochran Jr.

The League's stand on poll tax legislation was reviewed by Mrs. Ruth Borne, a member of the state board, League of Women Voters.

Persons interested in the League's activities may contact Mrs. Abdlil at 428-6059.

United Nations Discussed By Women Voters

LONDON BRIDGE—Four major national issues were stressed Tuesday at a meeting of the Virginia Beach unit, League of Women Voters at Eastern Shore Chapel.

Directors in June, he said, but the resolution was tabled and no action has been taken by that city.

The Chesapeake Chamber has not taken a stand on local option either, LaMere said, but action is and chairman of the tourist and convention committees.

The first letters asking that a resolution be passed went out to only Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake but the board later decided that more Chambers should be contacted.

Letters to the 45 Chambers were mailed Sept. 19, LaMere said, but, because of various meeting dates, answers are not expected for at least 30 days.

Early Bird Pays 1964 C of C Dues

VIRGINIA BEACH—The first 1964 membership in the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce was paid this week, Executive Director Roy LaMere said Wednesday. The early bird was Frank Norton, owner of the Gulf Stream Motel. Norton said he was leaving the area for several months and wanted to make sure he had his 1964 Chamber membership before he left.

Sweater Looks: Country Looks!

When classes are over, smart coeds look to the "country" for relaxing in casual "country looks" sportswear. This fall's look is rustic and casual, with emphasis on textures and tweeds. Sweaters have a sturdy look — hale and hearty — the bulkier the better — to be pulled down low to the hip. Shown here is a "countrified" version of a tennis warm-up sweater done in peppered tweed wool, with color accent at the V-neckline. It's worn here over a white oxford broadcloth shirt. The "Alpine-styled" walkers have generous cuffed pockets and are neatly man-tailored in a handsome wool flannel. To complete the easy look: textured cable knee socks worn with polished leather loafers. "Country Looks" sportswear all designed by Bobbie Brooks.

For Women Only— If You Ask Me

By Betty Deal Home Demonstration Agent

Well, here I am in the Blue Ridge! The view and weather are beautiful. I have been busy getting schedule for classes arranged and watching the dormitory where I will live be finished for occupancy. Thirty-four women upperclassmen will be there and I will be their house-mother! I have already had enough experiences to make a chapter in my book to be entitled "My Daze."

I have been able to get a few late peaches and have enjoyed them. The apples look really pretty and taste good too. The trees have not had enough nip in the air to be really pretty but are beginning to turn.

Organizing oneself is not easy but it surely is necessary. I feel we can help our children by helping them plan for the next day, getting things as books, etc. together. They might decide what to wear and learn to get it out too. A regular time for other activities including study and play helps them learn a sense of time.

People, especially young girls, (I'm living with 34) must set great store by the number of things they have. You should see what this group in the Woman's Auxiliary Dormitory where I am Student Counselor have!! Are we supplying things to help them have confidence? Could we be more help in aiding them in having this feeling by cultivation abilities of work and attitudes of thought?

Well, Ho-Hum, have to get these girls in bed or they'll never get up.

Sweaters Launder Easily
Washing sweaters is not difficult if you follow the manufacturer's suggested method, says Mrs. Anne Sterling, Director of Consumer Relations for the American Institute of Laundering, trade association for the professional laundry industry. The stains, soil, and perspiration that are so much a part of summer activities may become "set" in the fabric and the garment will not be wearable when you're ready to don the lightweight attire again.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

The Urge To Regulate

The urge to regulate and regiment, well-intentioned as it may be, often runs to extremes.

At the moment this is the case with regulatory proposals being considered by the Federal Trade Commission. These concern several long-established practices. One is pre-ticketing—whereby the manufacturer marks the article in question with a suggested selling price, in the hope that this will be a guide to consumers and will provide the retailer with a profit sufficient to encourage him to advertise, display and do his best to sell the product. Another deals with labeling and packaging. Still another deals with the text of advertising, as it involves such inducements as "free," "sale," "special," and "discount."

These practices have been used at times by unscrupulous operators to the disadvantage of unwary buyers. But this does not do away with the fact that in the vast majority of instances they have been honestly and fairly employed, and have performed an important service to all concerned—producer, distributor, consumer. What is needed, as new and changed regulations are considered, is a calm perspective. It would be folly to fail to see the forest because of the trees.

Competition is itself a powerful weapon against misleading labeling, advertising or anything else. So is consumer know-how—the housewife is a canny buyer and she can't be fooled often or for long. Regulations are needed, and excellent, proven ones have long been in effect. But the urge to regulate must not be translated into bureaucratic dictation that would do far more harm than good.

Let's Hear From The Family Farm

The family farm has been the subject of much worried discussion, spurred by the fear that it is in danger of being absorbed by the big corporate farm.

Yet, according to the Secretary of Agriculture, the family farm seems to have been holding its own and then some. In a late year it accounted for a higher proportion of all farms than it did 15 years before and, also, for a higher percentage of total marketings.

Even so, the Secretary feels that steps should be taken to strengthen its power of survival. Most important of these is government action to . . . insure fair prices to farmers through public supply management programs when overproduction makes such programs necessary.

That phrase should be read again and pondered in order to understand its full import. If "public supply management" means anything, it means government control. So, to save the family farm from possible corporate absorption, we should give the power of management decision to a federal bureaucracy. We should, moreover, subject it to a program which has cost the taxpayer the lord-knows-how-many billions of dollars, produced some juicy scandals, and piled chaos upon confusion.

One would like the views of some typical family farm owners on this drear prospect.

When Encouragement Is Merited

A primary reason for tax revision and tax reform is to stimulate investment and expansion in job-producing, wealth-creating industry. Yet some of the current tax proposals would have the opposite effect on industries of the most vital nature.

It is estimated that one would increase the taxes paid by oil and gas producers by $280 million a year. And oil and gas production, let it be remembered, involves great risks. The average exploratory well costs about $90,000 nowadays, and only one in nine finds any gas or oil at all. The new taxes could be compensated for only by cutbacks in exploration, or by increases in the cost of oil products to the consumer. Neither of these alternatives, certainly, would encourage and spur the oil people, or anyone else involved.

A look at the world picture provides still more compelling evidence against such tax proposals. Oil is a crucial weapon in the cold war—and that war will continue, no matter what agreements on nuclear testing and related problems may be reached between the powers. The Soviet Union uses oil to woo the nations which are not yet finally committed to either the Communist or the Free World blocs. This amounts to the toughest kind of competition for the West—for the Soviets, in the pursuance of their implacable national goal of ultimate world economic supremacy, often sell oil at prices which bear little or no relationship to production and distribution costs.

If any industry merits the encouragement of it is oil. That is true not only of the companies which operate in the domestic market, but also of those which operate in the international sphere as well.

AREA ARTISTS ASKED TO SUBMIT TB SEALS DESIGN

NORFOLK — Artists of Eastern Virginia are invited to submit their ideas on the design for future Christmas Seals. An award of $1,000 is offered by the National Tuberculosis Association to the artist whose design is selected.

The Christmas Seal is an American tradition. The first Seal used in the fight against tuberculosis in this country was designed in 1907 by Emily P. Bissell, a Red Cross worker. The purpose of this first Christmas Seal Campaign was to help keep a small tuberculosis sanatorium from closing its doors. The campaign was a success; three thousand dollars was contributed.

Through the years the annual Christmas Seal campaign has grown until now when approximately $26 million is being contributed each year by the people of the United States to support the work of more than 2200 state and local tuberculosis associations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association.

L. Manning Burcher, president of the TB Association for Eastern Virginia arranged with National officials to obtain the original art of recent Christmas Seals. Five of the winning designs are now on display in the lobby of Home Federal Savings and Loan Association at Boush Street at Brambleton Avenue in Norfolk. The display will remain through Friday when it will be moved to Ohio.

Burcher said pamphlets describing specifications for Christmas Seal designs for the guidance of artists are available at Home Federal during the display and may be obtained from TB association local headquarters.

SCRIBE DESCRIBES BERMUDA CRUISE

BY RITA VELLINES
BAYSIDE—There is a song that goes something like this: "Let's take a boat to Bermuda. . . And so we did. The good ship QUEEN OF BERMUDA! We sailed from New York Saturday September 7, into another world—to which we are not accustomed. Anybody that takes that ship and doesn't have a good time, would be unhappy in HEAVEN!"

There is a steward to pick up your clothes, if you are sloppy, make your bed, turn it down at night, keep a supply of clean towels on hand and if you desire, he will call you in the morning and give you a weather report for the day.

The trip to the dining room is a "nightmare for all dieters" but for the rest of us it is heavenly. The food is superb and anything you could wish for as well as dishes you have never tried. But that is not the end of the food—michmorning tea stream is served to all on deck or in the public rooms. Tea is served promptly at 4:00 p.m. (Because it is a British ship you know.) And at 11:00 p.m. a midnight snack is served on the promenade deck. Such food you never saw. By that time if you have been gouging you need an Alka-Seltzer, or better, two!

The ship carried an orchestra—Al Donohue—a Cruise Director and ship's hostess. All of these people make the trip most enjoyable. There are deck games, bingo, a first run movie, swimming, lounging in deck chairs—if that is what you came for! There is a party each night, with dancing and games in which the audience participates and a better "floor show" you never saw!

Monday morning the ship arrives at Bermuda and you think "it can't be real." The colors of everything are so beautiful. The ocean is the very bluest you can imagine and the houses are all painted different pastel colors with white roofs. They dot the hillside like fairyland.

The first thing you see when you get off the ship is what appears to be an English Bobby in Bermudas. This policeman is standing in a small house in the middle of the intersection directing traffic. By this time you are wondering "everybody drives on the wrong side of the street in this place!" Bermuda is an English Colony and follows the English tradition of driving on the left. The steering wheels of the cars are all on the right. Only small foreign cars are allowed on the islands. Because the streets are so narrow no American cars are allowed. Also, no Americans are allowed to drive cars on the island until they have been there six months.

In order not to clog up the islands with a terrible traffic jam each family is only allowed one car and that is driven by the husband. The wives and teenagers all ride motor bikes. This time we found a bus system on the islands. They are compact—possibly British made—and without springs I am sure, for a bumper ride I never had!

Bermuda is composed of 365 islands, many of them very small and connected by bridges and causeways or ferries. The whole island is only 24 miles in length and possibly a half a mile wide. It is a coral reef. In some places the top soil only looks to be two or three inches thick but potatoes are raised there and in other places it must be deeper.

The flowers and plants are beautiful. The Bermuda cedar is disappearing because of a blight which struck the trees in 1947. However, Australian palms have been imported to take their place and they grow very rapidly. There are many varieties of palm trees, banana trees. The first cracker tree, which we thought so unusual with its hanging orange flowers. There were many varieties of oleandras, hibiscus, crepe myrtle, and mimosa to name only a few.

The only factory on Bermuda is a "perfume factory." What could be lovelier to visit? Flower fragrances are made there—Passion Flower, Jasmine, oleander and Lily. The guide told us that it takes three years for the perfume to age and 19 months for the colognes and toilet waters.

The homes on the islands are all made of coral, even the roofs. The coral is quarried in blocks so a man can handle them. Thin sheets of coral are cut for the roof and put on in a shingle fashion, overlapping. When this is completed the whole building is given a coat of cement, which seals the pores in the coral. The roofs are painted white because they are used to trap rainwater for drinking. There is no fresh water on the islands. The rainwater is drained down through a pipe to an underground tank and stored for use. Water is quite a problem in Bermuda and they never have any to waste. Occasionally, during a very dry spell it is brought into them by ship.

According to a taxi driver, the population of Bermuda is 45,000 and of this number a good 60% are negroes. The Bermuda negroes are slimmer than our southern negroes and of course talk with a British accent. Which is very strange indeed—to us.

We found the Bermudians to feel a kinship to Virginia. The

Small Talk

Small Talk—Thurs.
Virginia Beach High School

Last Friday, September 20th, the second meeting of the newly created Interest Club was held in room 4 of Virginia Beach High School. Several members of the International Rotary Club were present while the meeting was conducted by interim president Paul de Wit.

The question of dues was first discussed, and it was immediately decided that they should be paid on an annual basis. Of course, the exact amount of the dues took a little more deliberation. However, it was finally decided that each member should pay $1 per year. The club officers shall be left to the management of Calson Barco, club treasurer.

The next topic of discussion dealt with the question of a faculty sponsor. All were in favor of Mr. Copeland, former Rotary Club advisor and present school algebra teacher.

The Interest Club shall hold meetings on the first and third Fridays of every month in room 4 at 3:30 after school. This discussion was reached after much deliberation, for it was felt that such a time table might interfere with the football team's practice schedule.

Several topics were brought up and discussed at this meeting in reference to the first club activities. However, through the initiative of Paul de Wit, committee members were appointed to sponsor an exchange student program, a photography exhibit, and a school traffic control bureau.

The Interest Club will be officially initiated at a joint Rotary and Interest dinner to be held at the Black Angus in the near future.

Football Is Everywhere In City Program

Tackle and Touch football leagues have emerged on five playgrounds. Pembroke, with four teams, Shelton Park, Thoroughgood and King's Grant with one entry apiece will again field teams in regulation football. This league will attempt to play each other at least once for a six-game schedule. This league is restricted to those youngsters of elementary school level that are not playing in the Recreation Athletic Leagues. The league is formed on an informal note with the children providing their own equipment and volunteer officials. At this time it is hoped that the games can be played on Saturday mornings rather than on school day afternoons.

Malibu has started a touch football league and are currently planning to play two afternoons a week. This league is also comprised of elementary school age children.

Playground Directors are issuing a call to parents for volunteer help in the form of officials and coaches. Anyone that is interested can contact the director at the playground. Playgrounds not involved with the football leagues are also in need of volunteer help.

Kellam Spirit High After First Victory

VIRGINIA BEACH — At least one city high school football team began its varsity competition with a victory last week when Kellam High's Knights whipped Kecoughtan, 12 to 6. The game was the first for both schools.

Now the Knights are looking ahead to their game with Chuckstuck Saturday night in the Virginia Beach Memorial Stadium. Game time is 8 p.m.

Kecoughtan scored first last Friday night at Darling Memorial Stadium in Hampton. But, the fighting Knights fell on a fumble late in the second period in the enemy's end zone to knot the score at 6 to 6.

Midway of the final period Kellam started a march that ended in a perfect 25-yard pass from Ronnie Morris to end Sam Rich to give the Knights the go-ahead touchdown that ultimately meant victory.

Playing for Kellam in this first game were Spitzner, Rich, Carson, Wright, Reynolds, Van Orden, Matyiko, Gersora, Dixon, Vernon, Day, Pennick, Williams, Grubbs, Byrtus, Rozos, Morris, McLerron and Etheridge.

Three of the nation's top ten senior players will be here in the persons of George Ball, Harry Hoffman and Bill Millikan.

Ball is ranked fourth nationally and will be top seeded in the local tournament. He is the defending champion and has won the title for the past three years.

Hoffman, although third ranked in the nation, will be second seeded behind Ball for the Virginia Beach event. Hoffman won the event in 1957-1958-1959.

Singles play is scheduled to begin on Friday with doubles play on Saturday. The tourney will wind up on Sunday.

Irene Ryan of "The Beverly Hillbillies" co-starred with Bob Hope on his tours of military installations overseas during World War II.

Hawks Set To Defend Grid Title

VIRGINIA BEACH — It may be too early to tell but the Virginia Beach Seahawks appear to be ready to challenge anyone who tries to take their District One, Group Two title away from them.

The only drawback is that the Hawks, in smashing Poquoson last Friday, failed to display any threat in making short yardage through the line. Chris Hanson broke away on three long touchdowns and Rick Nolan, on one, but the grind 'em out plays were not in evidence.

Coach Carlton Bowyer was pleased with the victory but admitted his team made far too many mistakes. "We can't compare this team with the one last year. We are just too inexperienced. James Blair is the team to watch," the coach stated.

In beating Poquoson 26 to 7, the Hawks utilized only three runners. Russell Chaplain with 53 yards in nine carries joined Nolan and Hanson in running the ball. Virginia Beach tried only one pass and that was intercepted.

The Hawks will play host to Norfolk Academy here Friday night. Game time is 8 p.m. at the Virginia Beach Memorial Stadium.

Quite a variety!!! Chevrolet offers 43 models for '64

For 1964, the Chevrolet Motor Division will offer a total of 43 models in five separate passenger car lines. Each line is distinguishable by its own styling and wheelbase. Above, reading down: the 166-inch wheelbase Corvair Monza Coupe; the 116-inch wheelbase Chevy II Nova 4-Door Sedan; the newest car in the Chevrolet family—the Chevelle Malibu 4-Door Sedan which has a wheelbase of 115 inches while the Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan is built on a 118-inch wheelbase. Not shown is the Corvette Sting Ray which sports a 98-inch wheelbase. Chevrolet dealerships will have a representative showing of all models when the new cars are introduced September 26.

NEW CHEVROLET CARS ON DISPLAY TODAY

Chevrolet — virtually certain of setting an all-time sales mark in 1963 — intends to continue this success in 1964 by offering the widest choice of automobiles in its history.

Introduced in Chevrolet dealerships today, will be 43 new models in five distinct sizes. This is ten more models than Chevrolet offered for 1963 and the greatest number the division has ever offered in a single year.

Included will be the industry's only all-new car for 1964 — the Chevelle. This much discussed combination of beauty, quality, performance and distinction is sized between the regular Chevrolet and Chevy II.

All Chevrolet's five lines of 1964 cars have styling and engineering improvements which — teamed with the increase in models and options — allow the customer to tailor a car to his particular requirements as never before.

"Car buyers today like diversity," Senon E. Knudsen, Chevrolet general manager, declares. "They like to be able to choose cars from a wide selection of sizes, styles and performance characteristics."

"We expect the broad diversity in our 1964 cars to win the customer votes needed to continue Chevrolet's traditional industry leadership."

Following are the highlights of the five members of Chevrolet's 1964 "family."

Regular Chevrolets
Extensive new styling is evident in the regular Chevrolet line, again stressing the big car luxury which has made it so popular.

A Super Sport series featuring bucket seats and special interior and exterior appointments in both a convertible and sport coupe has been added for 1964, bringing the total models of regular Chevrolets to 15 in four series.

Although over-all dimensions are the same as in 1963, the regular Chevrolet has a longer, wider look created by new flowing side lines and a smooth, broader styling of front and rear ends.

Crisp, distinctive exterior moldings and interior appointments distinguish between the Super Sport, Impala, Bel Air and Biscayne series.

The 1964 Chevrolet models feature new interior trim styling and materials, yet retain the built-in comfort, convenience, luxury and durability traditional with Body by Fisher.

All of Chevrolet's advanced 116 inch wheelbase chassis features are continued for 1964, including X-built Safety Girder frame, Full Coil suspension, self-adjusting Safety-Master brakes, high capacity electrical system with Delco-tron generator and long-life exhaust system.

Seven engines ranging from 140 to 425 horsepower will be offered. Optional for the first time in 1964 on 409 cubic inch engines is a full transistor ignition system. Four transmissions will be offered and the four-speed Synchro-Mesh includes refinements for smoother shifting and greater durability.

Chevelle

Chevrolet's new automobile line for 1964 embodies a distinctive styling and will be offered in 11 models in three series — the top-of-the-line Malibu Super Sport, the Malibu and the 300.

Quality and vehicle width are stressed in the front end design which makes use of dual headlights and horizontal grille bars. Side treatment is clean and a peak line which carries throughout the car gives a look of length.

WILLIAM H. COLE, II

USS ETHAN ALLEN (FHTNC)—Navy lieutenant William H. Cole, II, son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. William M. Cole of 4801 Holly Ave., Virginia Beach, a member of the "Blue Crew" of the nuclear powered ballistic missile submarine USS Ethan Allen, is on a 60-day patrol mission in the North Atlantic.

Ballistic missile submarines have alternate crews known as "Blue" and "Gold." This allows the submarines to maintain constant patrol of the Atlantic. Their missions are of two months duration between changing crews and are underwater the entire time.

Commissioned in August 1961, Ethan Allen is now on her seventh deterrent patrol. During the nuclear tests in the Pacific in May 1962, Ethan Allen fired the first successful strategic test of a complete ballistic missile system.

JOSEPH E. STEPHENSON DAVISVILLE, Rhode Island

(FHTNC)—Joseph E. Stephenson III USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stephenson Jr., of 141 South Fir, Virginia Beach, recently completed two weeks active duty training, graduating August 24 in the first class of the newly established First Naval District Recruit Training School at Davisville, R. I.

The training consisted of fire-fighting, damage control, elementary seamanship, survival afloat, small arms, nuclear-chemical-biological warfare, military drill and naval history.

Naval training produces the power in seapower by supervising trained and qualified personnel to man the ships, aircraft and shore stations of today's Navy.

SOCIALISM TOPIC OF ADDRESS TO BAYSIDE LIONS

BAYSIDE — The Bayside Lions Club met Wednesday night, September 18, at 7:00 p.m. at Shore Drive Inn with the president, Charles McCoy, presiding.

Program chairman, Charles Burlage, presented Mitt Stribling, sales supervisor for the VEP Co. in the Tidewater area. He spoke briefly about the way in which our Federal Government is moving in on industry. He named several fields in which the government has become the largest operator; lending agency, land owner, electric power, insurance.

Stribling also showed a film entitled "Encroaching Socialism," which showed how the theory of communism which was founded by Marx and Engle, has been spread over a large part of the world. This film showed how power was usurped by the totalitarian states until the individual lost all his liberties and became a slave to the state.

In countries such as England and the United States, where the people are living under good conditions, the communists found that the people were not interested in violent revolutionary action. Therefore, they adopted a policy of social revolution. By working with some leaders of large labor groups they succeeded in advancing the labor party in England to a point where they came to power and were able to virtually turn the country into a socialist country, with many of the major industries becoming nationalized.

Lloyd Gunter announced that the club would have an outing at Kempsville Meadows on Wednesday, September 25. Those interested in playing golf were asked to start early in the afternoon so that they could enjoy the food which will be available for all about 6:00 p.m. The club's monthly board of directors meeting will be held also at that time.

"Day Of Prayer" To Be Observed

BAYSIDE — The Woman's Missionary Union of the Bayside Baptist Church will observe a "Day of Prayer" Thursday, September 26, beginning at 10:00 a.m. at the church.

The Young Adult Training Union of the church is having a TU kick-off Friday night, September 27, at 8:00 p.m. at the church. Young Adult members are challenging Young Adult prospects. There will be Fellowship, Talent Show, fun and food for everyone. Young married couples 25 to 35 years of age make up this group and are invited to attend.

The Year of the Test Drive starts today!

Ford cars have changed. Only a test drive can tell you how much. Races and rallies, economy runs, braking and acceleration tests have bred into our 1964 models the kind of total performance you just can't create on the test track alone. They are hard-muscled, fast-moving, sure-footed. Open competition helped make them that way. They offer you substantially more car than anything at their price. You don't have to take our word for it. We're willing to rest our case on our cars.

This Is The House That John Built And George Moved

 CROWDS WATCH AS BUILDING MOVES

Text and photos by Bob Baldwin

VIRGINIA BEACH — Hundreds of Virginia Beach residents flocked to the beach last weekend—but not to swim. They were attracted by the spectacle of a 15-room house being drawn along the strand, inch by inch, behind a bevy of crawler tractors.

Sidewalk superintendents, small children, housewives and neighbors began gathering as early as Thursday when construction workers began jacking the 160-ton building from its foundations.

For the next three days the house was nudged, nudged, squeezed and eased along a circuitous path to its new site. At one point a lively nor'easter threatened to bring the whole project to a disastrous end. For the crowds who gathered to watch, it was a marvelous show.

Basically the problem facing "house moving engineers" Fred S. Sherman & Sons was to move the house, belonging to George F. Darden, Jr. from its location at 39th and Atlantic Ave. to a new site at 56th St. and Oceanfront.

The house had stood at the 39th St. site, across from the Americana, since it was built in 1924 by Darden's grandfather, George Morgan Darden. The site was recently sold to a developer for the construction of a high-rise co-op apartment building.

A series of hydraulic jacks, each capable of lifting 50-tons, were used to ease the building from its foundations. Then four 50-ton capacity trailers were welded into place below the house.

As cables were attached to a Caterpillar D8 Crawler tractor, an enthusiastic woman bystander sporting a ratty colored beach hat and obviously in a festive mood stepped forward and broke a bottle across the "bow" of the house while the crowd cheered.

A group of neighborhood children had been invited in to ride the first few blocks. They waved from the windows as the house began to move.

The real problems didn't begin until the next day when the moving crew began tackling the problem of getting the building down the 9-foot seawall at 40th St.

The expense of removing utility poles ruled out the possibility of moving the house along Atlantic Ave. so a bulldozer began pushing sand from the beach against the seawall to form a ramp.

The house sat overlooking the ocean all day Friday while the ramp was being constructed. By the time enough sand had been shifted into place the tide was in and further operations were suspended until dawn.

At 7 a.m. the house began moving down the ramp and onto the beach. Another D8 tractor and two D4 Army surplus tractors joined in the effort to keep the building rolling through the soft sand.

Progress along the strand was slow. By 1:30 p.m. nine blocks had been covered. Then the house bogged in the soft sand. Movers with shovels cleared the wheels and the house moved off again.

The house became stuck again. The shoveling was repeated but the house continued to bog in the sand.

Movers tried towing the house over the wet sand at the edge of the surf in hopes that it would provide greater traction. Then, at 4 p.m., within sight of its destination, the house became stuck fast.

With an incoming tide and a rising northeast wind, workmen fought a losing battle with their shovels. As soon as they managed to clear a scoop of sand from the wheels the waves would wash in to refill the holes.

Finally the bulldozers pushed up a temporary seawall of sand which held the sea back long enough for the workers to get the house rolling once more. By 7:30 p.m. the house was on its new site.

Pilings have prepared as a foundation for the house and work is scheduled to continue this week to place the building on these supports.

The moving job cost $5,000. The house will be rented in the summer and will serve as an occasional second home for the Dardens.

Workers prepare to pull house from old site.

House is eased down ramp and onto beach.

Waves lap practically at front door.

High tide brings headaches to movers.

"House-moving engineer" Fred Sherman directs dozer operations.

House arrives at oceanfront.

FALL FEEDER CALF SALES

Virginia Beach cattlemen are turning their attention to the annual series of fall feeder calf sales. Thirty-four sales have been planned. Producers from 74 counties consign stock to sales held throughout the Old Dominion.

The calf sales opened at Orange September 24. From six to eight sales (calf and yearling) will be held each week with sales scheduled so buyers may see several thousand head of feeder calves and yearlings sold within three or four days. Sales are held from the first week of September through the first week of November.

The dry weather which has plagued most of the state has encouraged heavy culling of cows and some entire herds have been liquidated. However, with some producers who haven't previously participated in the special sale program coming in, this year's consignments to most sales are about in line with last year. In some areas hardest hit by the drought, numbers will be down from previous years, however.

Because of poor grazing conditions, as well as the shortage and relatively high cost of grain for cross feeding, it is expected that the average weight of the calves will be lighter this year than any time in recent years. For the past seven years steer calves have averaged 471 pounds per head and heifers 436 pounds.

The fall series of special yearling feeder cattle sales are already underway in the state. Approximately 900 head of yearlings were sold at Galax on September 3. This sale was scheduled earlier than normal because of poor pasture conditions in that area. Prices at the Galax sale averaged about $1 per hundred under last fall. Yearling steers sold through the 1963 fall sales averaged $25.5 per hundredweight. Most of the yearling cattle sold have been moving to buyers outside the state.

Sales held the second week of September included Harrisonburg, Richmond, Lynchburg, and Roanoke. Fifteen more yearling sales are scheduled in Virginia from now until November 8. Approximately 18,000 yearlings are expected to move through this fall's series of sales.

These calf and yearling sales are cooperatively sponsored by the Virginia Beef Cattle Association and local feeder cattle sales organizations. The cattle are graded by representatives of the Virginia Department of Agriculture.

PLANT SMALL GRAINS EARLY

Farmers depending on small grain for grazing this fall and early next spring will need to seed as early as possible. Rye should be seeded now and other small grains as soon as time and weather permit.

A lot of grazing can be had from small grains, and they can be of great help in alleviating the extreme feed shortage that exists on many Virginia farms.

If small grains are to be grazed in the fall, additional nitrogen will be needed to produce the extra growth. Sixty to 80 pounds per acre should be applied at seeding time, rather than the 30 to 50 pounds usually put down when small grain is sowed for seed. In addition, 30 to 50 pounds of nitrogen per acre should be applied in February to give the extra spring growth that will be needed.

If you are not sure you will graze the small grain this fall, do not apply the extra nitrogen. This extra nitrogen will produce a lot of tender growth. If the extra growth is not removed it will reduce the winter hardiness of the small grain, and can result in severe damage from cold weather during winter months.

If small grain is grown primarily for fall and early spring grazing, rye is your best choice for two seasons. First, rye will produce the most top growth of any of the small grains. Secondly, supplies of seed rye are down only 1 to 7 per cent compared to a 22 to 35 per cent reduction in the supply of the more popular varieties of barley. There is a 4 to 10 per cent reduction in the supply of more popular wheat varieties, and a 1 to 50 per cent reduction in the supply of seed oats.

When farmers need to seed immediately to produce a maximum amount of forage, and there is no chance for a late production, seeding a mixture of rye, grass, crimson clover, and rye is better than seeding rye or one of the other small grains alone. Copies of Extension Service leaflet 133, "Winter Pastures with Cover Crops" are available from my office.

SELECTING FERTILIZERS FOR HOME GARDENERS

A new U. S. Department of Agriculture publication, entitled "Selecting Fertilizers for Lawns and Gardens," will be particularly useful to home gardeners who plan to buy fertilizer for their lawns this fall.

The publication explains how to determine the contents of mixed fertilizers, why fertilizer mixtures vary in cost, and what forms of fertilizer are available at garden-supply stores. Home and Garden Bulletin 89 was prepared by fertilizer specialists and soil scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

The bulletin points out that manufacturers of mixed fertilizers are required by law to show the guaranteed content of nitrogen, phosphoric oxide, and potash on the container. These are the nutrients most likely to be deficient in soils.

The mixture's grade—a series of three numbers separated by

Soybean Crop Infested By Corn Worms

Agriculture P—Soybean infested by Corn Ear Worms was disclosed in a limited survey just completed by W. H. Matheny, plant pest control specialist with the Virginia Department of Agriculture.

"The survey showed the infestation to be spotty. One field can have extensive damage and another close by will have little or no infestation," Matheny said.

Matheny advises, "These worms remain pretty well hidden and soybeans could be infested without knowing it since they feed very little, if any, on foliage. To check for them, bend a couple of plants between two rows and shake them sharply. If worms are present they will fall between the rows."

This worm has been a problem for several years. It eats the bean while it is still soft.

An occasional Velvet Bean Caterpillar also found during the inspection—an indication that they might be a threat to some fields. This pest is destructive for peanuts as well as soybeans.

dashes—indicates the percentage of nitrogen, phosphoric oxide, and potash, in that order. For example, a mixture with the grade of 5-12-5 contains 5 per cent available nitrogen, 10 per cent available phosphoric oxide, and 5 per cent available potash.

TESTING DAIRY FEED

"By guess and by-gosh" feeding of dairy cows is going the way of the buggy whip. Today the dairyman can test his hay, silage, or green chop just as good farmers test their soils.

Net energy and protein analysis supplied by forages tests are the building blocks on which rationals are developed for well-fed cattle. The test is free in Virginia.

Modern dairymen are also testing their milk under programs such as that of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. DHIA records give information as to the nutrients required by the herd and by individual cows.

Machine processes records now tell a dairyman how much grain to feed each cow based on quality and quantity of forage fed. These records also include reminders such as time to breed or time to dry off cows. They give a running account of the herd, showing amounts and costs of feed, feeding index, rate of forage feeding, income over feed cost, and many other items.

The combination of forage testing and milk testing provides the information needed, together with the dairyman's skill, to reach the highest income and production levels with a dairy herd.

This year's drought has added value to these programs. Under drought conditions guides to feeding are even more necessary because times are not normal. Adjustment to changes in feeds becomes routine through careful use of these programs.

Now that the tourist season is over, do you like the Beach better? Many residents feel that way. It is nice to have guests and you look forward to their coming, but when they have left, it is so nice just to have your home to yourself . . . Taking care of guests whether in your home, or in the City entails much effort and special entertainment, and with so much energy expended, you may not have had the time to enjoy yourself. Now the crowds are gone. Yet, festive recreation is still available for you.

Eating out is a treat for the whole family, but especially for you mothers when you don't have to plan the menu, prepare the meal, or persuade someone to help with the dishes. With so many types of restaurants, you can make an occasion out of each excursion into a different cuisine.

Did you ever think about taking the family out for a Sunday morning breakfast? Sambo's Pancake House on Atlantic Ave. and Alexander's Pancake Inn, also on Atlantic Ave., tempt even the most finicky taste buds with many varieties of pancakes. You never dreamed the simple pancake could be served so elegantly.

For a really special birthday or anniversary dinner, the Pine Tree Inn on Virginia Beach Blvd. exudes true Southern hospitality in the manner of the Old South and features typical Southern dishes and other excellent fare.

Seafood is a favorite with almost everyone, and many fine cafes feature these epicurean delights. Hurd's in Oceana fills the platter.

Steak and chicken are perennial favorites, but when you crave the unusual, try an Italian dinner at Ciolas in Oceana, or the Chinese cuisine at the Golden Dragon on Pacific Avenue, or genuine Mexican food at the El Sombrero on Shore Drive.

Night life did not leave with the tourists either! The Rathskeller Lounge on Atlantic Avenue is still going strong on the weekends. High caliber acts are presented in a sophisticated atmosphere . . . The Surf Rider, one of the nice seafood restaurants, at 4th Street, also has entertainment on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon, with no cover charge. Local young people can still patronize the Cabaret-Ten at the Civic Center on Pacific Avenue, but the time has been changed from Friday nights to Saturday nights. Teenagers can dance by candlelight from 9 to 12 in true high-tech style with a healthy climate designed especially for them. Disc jockeys provide the music with plans for live bands from time to time.

Don't wait till you have some guests of your own to show around, take yourself out and reap the benefits that have been planned for you, just as much as for the out-of-towners. There is no time like the present . . .

'64 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan—one of 15 Jet-smooth luxury Chevrolets.

Chevrolet was luxurious before, but you should see it now. With smart new styling, the '64 Chevrolet looks even longer (but isn't). There's even a whole new series this year—the Impala Super Sports—with front bucket seats as standard equipment. (The new Impalas and Bel Airs are more luxurious, too. Even the lowest priced Biscaynes have new foam-cushioned seats front and rear and are fully carpeted.) Of course, you expect more than just luxury from Chevrolet. A choice of 16 power teams, for instance—a 6 and six V8's up to 425 hp (optional at extra cost). And quieter transmissions. Jet-smooth ride with Full Coil suspension. Flush-and-dry rocker panels, Delco-tron generator, self-adjusting brakes and other low-upkeep features. If you've ever wondered how luxurious Chevrolet could get—with all the extra-cost options there are to choose from—that's entirely up to you.

Take your first look at the first CHEVELLE!

New Chevrolet Malibu Super Sport Coupe—one of 11 models in three great series.

You've never seen anything like this totally new line of cars before. Chevelle is new in everything but Chevrolet quality. Chevelle is a good foot shorter than the big cars, so it parks easily. Yet the interior of its Body by Fisher gives you a generous supply of passenger and luggage room. The ride is surprisingly smooth with a rugged coil spring at all four wheels. And not so surprisingly for Chevrolet, the new Chevelle offers a choice of engines ranging from an economical 120-hp 6 to a 220-hp

Organist In Recital

NORFOLK — Fernando Germani, for eleven years first organist at the Vatican, will be heard in recital, Thursday, October 3, 8:30 p.m., at Christ and St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Olney Road and Stockley Gardens, Norfolk.

Germani's appearance is under the sponsorship of the Norfolk Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, a national, inter-denominational organization of organists and choir masters.

The program will include works of Gabrieli, Caccinelli, Frescobaldi, Bach, Hindemith, and Beethoven. Germani, although Italian, is a recognized authority on the organ music of Bach, and has performed many times the entire solo organ music of Bach, and the most recent series was presented at St. Thomas Church in New York just last year.

Germani is a devotee of organ music and the recently installed "Chavari" — Fieres' organ which will be used for the recital at Christ and St. Luke's. This instrument holds the distinction of being one of the largest and finest pipe organs in the Norfolk area.

The public is cordially invited to attend this recital on Thursday, October 3. There is no admission charge, but an offering will be received to help defray expenses.

Power of God Lecture Topic

NORFOLK — The power of God and its effects on man will be explored at a one-hour public lecture in Norfolk on Friday, October 11, by Noel D. Bryan-Jones of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

The lecture will be sponsored by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Norfolk, and will be given at 8:15 p.m., in the Church edifice, 7246 Granby Street.

Title of the lecture is "God Omnipotent Makes Man Triumphant." Mr. Bryan-Jones is from Worthing, Sussex, England, and was formerly a Council member of The British Optical Association. For the past few years, he has been devoting full time to Christian Science practice, and is currently on an extensive lecture tour.

Only from the carefree heart of a child could come such joy. Or could it? Is it necessary to lose childhood's happy laughter? Must we feel depressed and burdened with the yoke of adult cares? Certainly not! The God-given gifts of joy and happiness are possessions we can and must retain throughout all our years. But how can we keep this wonderful spirit? Here is a formula that is very simple: attend the church of your choice regularly. In God's house you will learn to accept life's burdens — and soon they will be over so much lighter. His Peace will fill your heart. Here, in fellowship with others, you will receive the needed peace and understanding to reclaim and sustain the merry heart.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL — ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly:
(1) For his own sake.	(2) For his children's sake.	(3) For the sake of his community and nation.	(4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and financial support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.	Copyright 1963, Keltner Advertising Service, Inc., Staunton, Va.

OF INTEREST TO VETS

The last full year of schooling for veterans taking education or training courses under the Korean GI Bill begins this September. William J. Powers, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Roanoke, said recently.

When this school year ends, only a half year of schooling will be obtainable under the program. Courses starting in September 1964 must come to a close on January 31, 1965, Powers said.

Congress has set this cut-off date for the Korean readjustment program of education and training for veterans without service-connected disabilities. The law gives no authority to the VA to extend these benefits beyond these dates.

Originally, Korean Conflict veterans were eligible for 36 months of readjustment courses but only 17 months will remain before the final deadline when school classes resume this September.

To be eligible for such readjustment education or training, veterans must have had active service at any time between June 27, 1950, and January 31, 1955. They also must have served at least 90 days and entered training within three years from their first discharge from the service. Re-enlistment does not extend the three-year limit.

Powers said eligible veterans may choose their own type of training in any school or establishment approved by an appropriate state agency.

They may enroll in schools or colleges; take on-the-job training; enroll in institutional on-the-job training or other courses including flight training, cooperative or correspondence school courses.

Veterans will receive an allowance each month to meet part of their training and living expenses. First step is to obtain the necessary application forms at the nearest VA regional office. This can be done by mail.

Korean Conflict veterans with service-connected disabilities come under a different program and have no deadline to cut off their training.
